ADA/DC promotions target point of purchase

BY SUZANNE KEENE

WILLIAMSPORT — The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council are gearing up for summer milk promotion with several programs aimed at hitting the consumer where it counts — at the grocery store where he makes his final decision.

"Have a Dairy Good Summer" and "Ice Cream the Beautiful" promotions featuring colorful photos of summer dairy foods will be placed in 2,000 supermarkets and convenience stores in ADA's marketing area, Dairy Marketing Specialist Pret Goslee announced at a meeting of ADA's executive board this week.

The materials are presented in such "a tempting manner" that it is easy to convince merchandizers and purchasing agents to use them, he reported.

To assure that the materials will stay up in participating stores at least through July 15, ADA/DC has developed a contest. Each promotion kit contains a contest entry form that the store can enter in the drawing.

Farm groups divided on ag secretary nomination

BY WENDY WEHR

HARRISBURG — Governor Dick Thornburgh drew harsh criticism from Pennsylvania Farmers' Association leaders this week for his nomination of Dr. Richard Grubb as state secretary of agriculture

But other farm representatives, including the Pennsylvania State Grange, spoke up in favor of the nominee and publicly commended the Governor on his selection.

Thornburgh announced last week the nomination of Grubb, who is senior vice president for administration at The Pennsylvania State University, and holds two agriculture degrees from Penn State.

In denouncing the Grubb nomination, PFA president Keith Eckel said, "There are many qualified candidates with strong agricultural backgrounds who would better represent the agricultural community."

When questioned about his objections to the Grubb nomination, Eckel stated that the secretary of agriculture should be a person who is currently active in production agriculture, who knows the issues affecting agriculture today, and who has a working knowledge of the state's department of agriculture.

The secretary of agriculture, said Eckel, "must be a strong spokesman for the farmers' needs who can argue ably for the farmers' position. I don't believe this gentleman can do that."

Response from the governor's press office to the PFA objections was candid. Press officer Michael Moyle stated that the criticism from the farm community is relatively limited.

Although Harrisburg-based PFA leaders were voicing their criticisms, said Moyle, PFA members in other parts of the state and representatives from other farm organizations have indicated that the Grubb nomination was a fine choice which they can support.

Among the state's other general farm organizations, the Pennsylvania State Grange has publicly praised Thornburgh for the nomination Grange Master Charles Wismer sent a note to Governor Thornburgh this week, commending him for the selection of the Penn State administrator for the agriculture post.

Having worked with Grubb on Penn State's board of trustees, Wismer said he has found the nominee to be a capable administrator Wismer believes Grubb's farm background and his lack of association with any particular farm group will allow him to work aggressively for agriculture, working fairly with all parties involved.

U.S. Milk production climbs 3% in April

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

WASHINGTON — It's official. Milk production leaped almost three percent in April, virtually erasing the gains made during the 15-month dairy diversion program that ended March 31

USDA's figures for April, the first non-diversion month since December 1983, jumped 2 9 percent over April 1984 figures, to 12 billion pounds.

Most of the increase resulted from a rise in production per cow, which climbed more than two percent to 1,101 pounds.

Cow numbers, on the other hand, grew more slowly, increasing a little less than one percent, to 10,903,000, or 97,000 more cows than in April 1984.

The cow number figure, however, approaches the February 1984 total of 10,910,000, recorded during the second month of the diversion program.

Pennsylvania's figures closely paralleled the national totals, increasing about 3.1 percent over April 1984 levels. However, cow numbers grew more rapidly than production per cow, increasing 20,000 cows to 738,000. Production per cow was up five pounds, to 1,075 pounds

New York followed a similar pattern, recording a 1.6 percent production rise, to 1 014 billion pounds The entire increase could be traced to an increase of 15,000 in cow numbers, to 935,000. Production per cow remained steady at 1,085 pounds

Maryland recorded a whopping 10-percent jump in production to 143 million pounds, with cow numbers climbing from 120,000 to 122,000, and production per cow jumping from 1,080 to 1,175 pounds in April 1984.

Similar figures were recorded in Federal Order No. 4 (Middle Atlantic area), where production increased 5.6 percent to 527 million pounds in April.

April figures for Order No. 2 and for Delaware and New Jersey were not available at press time.

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

WESTMINSTER, MD — A Congressional subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee heard 29 witnesses from Maryland and Pennsylvania address credit and conservation issues in a formal committee hearing Monday at the Carroll County Agricultural Center here.

The Subcommittee on Conservation, Credit and Rural Development convened the meeting at the request of Congresswoman Beverly Byron, whose district includes this pastoral community.

And though the voices were often different and the interests, varied, there was surprising agreement both on the scope of problems and the range of solutions.

Virtually all the participants, including the Congressional representatives, wanted a balanced federal budget. Most thought federal programs were often counter-productive.

And there was widespread agreement that Soil Conservation programs were essential to the continued health and safety of agriculture in general and the rural community in particular.

Witnesses included federal officials like G. Wallace "Pat" Clark, director of the Farmers Home Administration in Maryland and Delaware and Pearlie S. Reed, State Conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service in College Park, MD.

Maryland Agriculture Secretary Wayne A. Cawley Jr. also gave testimony, along with officials of the state Soil Conservation Committee and the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

The financial sector was represented by bankers from Maryland National, York Bank and Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore. Maryland Farm Bureau, Maryland Grange, the Pennsylvania Farmers Union and the Pennsylvania Farmers Association all sent representatives.

And farmers like Marlin Hoff of New Windsor, MD, and York Countians Ralph McGregor, Geary Huntsberger and Paul McPherson also had their say.

Though there was probably no new ground covered, Congressional staffers were impressed with the quality of the testimony.

"It's true, we've probably had about 15 hearings like this around the country," said Jim Johnson, subcommittee staffer. "But it's the first opportunity we've had to get out in the country since the budget compromise package was adopted by the Senate."

Even though they didn't get the first word on the subject, the local witnesses may have had one of the last — The Senate has already begun to draft its version of the 1985 Farm Bill, and the House is expected to follow fairly soon.

On the credit issue, most testimony indicated that local credit problems are not as severe as those reported in other areas of the country.

"But if commodity prices con-

Disking's a dusty duty

Except for the lack of maturing corn, Pennsylvania cropland looked more like August than May this month. With April failing to live up to her reputation, fields took on a parched, late-summer look throughout much of May.

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, May 16
Report supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Movement of ready to cook whole birds was generally moderate, and most plants were clearing product satisfactorily. Inquiry for parts was mixed, but fairly good overall. Live supplies were adequate to barely adequate. Weights were irregular, but trending lighter overall. Slaughter schedules were very light in total. Undertone fully steady to firm.

Today's L.T.L. asking prices were unchanged on U.S. Grade A at 51-57 cents.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva (000).

Estimated 5/16 1,690,000; Actual 5/9 1,791,000; Actual 5/14 1,977,000; Average Weights 5/14 4.18; Average Weights 5/7 4.22.

Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, May 16
Report supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices were unchanged. The market tone was weak on mediums, about steady on larger sizes. Cartoned egg demand continued slow and disappointing. Competitive pricing is of major concern to many dealers as they find it difficult to compete and are losing accounts. Supplies tend to accumulate and in most instances are fully adequate to ample.

Prices to retailers: sales to volume buyers, consumer grades white eggs in cartons delivered store door:

PENNFIELD HIGH-YIELD FEEDS

The High-Yield Line Feeds are formulated to provide the high producing cow with a maximum nutrient dense dairy ration. These high energy feeds can help your cows reach their maximum productive and reproductive potential by supplying much needed energy during stressful performance periods. High-Yield feeds contain the following special ingredients:

Fat is added to increase the density and energy of these feeds. One pound of fat yields 2.3 mega calories of energy as compared with shell corn which has .80 mega calories per pound. Fat is mostly non-rumen degradable and is, therefore, a source of by-pass energy.

By Pass Proteins are formulated into these feeds in order to insure adequate intake of non-rumen degradable protein. This allows for better protein utilization and improved protein efficiency.

Methionine is an amino acid which has been shown to improve the efficiency of energy conversion to milk and to increase milk fat. It is most beneficial to high producing cows and cows in early lactation.

Zinpro® is a zinc methionine compound which aids in lowering somatic cell count, and is a nutritional aid when preventing and treating lameness in cows.

Buffers are added to help prevent milk fat depression, reduced milk production, digestive disturbances, or other symptoms of mild or chronic acidosis.

At Pennfield, we are committed to serving your needs. We are working harder to provide you with - PROMPT, DIRECT TO YOUR FARM SERVICE - SOUND FEED MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS - QUALITY FEEDS AT COMPETITIVE PRICES.

To Be Aware of Larvadex Approval

Fly control in poultry layer flocks has become extremely difficult because the flies have become immune to nearly all approved materials. But, I received good news last Friday that Larvadex has received EPA approval for use in layer flocks. Larvadex is a feed-through material that has no effect to the bird or egg.

The treated feed should be fed as a daily ration. Do not feed Larvadex treated feed to broilers or poultry producing eggs for hatching purposes.

Manure from layers fed Larvadex may be used as a soil fertilizer at the rate of 5 tons of manure per acre per year. Another important fact – do not apply to small grain crops that will be harvested or grazed.

There is a three-day withdrawal time for all birds going to slaughter to make sure the material passes through the bird.

Larvadex can't do it alone, follow good cultural and sanitation control practices in and around poultry houses.

To Be Aware of Hot Hay

Many farmers may be making hay that is higher than usual moisture levels in order to get the first cutting of hay into the barn. This can result in excessive heating, spoilage and possibly a barn fire due to spontaneous combustion. If you suspect your hay is hot, check its temperature. Drive a pipe down into the hay mow at several locations, and lower a thermometer into the pipe.

Temperatures will rise to 120°F during normal sweating and then drop back. At 150°F, you are entering the danger zone, and temperatures should be checked daily. At 160°F you are in the danger zone and temperatures should be monitored every 4 hours. Hot spots or fire pockets may be anticipated at 175°F; alert your fire company. At 185°F, start removing the hay; be careful you don't fall into a fire pocket; have fire protection and rescue service standing by.

To Be Aware of Corn Insects

With the increased trend toward no-till corn planting or minimum tillage, we can expect more problems with corn insects. Past experience shows this. We urge corn growers to inspect their fields frequently to observe any feeding on small plants. You can have cutworms, stalk borers and armyworms at any time feeding on the corn plant.

The Agronomy Guide lists several materials for the control of cutworms and armyworms, including Sevin, Lorsban, Furadam, or Dylex. Stalk borers are very difficult to control because they work inside the corn stalk. Flea beetles are another insect that may feed on small corn leaves; they create small holes in the leaves but seldom do extensive damage. Sevin can be used to eliminate these small insects, if it is serious enough. Keep an eye on the corn field for the first several weeks and avoid serious insect injury.

To Read The Label

I am sure you have heard this suggestion before, however, it is still very important to all farmers and gardeners.

Every pesticide carries a label with directions; this should be read and followed during the application of the material. Don't make the mistake of applying the material in error. The labels are required by law and should be respected by the user. Serious losses may occur if the directions are not followed. Materials should always be kept in their original container and stored in a separate place under padlock.

THE BEST INVESTMENT
May 19, 1985

Background Scripture:
Proverbs 3:13-18;8:1-21
Devotional Reading:
Proverbs 2:1-15

Somebody out there must be laboring under the mistaken impression that I've got a substantial sum of capital to invest in something. How else should I explain the growing flow of mail inviting me to subscribe to investment newsletters, buy books that will help me to manage my money, or join various schemes to buy this or that?

One source says "buy gold!" Another, "put your money into real estate!" Still another advises "precious gems!" But, even a cursory glance at this literature on its way to my circular file has convinced me that there is simply no agreement among them as what I should do with my money–if I had it.

MOOD ELEVATORS

Now, I'm not for one moment disparaging the practice of investment. Nor am I indicating that we should not be concerned with the management of whatever material resources we have. What I am saying, however, is that we should be no less concerned with the investments we make of the intangibles of our lives.

You see, no matter what we say about what's important in life, our society today acts as if the essence of life is to be found in material things. Advertising suggests that things will make us happy, guarantee our success, and make life enjoyable. And, although we make some allowance for advertising hype, we act as if we pretty much believe that that is true. A new stereo, video recorder, tape deck, dirt bike, computer, van or car are regarded by some people as "mood elevators" – when you feel "down," you buy something to chase the "blues" away.

I love gadgets (just keep me out of a hardware store) and I have my share of things, including a home computer and video recorder. But I know that no matter how much pleasure they give me, they are still not what life's all about. They all break down, wear out or expire eventually–as I will, too–and then what is left of me is the only thing that really counts, my immortal soul or spirit.

BETTER THAN JEWELS

That's why the writer of Proverbs can say, "for wisdom is better than jewels, and all that you may desire cannot compare with her" (8:11). The getting of wisdom and understanding, of spiritual maturity, is the most important investment any of us can ever make–better than jewels, better than precious metals, the stock market, or even certificates of deposit.

Lots of people draw near to the end of life with a good education, with an ample estate, and social recognition, but whether they also have gained wisdom, spiritual discernment, is another question.

My native Pennsylvania Dutch (German) have a saying:

We get too soon oldt, and too late schmardt.

But that's not the way it has to be.

Lancaster ranks 11th nationwide in value of farm products

WASHINGTON — Always known as the "Garden Spot," Lancaster County has officially been recognized as one of the most productive counties in the U.S. — and the most productive on the East Coast.

New rankings released this week by the U.S. Census Bureau place Lancaster 11th in the nation in value of agricultural products, trailing eight California counties and two other Western jurisdictions, one in Arizona and one in Colorado.

The top ranking in the survey was occupied by Fresno, CA, where products valued at $1.15 billion were sold. Almost without exception, Fresno's California companions in the top ten were located in the lush San Joaquin Valley, which has extensive fruit and vegetable farming.

Lancaster, by contrast, had sales of $574.9 million, although on a smaller amount of land. Fresno sprawls over 5,978 square miles, while Lancaster occupies 952.

The rankings are based on the 1982 census of agriculture conducted by the bureau.

The individual rankings by commodity, however, contained striking evidence of Lancaster's incredible diversity. While other leading producers excelled in one category, Lancaster was ranked prominently in several:

• Second in value of livestock and poultry products. In subcategories, Lancaster was second to Sussex, DE in value of poultry and poultry products sold, and fifth in hog inventory.

• Fourth in the number of dairy cows and sixth in value of dairy products sold.

Pennsylvania was the only Middle Atlantic state to place among the top 20 ag producers nationwide, finishing 15th with $2.8 billion. The Keystone State remained fifth in dairy production, with sales of $1.082 billion.

The rankings of the top ten producing counties in the U.S. is as follows:

1. Fresno, CA, $1.15 billion.
2. Kern, CA, $1.07 billion.
3. Tulare, CA, $963 million.
4. Weld, CO, $829 million.
5. Imperial, CA, $742 million.
6. Monterey, CA, $738 million.
7. Merced, CA, $655 million.
8. Maricopa, AZ, $628 million.
9. Riverside, CA, $619 million.
10. San Joaquin, CA $593 million.

Maryland tobacco auctions have fourth best year

ANNAPOLIS, MD – The 1984 Maryland tobacco auctions saw the state's oldest crop recover considerably in price from the year before, averaging $1.398 per pound–the fourth best Maryland market average in history.

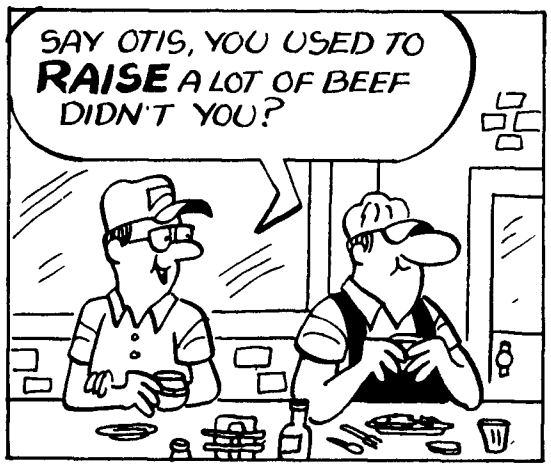
A total of 28,591,210 pounds of Type-32 leaf was sold over the eight tobacco warehouse floors during the 30 days of sales for a total of $39,991,021. This contrasts with 1984 when 27,487,326 million pounds was sold at an average of $1.048 cents per pound returning farmers $26,487,614.

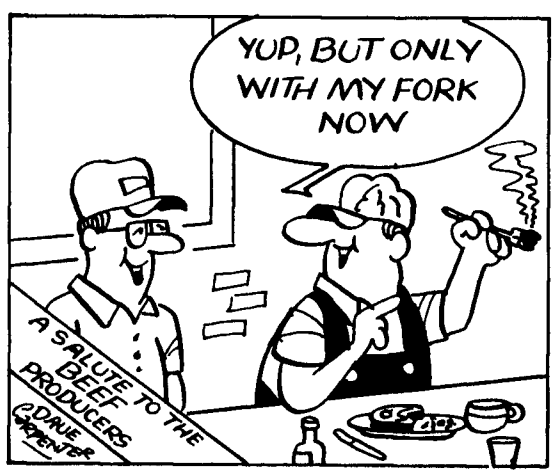
Sold on this year's auction markets was the crop of tobacco produced in 1984 which was generally regarded as a very high quality crop. However, several million pounds of 1983 crop tobacco was also sold this year by farmers who had held it off the market last year because they were unwilling to accept the low bids offered last season.

The average price of $1.398 per pound paid by buyers this year has only been exceeded by the average prices paid for the crops of 1981 ($1.749), 1980 ($1.704) and 1982 ($1.520) and just better than the 1979 crop average of $1.397.

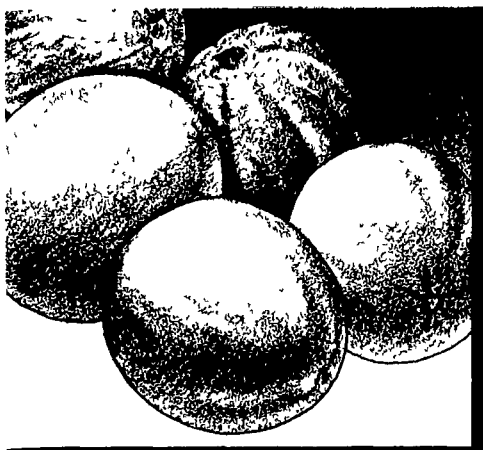
This year's dollar amount paid to farmers of $39.9 million is also the fourth best figure evere recorded for Maryland tobacco. The 1982 and 1981 crops brought dollar totals of about $58 million each and the 1980 crop returned $42.6 million to farmers.

Prices and dollar totals are historically tracked by crop year because Maryland tobacco is sold the year after it is produced. Thus, the tobacco sold this year is credited against the 1984 crop.





REAL®



Bravo® 500 fungicide. The one and only for each and every.

Only Bravo protects more than 20 vegetables and melon crops
There just isn't another fungicide on the market that matches Bravo for the variety of crops it protects.

Which explains why growers from one end of the country to the other make Bravo their fungicide of choice season after season.

Only Bravo controls more than 25 major diseases
That simple fact makes Bravo 500 the broadest spectrum vegetable fungicide money can buy.

To more and more of America's vegetable and melon growers, Bravo 500 is all the fungicide they need.

First-rate disease control that only Bravo can deliver
Protection that pays off in bigger yields of better quality for higher profits.

Every extra pound, bushel and ton at harvest is one more reason to start early with Bravo 500 and stick with it all season long.

Acre for acre, spray for spray, there's not a more effective or broader spectrum fungicide than Bravo 500.

So why chance your crops to just any fungicide. Make it Bravo 500 from SDS Biotech. Because you give it all you've got.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE TO PORK PRODUCERS AND ALLIED INDUSTRIES

Dear Pennsylvania Pork Producers and Allied Industries,

The Pennsylvania Department of Revenue has issued a ruling declaring sales tax is due on all types of slotted pig flooring (woven wire, expanded metal, etc.) used in pig production.

The Pennsylvania Department of Revenue has completed a Pennsylvania sales tax audit of our company. They have assessed our company with sales tax and penalty on all flooring sold since January 1, 1985. They have also requested and received the names and addresses of all customers who have purchased grating since January 1, 1985, who have farm use tax exempt certificates on file with our company. These customers will be receiving a sales tax and penalty assessment.

The Pennsylvania Department of Revenue will be doing a Pennsylvania sales tax audit on all Pennsylvania companies marketing pig flooring in the near future to assess sales tax on pig grating sold since January 1, 1982.

Our company and other industry representatives feel this is an unfair ruling and will create an additional production cost for the pig industry. We feel therefore, this tax assessment of pig grating should be appealed on a statewide industry basis. Our company has until June 12, 1985 to file a notice of intent to appeal with appeals board.

Our company is asking the following organizations to assist and fund this appeal.

PA Farmers Association
Penn Ag Industries
PA Pork Producers Council

A reply from these organizations in the immediate future is requested. A decision as an industry needs to be made as soon as possible. Without assistance from the industry, our company does not wish to fund the appeal and would not appeal the ruling.

Our company is asking you as a producer or allied industry person to contact these organizations in the next ten days requesting them to support this appeal effort for the Pennsylvania pig industry.

Sincerely,

Leon Hoover, President

Measure acreage before planting spring crops

WASHINGTON – Before planting spring crops that may be covered by acreage reduction and land diversion program in 1985, farmers should request pre-measurement of their acreages.

Farmers should make sure that they don't lose program benefits because of failure to comply with acreage requirements, officials said. To be eligible for price support loans, target prices and other program benefits, farm program participants are required to report actual planted acreages.

Before crop planting time, ASCS will stake and measure any type of acreage, or portions thereof, that a farmer requests. To be assured that program requirements are met, producers must plant within the stakes that are placed when the land is pre-measured. After planting, they are required to report their crop acreages to ASCS.

Pre-measurement is important in helping farmers decide which land to devote to the acreage conservation reserve and which fields to plant.

The service costs of $12 plus hourly rate of $.15 includes measuring, referencing and marking fields with stakes prior to planting. Acres pre-measured by ASCS are guaranteed for the program year.

Other producer services include measuring total cropland, field or subdivisions to be planted and land areas for other purposes. Fees vary, depending on the type of service rendered.

Early measurement service is available to producers who wish to have crops measured prior to crop acreage certification for compliance purposes.

County ASCS offices provide these services. Contact the county office immediately for prompt service.

Penn State names Hinish interim agriculture dean

UNIVERSITY PARK – Dr. W. Wayne Hinish has been named interim dean of the College of Agriculture and director of both the Cooperative Extension Service and the Agricultural Experiment Station at The Pennsylvania State University, effective June 1. He has served as the associate dean and associate director of the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service since January 1983.

Prior to that he was interim associate dean for Extension and assistant dean and assistant director for administration, management and training for the Extension service.

Dr. Hinish, a professor of agronomy, also served as coordinator of Extension agronomy programs from 1977 to 1980 and was in charge of the Penn State Soil Testing Program from 1956 to 1980. He has been a member of the faculty since 1954.

Making the announcement, William C. Richardson, Executive Vice President and Provost of the university, said "Dr. Hinish's familiarity with the college, its programs and personnel should make the transition a smooth one."

Dean Samuel H. Smith will be leaving Penn State to assume the Presidency of Washington State University effective July 1, 1985.

According to Dean Smith, "Dr. Hinish comes to this position with an exceptionally fine record of administrative service, more than 30 years of experience in Extension, and an in-depth knowledge of the Commonwealth and its agricultural community."

University president Bryce Jordan and executive vice president and provost Richardson are forming an advisory search committee to screen candidates for the deanship of the College of Agriculture.

USDA reviews methods used to evaluate corn moisture

WASHINGTON – A subcommittee of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Grain Inspection Advisory Committee will review laboratory methods used in official testing of moisture in corn at a June 10 public meeting.

The session begins at 1 p.m. at the Agri Industries Office, 2829 West Towne Parkway, West Des Moines, Iowa, say officials of USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service. The subcommittee is chaired by Ray W. Chartier, general manager of Farmers Cooperative Company, Dallas Center, Iowa.

The subcommittee will review laboratory methods that are more accurate than the USDA air oven method for determining corn moisture. The USDA method, which is used to calibrate electronic moisture meters used for official testing, understates moisture content by 0.7 percent when compared with other reference methods.

The method, unchanged from its adoption 26 years ago, requires drying of whole kernel samples for 72 hours at 103 degrees Centigrade

Persons who wish to address the subcommittee should submit written comments before the meeting to Chartier at 1107 Sycamore Ave., Dallas Center, Iowa 50063; telephone: (515) 992-3767. Written comments also may be submitted at the meeting.

The subcommittee will make recommendations to the full advisory committee at a July 15 public meeting.

Order 4 milk base price drops 27 cents in April

ALEXANDRIA, VA – Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine today announced an April 1985 base milk price of $13.26 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $11.45. The weighted average April price was $13.11 and the butterfat differential for the month was 16.3 cents.

The base milk price was down 27 cents from March and was the same as last April. The weighted average price dropped 33 cents from March and was 17 cents below a year earlier.

The Order 4 Class I milk price was down 19 cents from March to April 1985, while the Class II price dropped 37 cents, accounting for the sharp monthly decline in producer prices.

The advertising withholding rate, which is deducted from the base and excess milk prices but not the weighted average price, was 10 cents a hundredweight in April 1985 and 14 cents last April.

Mr. Shine said that producer receipts totaled 527.8 million pounds during April, and that the average daily delivery per producer was a record high 2,588 pounds, exceeding last April's average producer delivery per day by 223 pounds or 9.4 percent. The number of producers declined 249 from last April.

Class I producer milk totaled 237.6 million pounds and was up almost 3 million pounds or 1.2 percent from April 1984. Class I milk accounted for 45.03 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, compared with 46.96 percent last April.

Base milk accounted for only 86.8 percent of total producer milk receipts in April. A year ago the percentage was almost 92 percent. The average butterfat test of producer milk of 3.66 percent was down slightly from 3.71 percent a year ago.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 202.0 million pounds during April, a decline of 0.4 percent from a year earlier, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

Rural growth

NEWARK, DE – The rural population growth which occurred during the 1970s is over in some parts of the country, but not in Delaware, according to the U.S. Census Bureau's latest set of county population estimates. Some observers are becoming concerned over the potential impact of this development.

"Rural Delaware appears to be continuing to grow at a faster pace than urban parts of the state," reports University of Delaware extension specialist in community resource development, Daniel S. Kuennen. This runs counter to national trends for the 1980s. Nearly a third of the rural counties in the U.S. that experienced a resurgence of growth in the 1970s are losing population again, the specialist says, probably in response to the prolonged recession of the early 1980s.

By contrast, from 1970 to 1980 the growth rate for Sussex County, Del., was 22 percent, followed by Kent County at 19 percent and New Castle County at 3.4 percent. From 1980 to 1983 metropolitan Delaware grew by 1.5 percent while, at 2.9 percent, the state's rural population nearly doubled.

What are the reasons for this trend, and what are its implications for Delaware's rural residents and the communities in which they live?

One explanation for Sussex County's phenomenal growth is the increased number of people who are retiring to second homes in coastal communities–a process which will no doubt be accelerated by the duPont company's current offer of early retirement to many employees.

A relatively low cost of living and accessibility to East Coast cities are other attractions in rural Kent and Sussex counties.

Both counties have also enjoyed modest growth in service industries and small businesses in recent years--another contributing factor. However, service industries in rural southern Delaware have expanded at a slower rate than in the rest of the state--a fact Kuennen views with some concern.

"Already there is a need for more services–including central sewer systems, police and fire protection, roads, schools and medical care–as a result of population growth," the specialist says.

A second cause for concern is the fact that some dedvelopment in both Kent and Sussex counties is occurring on prime agricultural land and in environmentally sensitive areas. Recognizing the potential impact of this development, Sussex County is presently revising its land use plans for the entire county as well as its southern coastal area–a procedure involving considerable differences of opinion.

"We're talking about competing values," Kuennen says, "When people move to the country, they bring their urban values with them. Some have a hard time adjusting to rural lifestyles, so this is very much a period of transition for rural Delaware. Because of the fast-paced growth in resort areas, coastal Sussex is experiencing the greatest change."

THE RESISTANCE IS SPREADING!

Fight the Colorado Potato Beetle resistance with rotenone-based Penick Noxfire and PBO or new pre-mixed PB-NOX.

The most destructive pest your potato crop will ever have to face is back in your own backyard.

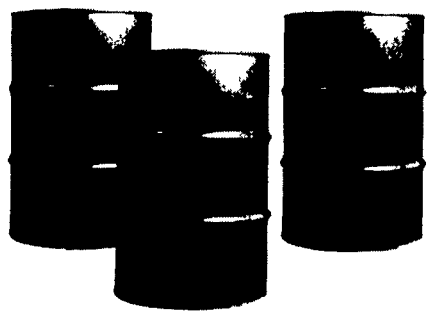
The Colorado Potato Beetle's built-up resistance to pyrethroid-based insecticides is costing potato farmers in your area and throughout the country millions of dollars in lost yields each year.

But there is a way to stop them dead.

Its Penick's new rotenone-based PB-NOX, the convenient, ready-mixed combination of two federally registered Penick products that proved to be so effective against pyrethroid-resistant Colorado Potato Beetles last year.

Now you can reduce losses due to spillage or mixing errors and get maximum acreage protection with super effective Noxfire® insecticide with 5% rotenone pre-mixed with Penick's piperonyl butoxide 92% emulsified concentrate.

Or, purchase the same ingredients separately in 1, 5, 30 or 55 gallon containers and mix your own.



Either way you'll stop the Colorado Potato Beetle's spreading resistance in your acreage and erosion of your profits.

Hit 'em with the most economical and effective protection you can get against resistant Colorado Potato Beetles.

Hit'em with new PB-NOX or Noxfire and PBO and knock 'em dead.

For more information or to order call your nearest Penick distributor or contact Penick Corporation Pesticides Division, 1050 Wall Street West, Lyndhurst, NJ 07071, or call (201) 935-6600.

Gavel comes down on Thomasville Auction

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

THOMASVILLE — The final crack of auctioneer John Frey's gavel on the sales box marked the end of an era in York County last week.

After nearly 40 years of selling livestock, Thomasville Livestock Auction, Inc., a Wednesday evening agriculture tradition, swung its heavy wooden cattle gates closed for good.

But, waiting in the wings to open at the auction site on May 15 is Weikert's Livestock Buying Station. Owned and operated by Robert W. Weikert, of Fairfield, the new private-purchase livestock-hauling business marks the first time an auction in southcentral Pennsylvania has been converted to a direct-buy establishment.

"It's a trend in the West," says Weikert, who's been a livestock buyer since the age of 14. "Cattle will go direct from here to slaughter."

"Farmers can bring their cattle and calves in, we'll weigh them at once, and give them a check immediately. And, there's no commission," he explains.

While the direct-purchase business will open initially only for cattle, Weikert plans an announcement in the near future on a date when hog purchases will be added.

Weikert's Livestock Buying Station will be open every Wednesday, from 8 a.m. through 6 p.m.

Experienced at private livestock trading, the family has operated a buying station at their Fairfield home since 1957. Weikert's two sons, Jeffrey and Todd, are also experienced buyers, and will be assisting in operating the

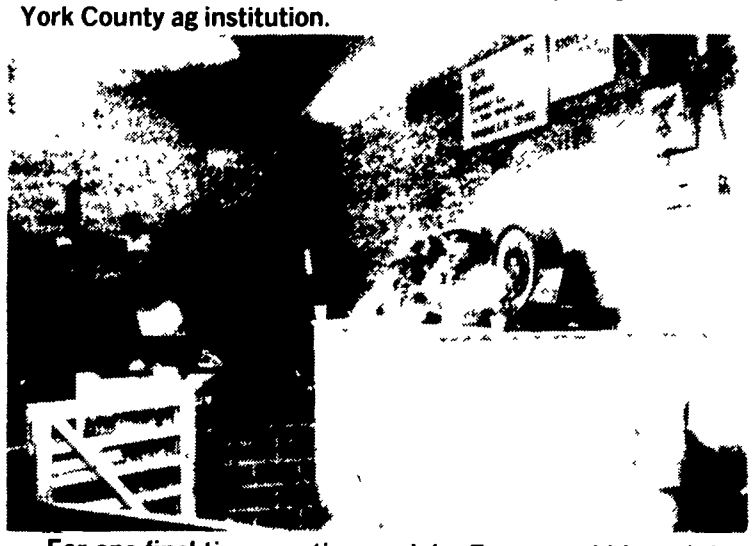
Some come to buy. Many came to just look and reminisce as livestock processed through the Thomasville Arena in the closing hours.

Pickups and tractor-trailers packed the parking lot at Thomasville Auction Wednesday evening as long-time auction goers turned out in force for the final nostalgic night at this York County ag institution.



For one final time, auctioneer John Frey sang bids and the gavel cracked against the worn sales box, as 40 years of York County ag history came to a close.

Thomasville business. The family maintains its own retail establishment in Gettysburg, the Weikert Meat Market, Inc., managed by daughter Roberta.

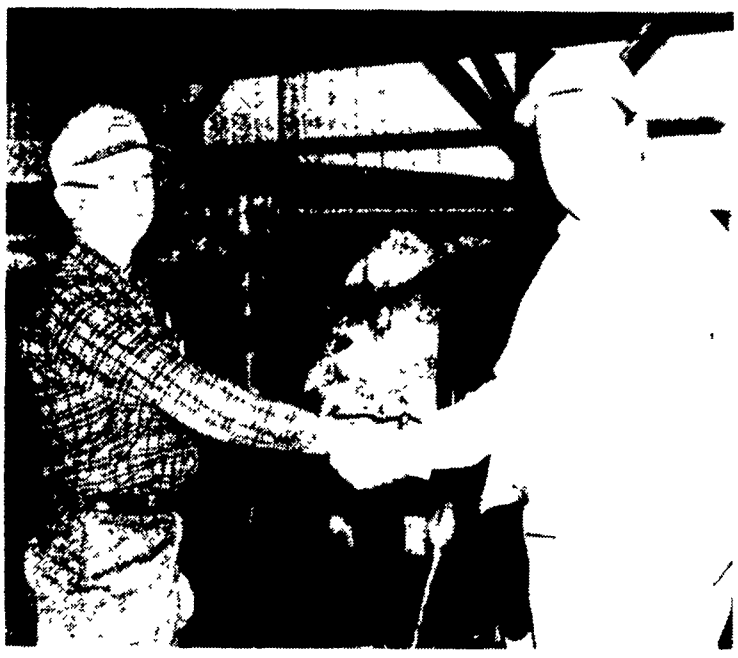
A large crowd turned out for the nostalgic last sale, packing the arena to standing room only and jamming the sprawling parking lot.

On hand to help keep this final auction running smoothly were a number of the 25 farmer-stockholders who cooperatively purchased the establishment in 1975. Current president Charles Sunday, York, remininsced about having attended the auction "as a kid", as he congratulated the new owner of the facility surrounded by the maze of pens full of cattle.

Thomasville Auction opened in 1947, by ag entrepreneurs Peter and Earl Koons of Harrisburg, and William Peters, Millersburg.

A fire totally destroyed the facility in 1980. It was then modernized and rebuilt by the farmer-owners group. The auction has been a frequent host to 4-H livestock events, including the annual York-Adams beef and sheep roundups.

Livestock sellers interested in additional information on the Weikert Livestock Buying Station may contact Robert Weikert at Box 68, Fairfield, or by calling the business at (717) 642-8412, 642-8164 or 642-5773.



Robert Weikert, right, accepts congratulations and best wishes for his private livestock buying business from Thomasville Auction's president Charles Sunday.

Milk sanitarians to meet in Nashville

AMES, Iowa — The 72nd annual meeting of the International Association of Milk, Food and Environmental Sanitarians, Inc. (IAMFES) will be held August 4-8, at the Hyatt Regency, Nashville, Tenn.

The international educational conference will feature a full two days of panels, symposia and individual speakers.

Screening loads of milk for quality will be the topic of one panel discussion on August 6. Franklin R. Balliet, Dairylea, will serve as moderator.

Panel members include: John J. Althaus, Milk Marketing, Inc., Strongsville, Ohio; Rya Koeppel, Heritage Farms Dairy, Murfreesboro, Tenn.; and William A Brown, Florida Dept. of Agriculture and Consumer Services, Tallahassee, Fla.

A symposia on microbiological criteria for foods will be chaired by H. Michael Wehr and John Williker on August 7.

Individual speakers include J. Zindulis, T. Tsang and S. Semuta, Bactomatic, Princeton, N.J., speaking on the estimation of the total number of aerobic bacteria in ice cream; Martin Welt, Radiation Technology, Rockaway, N.J., speaking on facilities and their control for commercial irradiation of foods; and Jerry Trumpey, Chemical and Environmental Conservation Systems, Cincinnati, Ohio, speaking on new techniques in toxic waste management.

In addition to the educational aspects of the meeting, a partner program has been planned for those who would like to explore the sites of Nashville

The IAMFES annual awards banquet will be held on the evening of August 7.

For more information or to request a copy of the entire program or a meeting/hotel registration form, contact: Kathy R. Hathaway, IAMFES, Inc., P.O Box 701, Ames, Iowa 50010; phone 515-232-6699.

Computer software show

UNIVERSITY PARK — One of Pennsylvania's first trade shows for demonstrating the use of computer software in agriculture will be held May 22 and 23 at the Juniata Valley High School in Alexandria.

"The trade show is one of many efforts we are making to relate the real world of new technology to people who need training to meet the changing demands of businesses and industries," said Dr. Donald Evans, superintendent of the Juniata Valley School District.

"Various departments of Penn State's College of Agriculture will show microcomputer software developed by University faculty and people at other institutions and industries," according to Ellis Griffith, director of the Vo-Tech School.

Demonstrations will include the NEW Production Records System for Vocational Agriculture, VisiCalc templates and basic programs in production areas such as livestock, crops, dairy, and items developed by specialists from the Cooperative Extension Service for Macintosh computers and the Pennsylvania Extension Network.

The software trade show will be held, starting each day at 9 a.m., in the Juniata Valley High School in Alexandria. For further information, contact Ruth Cox at 814-643-0951.

The school district and the Huntingdon County Area Vocational-Technical School also are sponsoring a series of workshops on new technology. Five of them, along with the trade show, are in cooperation with the Advanced Technology Center of Central and Northern Pennsylvania (ATC/CNP), Ben Franklin, Partnership.

The workshops, to be held May 17-18, are: Computer Assisted Drafting, Juniata Valley High School; Computer Servicing Technology, Digital Electronics, Computerized Numerical Control Systems and Electro-Mechanical Technology, all in the Huntingdon County Area Vocational-Technical School, Mill Creek.

A workshop on Digital Electronics also will be held May 24-25 in the Bethlehem (PA) Area Vocational-Technical School.

Penn State's somatic cell test helps combat mastitis

UNIVERSITY PARK – Pennsylvania dairy farmers have a better way of recognizing mastitis in their cows. The somatic-cell count program operated by Pennsylvania's Dairy Herd Improvement Association is helping farmers to keep their herds healthy and produce an additional $37,000-worth of milk each day.

Mastitis infection not only reduces a cow's milk production. It also causes her to sluff white blood cells–somatic cells–into her milk.

"The DHIA counts those white blood cells in milk samples and then tells dairy farmers which of their cows may need attention," said Stephen Spencer, professor of dairy science extension for Penn State's College of Agriculture.

Half of Pennsylvania's dairy farmers with the DHIA. Sixty percent of that half pay the extra 12 cents per cow for the monthly somatic count. The average count in their cows has dropped from 550,000 cells per milliliter in 1979 to 300,000 this past February.

"Without infection, milk will have 50,000 to 100,000 cells," said Spencer. "When the count is 500,000 or more we suggest that dairy farmers call the vet to take a culture and pinpoint the problem. It could be any of three different types of bacteria–staph, strep, or coliform."

Pennsylvania's DHIA was the first in the nation to offer somatic cell counts. "Before that, farmers could get a count from their dairy," said Spencer. "But the dairies test bulk tanks for the whole herd. That doesn't tell which cows are infected."

Dr. Bob Eberhart's research showed us that we could use the somatic cell count as our measuring stick," said Spencer. Spencer, Eberhart, and Lawrence Hutchinson, in cooperation with DHIA, created the somatic cell program in 1979. Eberhart and Hutchinson are professors of veterinary science and veterinary science extension at Penn State.

The DHIA counts somatic cells in samples from individual cows by means of automated microscopes. The machines mix a 1/1000 milliliter sample of milk with a dye that causes the somatic cells to fluoresce, then the microscope counts the cells. The end result is a printed record of the number of somatic cells per milliliter for each cow sampled.

"About 200 samples go through the lab in an hour–10,000 a day," said Spencer. "When we first started in 1979 we had only one machine, and pretty quickly we had a waiting list for the program. We didn't do much promotion either; the program just sold itself. Now we have four microscopes and could take on more work if it came in."

Spencer and the college's dairy extension section have been helping farmers treat as well as recognize mastitis. Over the past several years teaching teams comprised of two county agents and one specially trained veterinarian have conducted 94 milking schools for farmers.

Preventing or curing mastitis is largely a matter of cleanliness. Milking parlors need to be as aseptic as possible. Udders need to be cleansed with antiseptics. Milking machinery also has to be in good condition.

"You can't spot infection just by looking at a cow," said Spencer. He likes to stand in front of the microscopes at the DHIA and watch the numbers flashing on the screens. "They're so low any more. The counts used to run about 600,000. A lot of these today are only 150,000. The textbooks used to say 250,000 was normal. Look at that! Just 27,000. This herd is in beautiful shape."

Cedar Crest FFA

Cedar Crest FFA recently elected the following officers: Lisa Houser, president; Brenda Peiffer, vice-president; Jenny Embich, secretary; Gale Hitz, treasurer.

Brian Boyer, reporter; Tonya Johnson, sentinel; John Whary, chaplain; Kevin Dreibelbis, assistant reporter; Becky Smith, assistant secretary; and Adam Hain, assistant treasurer.

The County FFA delegates are Lisa Houser and Tonya Johnson. They will represent Cedar Crest in the Lebanon County FFA. New officers will be installed at a future meeting.

Banquet to honor retiring Ag Department Chairman

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – Reservations are being accepted for a banquet in honor of Dr. James R. Miller, chairman of the University of Maryland's Department of Agronomy since 1963. The banquet will be held Sunday, June 9 at the university's Adult Education Center with a reception at 4 p.m., followed by dinner at 5 p.m. Banquet reservations will be limited to 500 guests.

Miller attended Washington College for three years before entering the University of Maryland, where he earned his B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. degrees in soils, with a minor in plant physiology.

Following graduation, Miller accepted a position as a soil scientist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Beltsville. While there, he conducted research on radioactive fallout in soils. He also conducted extensive research on methods of determining available phosphorus in soils.

In 1958, he joined the staff of the Agronomy Department at the university where he was in charge of the state-wide soil testing laboratory. Through his Extension work in soils, lime and fertilizer, Miller became well-known throughout Maryland, participating in many meetings and speaking widely on soils and the use of lime and fertilizer.

He organized and participated in many regional lime and fertilizer educational meetings for industry and professional agricultural personnel. Miller also assisted in the development of agronomy short courses at College Park.

In more recent years, he played a leading role in encouraging Maryland farmers to explore the advantages of no-till crop production. Today, Maryland and Delaware lead the nation in the percentage of crop land in no-till, or some form of conservation tillage.

Tickets for the retirement banquet will be $25 each. The cost will include dinner and a retirement gift.

Checks should be made payable to the Miller Retirement Fund and mailed to Dr. Scott Glenn, Agronomy Department, 0115 H.J. Patterson Hall, University of Maryland, College Park, Md., 20742. For further information, call (301) 454-3715.

York no-till drill program

YORK – The York County Conservation District is establishing a no-till drill promotion program in the County. The purpose of this program is to encourage the use of conservation tillage to save soil, soil moisture, and tillage costs for farmers.

The District's goal is to provide access to a no-till drill for interested farmers so they may use the drill on their farm, in their individual soil conditions. Assistance will be provided by the District Conservation Tillage Specialist and cooperating dealers.

The District must first determine level of interest within the York County farming community. If enough interest is generated, the District will finalize negotiations with dealers.

For more information, contact Mark Kimmel, Conservation Tillage Specialist at the York County Conservation District office, 118 Pleasant Acres Road.

Emergency medfly regs established by USDA

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has established emergency regulations to restrict interstate movement of 84 kinds of produce and plants from the Miami area to prevent the spread of Mediterranean fruit flies.

According to Bert W. Hawkins, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, the regulated products could contain eggs or larvae of the fruit fly and could possibly spread the pest beyond the regulated area.

The regulated area consists of about 90 square mils in Dade County, north of Miami.

"This federal quarantine action is substantially the same as the one Florida has imposed on the same area," Hawkins said. "It is designed to contain the pest while we work with the state to eradicate it."

Regulated items include tomatoes, peppers, apples, apricots, avocados, oranges, lemons, cherries, grapes, grapefruit, mangoes, peaches, pears and many other kinds of fruits, nuts, berries, vegetables and ornamental plants.

All fruits and vegetables displayed for sale outdoors in the regulated area must be packaged or covered with plastic or netting so there is no chance for medflies to deposit eggs in them.

"Fortunately, there are no commercial fruit growers in the area and very little commercial activity of regulated produce and plants," Hawkins said. "Right now we are concerned about people bringing tomatoes into the area from farms to the west. The tomatoes could become infested with Medfly eggs or larvae and then be carried out of the area."

The regulations were effective upon publication in the May 8 Federal Register. Written comments may be submitted, until July 8, to Thomas O. Gessel, Director, Regulatory Coordination Staff, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, USDA, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

USDA news, market reports available in computer link

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture will inaugurate on July 1 a new computerized system that electronically transmits news and reports from a single point.

Assistant Secretary John J. Franke said the electronic service will make available for further dissemination such perishable information as USDA market reports, crop and livestock statistical reports, economic outlook and situation reports, foreign agricultural trade leads, export sales reports, world agricultural roundups and USDA news releases.

"With the advances in technology which brought cost-effective computer-based systems and communications within reach, we can no longer rely only on traditional means to disseminate USDA information," Franke said. "The demand for immediate access to current and accurate agricultural data is increasing.

"The new service is designed to respond to the agricultural community's need for immediate access to current USDA information that will help in competing for domestic and world markets," Franke said.

The service will complement, rather than replace, USDA's traditional methods of printing and distributing information. The primary objective is to offer data to those who want and can handle large volumes of information at medium or high computer transmission speeds.

Those who use the service will pay for the direct cost of accessing the information from the computer-based system provided under contract by Martin Marietta Data Systems, Orlando, Fla., which won the contract through competitive bidding procedures.

Grain research emphasized in Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, MD – The University of Maryland's Agricultural Experiment Station (UMAES) and Cooperative Extension Service (UMCES) will conduct tours of small-grains research on May 22 and May 30.

On May 22, the university will host tours of research at its Wye Research and Education Center, near Queenstown. Tours will begin at 6:30 p.m. and will include small grains variety trials, integrated pest management for [illegible] small grains diseases, use of herbicides and herbicide management in double-cropped soybeans, and high-yield-management studies that are underway at the university's center.

Just prior to the Wye tour, participants are invited to the George Towers/Jack Ripley farm on Baker Rd. near Denton, to see firsthand high yield management of small grains at work.

On May 30, the university will host tours of research at 6:30 p.m. at its Poplar Hill research farm, near Salisbury.

There, visitors may tour studies of fungicides on small grains, row spacing, management fertility trials, and high yield management for wheat and barley.

For more information about the tours, call your local county Extension agent. Or, call agent Robert Rouse in Caroline County (479-4619) or agent Wayne Shaff in Wicomico County (749-6141).

State unveils ag hotline

HARRISBURG – The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture today announced the installation of a toll-free 800 number for use by the public in seeking help with agriculture-related problems and concerns.

The hotline number is 1-800-AG-PENNA (247-3662).

Acting Secretary of Agriculture George F. Grode noted that the Department has a great variety of responsibilities relating to agriculture, food and consumer protection and that 800-AG-PENNA can be used to get help with problems as diverse as amusement rides, animal health, dog laws, export sales, family farm development program, farmland preservation, farm marketing problems, food problems, lawn seed problems, pesticide use, plant diseases, plant pests, rabies, questions on weights and measures, and the wide range of services provided by the Department.

Responses to inquiries will be made as quickly as possible. The number will be answered by the Department's Press Office between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. A tape recording will accept calls during non-business hours. The hotline number can be reached from any telephone in Pennsylvania.

Grode stressed that the hotline should be used only by individuals having problems or complaints about agriculture-related issues and services. General agriculture information will be available by calling (717) 787-5085 or any of the Agriculture Department's seven regional offices.

"We are pleased to provide this new Agricultural Hotline Number for use by Pennsylvania farmers and consumers," Grode said. "We hope that anyone having problems or difficulties relating to the many areas regulated by the Department will make use of this new service."

ADA/DC expands "REAL" Seal program

WILLIAMSPORT – Consumer awareness of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council's "REAL" Seal program continues to grow as more and more Seals appear on dairy product packaging. The "REAL" Seal is a consumer identification symbol used to quickly distinguish real dairy foods from imitations in the dairy case.

Over 53 of Pennsylvania dairy processors are currently enrolled in ADA/DC's "REAL" Seal Program.

ADA/DC has used television ads as its primary vehicle for developing consumer awareness of the "REAL" Seal. Two new ads have been produced which welcome consumers to "The Real World of Dairy Goodness." Vincent Price continues to serve as spoke-person for the ads.

The first of the new ads, which is currently airing on television, focuses on cottage cheese. Exciting food photography shows cottage cheese displayed in a number of creative settings. Over 30 different types of fruits and vegetables are shown as serving suggestions.

The second ad has been scheduled to appear during the winter holiday months. A variety of dairy products are featured, including cheese, sour cream, milk and yogurt. Price reminds consumers about the delicious flavor and good nutrition of dairy products.

ADA/DC will invest $685,000 into local market television advertising for the "REAL" Seal program. ADA/DC is committed to increasing consumer recognition of the Seal.

Recent research has shown that over 50 percent of the consumers nationally recognize the Seal. This figure climbs each year due to increased advertising and processor participation.

To back up the consumer advertising, ADA/DC's staff is working closely with product manufacturers to get the "REAL" Seal on their packaging.

Examples of Pennsylvania processors currently qualified to carry the Seal include. Lehigh Valley Farms, Allentown; Hershey Foods Corp., Hershey; Eastern Milk Producers Coop., Canton; Farmers' Coop. Dairy, Hazleton; Pearce Milk Company,, State College; and Valley Farms Dairy, Williamsport

Anyone interested in learning more about ADA/DC's "REAL" Seal program can call the Williamsport office at (717)323-2552 or call tollfree 800-HOT-MILK.

Senate Ag Committee drafting '85 Farm Bill

WASHINGTON – Senator Jesse Helms, Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, announced the Committee has begun the legislative drafting of the 1985 Farm Bill.

Senator Helms said the Committee will be considering S. 616 and related farm bills. The major bills that have been introduced are those by the Administration (S. 501), Senators Helms (S. 616), Cochran (S. 843), McConnell (S. 908), Boschwitz and Boren (S. 1041), and Zorinsky (S. 1051). Numerous other bills reauthorizing portions of expiring legislation will also be considered.

Helms said the Committee will move as quickly as possible to report a comprehensive bill to the full Senate.

"The Committee has held 20 days of hearings on the farm bill, and I think there is a basic framework for consensus," said Helms. "There is general agreement that we must adjust our price supports to become more competitive and allow our agricultural production base to expand and grow rather than continue to contract.

"At the same time, we must provide adequate income protection to producers and target it better during the transition to market-orientation, and we must write an export policy that will allow the U.S. government to stand up for U.S. farmers in the world market."

Block reviews trade issues with Canadian ag minister

WASHINGTON – Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block and Canadian Agriculture Minister John Wise today agreed on several agricultural trade and policy matters at the first meeting since they arranged last fall to meet on a semi-annual basis.

Major items of agreement included:

• Joint efforts at improving agricultural trade relations by encouraging the formation of a U.S.-Canadian horticultural industry advisory group to identify the problem areas and recommend ways of reducing trade frictions.

• A commitment to do what is necessary to improve market access, and reduce trade distortions such as export subsidies.

"Agricultural trade between Canada and the United States is valued at nearly $6 billion a year in Canadian funds, or about $4.5 billion in U.S. currency," Wise said. "Our growing bilateral trade and our respective interests as major agricultural suppliers to the world market make it very important that we meet on a regular basis and maintain our awareness of the situation on both sides of the border."

The two agricultural leaders agreed to meet again this fall, noting that the semi-annual meetings are beneficial for agriculture in both countries. "These meetings give us an opportunity to exchange views on our respective domestic farm policy developments, to address bilateral trade irritants, and to identify ways of furthering our mutual interests in strengthening the world agricultural trade system," Block said.

Other subjects discussed were the U.S. countervailing duty investigation into Canadian hog and pork exports to the United States, the U.S. import quotas on certain products containing sugar, Canada's Western Grain Transportation Act, cross-border trade in potatoes and other horticultural products, health matters in livestock trade, and the status of the 1985 U.S. farm bill.

State grain stocks up 73%

HARRISBURG – Pennsylvania's corn, oats, wheat and barley stocks on April 1 totaled 97.7 million bushels, up 73 percent from 1984, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Stocks on farms, at 85.9 million bushels, were up 80 percent from last year and off-farm stocks at 11.8 million bushels were up 39 percent.

Pennsylvania corn stored in all positions on April 1 totaled 84.6 million bushels, up 86 percent from last year's level of 45.4 million bushels. Oats held in all positions ammounted to 8.0 million bushels, up 24 percent from the 6.5 million bushels on hand a year earlier. Wheat stocks in all positions totaled 4.26 million bushels, up 17 percent from last year's level of 3.63 million bushels.

Pennsylvania barley in all storage positions, at 886,000 bushels, increased five percent from a year ago. Soybean stocks on farms st 2.26 million bushels were almost three times more than last year's total of 766,000 bushels.

U.S. corn stocks in all positions on April 1 totaled 3.96 billion bushels, 22 percent more than the 1984 level of 3.25 billion bushels. Oats in all storage positions totaled 256 million bushels, down five percent from April 1 a year ago. Barley stored in all positions totaled 319 million bushels, 19 percent more than the 269 million bushels on a hand a year ago.

All wheat stored in all positions on April 1 totaled 1.67 billion bushels, five percent less than the 1.76 billion bushels on hand a year earlier. Soybeans in all positions totaled 898 million bushels, up 14 percent from last year.

Ag nominee talks about challenges and the future

STATE COLLEGE — While farm leaders in Harrisburg took turns criticizing and complimenting Governor Dick Thornburgh for his agriculture secretary nomination this week, Dr. Richard E. Grubb, quietly went about his university business at Penn State.

Although the senior university official remained reluctant to grant interviews to the press prior to his confirmation hearings in the Senate, Grubb did agree to speak briefly to Lancaster Farming about some of his general thoughts on Pennsylvania agriculture.

In accepting the nomination last week, Grubb called the opportunity to serve as secretary of agriculture both "an honor and a challenge." When asked about the challenges of the job, Grubb elaborated on some of the larger challenges facing the state's farmers.

Agricultural challenges

"To provide leadership at the state level for the state's most important economic industry is a real challenge." says Grubb. "Farming itself has changed so drastically in the past decade or two, that we have to be very supportive in terms of information and programs."

"It's not enough today to be a good crop manager or a good livestock manager, a farmer has got to also be a good financial manager," he adds.

And in that area of finances, Grubb believes a new challenge has presented itself, partly because of the recent media blitz on farm debt.

"Although farmers in Pennsylvania are under financial pressure, in my own opinion they're in a better fiscal position than the national average," continued Grubb. "For example, I think we have a lower debt-to-asset ratio."

"However, because of the publicity, banks are awfully cautious to lend money to farmers and this creates a cash flow problem.

"This is a real challenge. We have got to build confidence among our banking community, for example."

Other challenges arise, says Grubb, because of the myriad factors that impact on agriculture today.

"Farming's a complex business." states Grubb, "There are many factors involved. Some of them are national, some of them are international in scope, and some are simply reflecting local conditions."

"Then if you look at other factors ... falling or rising land prices, interest rates, shifting markets, surpluses in some commodities and even changes in the world economy can impact on the farming industry."

One specific example offered by Grubb is the country's changing nutritional habits, which are felt directly on the farm.

"You know I about die when I pick up a leading national business magazine and on the cover is a plate with an egg and a strip of bacon.

"And when it talks about cholesterol, you have to ask what impact is that going to have on our poultry industry or swine industry?"

"So farming's a very complex

Richard E. Grubb

business. That's why it's a challenge."

Future looks bright

But these challenges in no way dim Grubb's view of the future of Pennsylvania agriculture.

"If you look at Pennsylvania agriculture, ... I think the future looks awfully bright for several reasons.

"First, look at the diversity of our agriculture, ... and then couple that with what I think is our natural climatic and soil conditions that are so desirable for agriculture."

Then the final ingredient, states Grubb optimistically, is the proximity of the metropolitan markets. "The markets ... are right here at our doorstep, so we don't have the tremendous transportation costs of getting our produce clear across the country," he says.

"You put all those together, the very makeup of our farm community, I think we can compete better than any other state in the nation," he emphasizes.

No specifics now

Other than comments about challenges and the future of agriculture, Grubb refuses to get into specifics on any department programs or current farm issues in the state.

"You know I do have my opinions, but for me to talk about what the department should be doing could be a criticism of what they are doing," remarks Grubb.

"I really shouldn't get into that because I have no official capacity with the department of agriculture. Once confirmed I will be happy to get into these issues," he says.

Refuting the criticism

Paralleling his reluctance to comment on any specific department of agriculture programs or any specific farm issues, Grubb is also very cautious in his remarks about PFA's criticism of Thornburgh's selection.

"The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association is a fine organization," says Grubb. "There are many fine agricultural organizations around the state.

"I think the leadership of the PFA certainly has every right to have their prototype of who's going

(Turn to Page A35)

Blake said they have already contacted the Senate leadership to inform them of the Grange's support of the Grubb nomination.

The state Senate will have 25 legislative days to confirm the governor's nomination. When the Senate reconvenes on May 28th, the nomination will be in its fourth legislative day.

PFA leader Keith Eckel said they will also take their argument to the state Senate and urge PFA members to talk to their senators and lobby for a nominee who can understand the needs of farmers.

When asked who his organization supports for the agriculture post, Eckel said PFA does not want to name other individuals, although the candidate should meet their criteria of activity in production agriculture and knowledge of agriculture issues and the department.

But Moyle, of the governor's press office, said that in discussions prior to the nomination decision, PFA would submit only one name for the post, that of Deputy Agriculture Secretary Chester Heim.

Eckel also denied that he had any interest in taking the nomination. "I believe a farm leader as president of the largest farm organization in the state is a far more effective representative of the needs and interests of farmers."

While PFA and the State Grange took sides on the nomination issue this week, the Pennsylvania Farmers' Union remained neutral on Grubb's selection.

PFU representative Cheryl Cook stated that PFU leaders had no comment about the nomination until they could meet with Grubb and learn more about his qualifications.

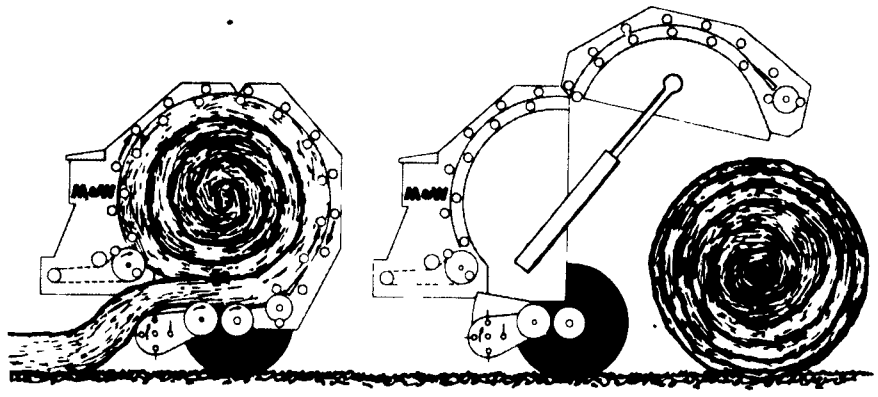
● Enclosed fixed cavity ● Less noise and dust
● No belts to break or stretch ● 30% fewer parts
● Optional patented plastic wrap system



The M&W Round Baler uses an endless conveyer chain to gently roll crops in an enclosed chamber for minimum loss of valuable leaves. The bale is formed with a medium to soft core for better curing and controlled density outer layers to resist weather and retain the round shape. The optional patented M&W PLASTIC WRAP SYSTEM further reduces losses by covering the outer layer while allowing air to circulate through the bale.

Good weather allows early planting

HARRISBURG – Warm dry weather which continued across the commonwealth during week ending May 12 provided five days suitable for farm fieldwork, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. The average temperature was 61 degrees, four degrees above normal, and the average precipitation was .19 inch, .63 inches below normal.

Farm activities included harvesting ryelage and small amounts of alfalfa for silage and hay; plowing; planting oats, corn and potatoes, spreading manure; and spraying herbicides for no-till corn.

Statewide, topsoil moisture supplies were rated short by 42 percent of the farm reporters and adequate by 58 percent. The northern region showed no improvement over last week with moisture supplies virtually the same at 70 percent short and 30 percent adequate. Southern reporters rated soil moisture as 33 percent short and 67 percent adequate. Central reporters rated it 25 percent short and 75 percent adequate.

All stations reporting across the state showed rainfall levels below normal since April 1, ranging from .18 inch below normal in Blairsville to 3.60 inches below normal in Emporium.

Statewide, 96 percent of the oat crop was seeded. This compares to last year's rate of 62 percent seeded and the five-year average of 79 percent sown. Seeding rates of 92 and 97 percent were reported for the northern and central region respectively, while the southern region indicated oat seeding was virtually complete.

Statewide, 53 percent of the corn crop had been planted by week's end, 26 percent above last week. Last year at this time only ten percent of the crop was planted. The five-year average stands at 27 percent planted by this date.

Pennsylvania's spring plowing was 86 percent complete by week's end. This compares to last year's rate of 48 percent and the five-year average of 69 percent complete at this time. The northern, central and southern regions report plowing completion rates of 86, 87 and 85 percent respectively.

Statewide, 78 percent of the potato crop was planted, well above the 40 percent planted at this time last year and the five-year average of 53 percent planted.

Across the state, 32 percent of the barley crop was in the boot stage and 45 percent was heading or headed. This compares to last year's progress of 16 percent in boot and less than five percent in head. Statewide 33 percent of the wheat was in boot and six percent in head, while last year less than five percent was in boot and virtually no wheat was headed. Ryelage is still being harvested, with most rye reported as heading or headed.

Alfalfa stands were rated good by 55 percent, fair by 41 percent and poor by four percent of farm reporters. Some indicated alfalfa stands are short and suffering insect damage. Clo-tim stands were rated fair by 54 percent of reporters and good by 46 percent. Feed obtained from pastures was rated above average by four percent, average by 70 percent and below average by 26 percent of the reporters.

By the end of the week 86 percent of the state's peach trees were in full bloom or past compared with 58 percent in full bloom or past last year. Cherries were reported as 95 percent in full bloom or past compared with 58 percent last year. Statewide, 94 percent of the apple trees were in full bloom or past compared with only 13 percent at this time last year.

Maryland to revise regs on pesticide application

ANNAPOLIS, MD – The Maryland Department of Agriculture has announced plans to revise and update its current regulations pertaining to the Pesticide Applicators Law. The actual proposal calls for the repeal in their entirety of Regulations .01-.22 and to replace them with new regulations.

Significant revisions include:

- Licensing of pest control consultants.
- Record-keeping by all dealers who sell restricted-use pesticides.
- Establishment of a new certification category - Miscellaneous Pest Control.
- Modification of private applicator certification fees and effective certificate period.

Changes will also require all places of business applying pesticides to obtain a pesticide business license; require corporations who apply pesticides to their property to obtain a license; and establish of standards and guidelines for inspections for pests.

An announcement of the proposed change, in its entirety, was published in the Maryland Register, Vol. 12, Issue 9 on Friday, April 26th. Concerned parties have until May 31, 1985 to comment on the proposed actions.

Comments should be submitted in writing to David Shriver, Chief, Pesticide Applicator's Law Section, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, Maryland 21401.

In the Northeast, you grow alfalfa for animals, not insects. That's why it's important to choose an insecticide that will stop nutrition robbing insects.

LORSBAN* 4E insecticide provides excellent control of alfalfa weevils and leafhoppers. LORSBAN 4E controls other destructive alfalfa pests, too, such as alfalfa blotch leafminers, spittlebugs and aphids, to name three.

And because LORSBAN 4E is not a Restricted Use Pesticide it's easier to use, particularly in ground applied treatments.†

Once you compare the performance, the ease of handling and the cost, you'll see why more and more alfalfa growers in the Northeast are switching to LORSBAN 4E insecticide.

†LORSBAN 4E is a Restricted Use Pesticide in New Jersey as required by state law.
Regardless of the insecticide you choose, ALWAYS READ THE LABEL BEFORE USE AND ALWAYS CAREFULLY FOLLOW ALL LABEL DIRECTIONS AND PRECAUTIONS for safe use.

PennMar to discuss purchase of Shamokin Packing

SHAMOKIN — Central Pennsylvania hog and beef producers are invited to learn about the PennMar Cooperative's plan to take over the Shamokin Packing Company and expand its marketing opportunities.

Eugene Eisenbise of Hershey, president of PennMar Cooperative said, "We're looking for hog and beef producers who wish to join our efforts to improve the potential for profitable marketing in Pennsylvania. We're ready to go ahead with plans to purchase the plant and install further-processing equipment to go after the ready-to-eat markets. We've already obtained an option to buy, and have had the plant appraised. We've also adopted a pro forma budget."

Eisenbise said the plant presently slaughters about 500 hogs a day and 20 beef animals. Utilities and zoning are in good shape, he added. "The project is ready to go. All we need is support from producers who are willing to make a commitment to improve markets," Eisenbise said.

Marlin Miller, manager of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association's marketing cooperative PACMA, which is assisting PennMar, will conduct the meeting. "With the demise of several major packing plants over the past few years, it's important for farmers to join together to strengthen and improve the red meat industry here in Pennsylvania," he said.

The PennMar meetings will take place as follows: May 23, 7 p.m. at the Dutch Pantry, Selinsgrove; May 29, 7 p.m. at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster; May 30, 7 p.m. at the York 4-H Center, York.

For more information contact Marlin Miller at 717-761-2740 or Eugene Eisenbise at 717-367-4498.

tinue to deteriorate, many of these solid farmers will eventually have a credit crisis," Maryland National Bank Vice President Robert Miller said, summarizing the thoughts of most of the witnesses.

Although Farmers Home Administration has not had any foreclosures over the past few years, because of administration rulings, "there will be when we have the authority," said Caulk.

Congresswoman Byron asked the lenders if they thought the downward spiral in land values had halted in the Maryland-Pennsylvania area. The witnesses agreed, in fact, that it probably had not.

"Not since the 1930s have we seen such a dramatic and prolonged period of decline in farmland values," Gene L. Swackhammer, president of the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore, said in his prepared statement. "Nationwide, using 1967 constant dollars, the value of farm assets declined by almost $80 billion (over the past four years) by the beginning of this year and we are aware of no one who is predicting that, if left unaddressed, this trend will reverse itself in the near future."

Added Miller: "I don't believe land values have hit bottom yet."

Virtually all the witnesses who addressed the soil conservation topic spoke out in favor of the Soil Conservation Service's efforts.

Jones himself, set the tone in his opening statement, observing, "I can promise you here and now that any budget proposal to destroy the Soil Conservation Service is dead as a hammer, and I'll fight with all my will to see that this nation does not turn backwards on the progress we've made since the days of the Dust Bowl."

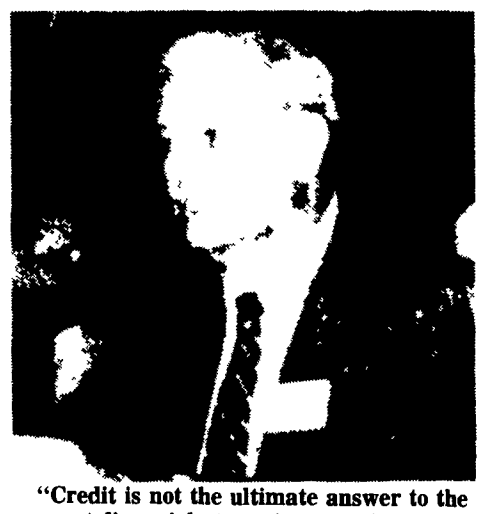
Locals tell Congress what's on their minds

"If farmers got a fair price for what they grew, government intervention through an elaborate credit system would be unnecessary and undesirable."

— Cheryl Cook, Communications Coordinator, Pennsylvania Farmers Union.

"Farmers who voluntarily put part of their cropland into a conservation use are presently penalized when the next diversion program is adopted by having their acreage bases reduced. At the same time, the operator who ignores soil conservation is rewarded by having a larger acreage base for the diversion program."

— David Ball, Manager, Dauphin County Conservation District.

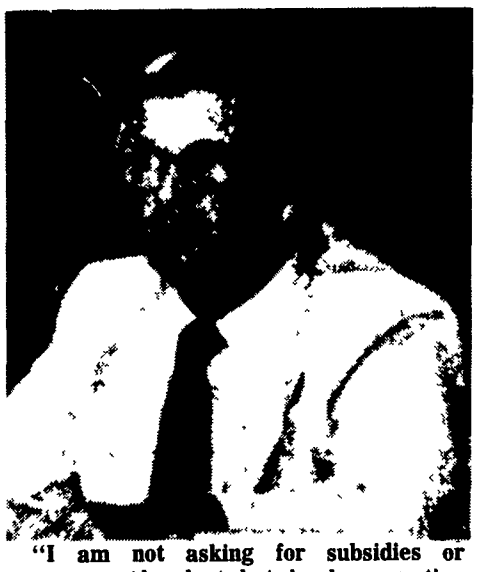


"Credit is not the ultimate answer to the current financial stress in agriculture. We urge you to bring this message to your colleagues in Washington — profitability must be returned to agriculture."

— Gene L. Swackhammer, President, Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore.

"We do not believe that it is right for farmers to plow up highly erodible land and then ask for government assistance when production fails."

— Melvin Durboraw, Congressional spokesman, Pennsylvania Farmers Association.

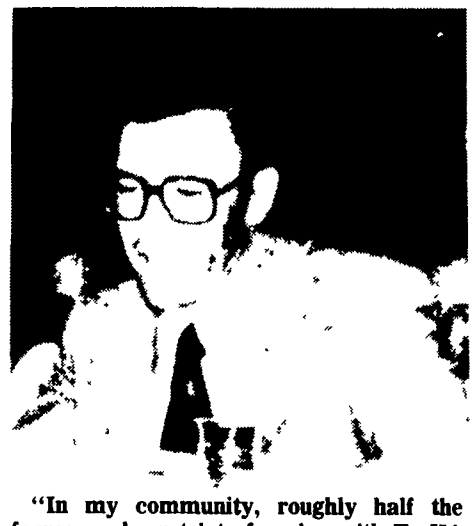


"I am not asking for subsidies or government handouts but simply suggesting additional public investments which will pay dividends. These dividends would be in keeping the soil where it belongs, rather than creating silted streams, rivers and bays."

— Ralph McGregor, East Berlin dairy farmer.

"There is nothing harder for me to do as Secretary of Agriculture in Maryland than to sit in my office and tell a farmer that there is no means of helping him out of his financial problems."

— Wayne A. Cawley Jr., Maryland Secretary of Agriculture.



"In my community, roughly half the farmers who got into farming with FmHA money are now bankrupt; the other half are struggling. In the meantime, FmHA farmers with their lower priced, almost unlimited funds, have driven up the cost of almost everything the rest of us in agriculture utilizes, including fertilizer, equipment, rent and land values."

— Paul McPherson, New Park grain and fruit grower.

"We are confident that every family farmer in Maryland who is eligible under the law for Farmers Home services, and has a possibility of surviving in farming by any reasonable prospect, is going to be able to operate through this year."

— G. Wallace "Pat" Caulk, Maryland Director, Farmers Home Administration.

National All-Jersey honors equitable pricing contributors

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Nearly 200 Jersey dairy farmers representing 28 states will be presented with Campaign Equity's "Five Year Investor Award," at the 27th annual meeting of National All-Jersey Inc., to be held in Lancaster on June 18.

National All-Jersey Inc. is the milk marketing arm of the American Jersey Cattle Club.

The investor awards are given to those dairy farmers who have invested money in National All-Jersey's Equity Program for five continuous years. The awards are in recognition and appreciation of longtime support and promotion of equitable milk pricing.

Started in June 1976, the Equity Program has been a pioneer in promoting and developing equitable milk pricing, a pricing system that includes payment for protein, in addition to butterfat. Today, most major cooperatives and cheese plants price all or part of their milk using some form of "equity pricing." As a result, Jersey dairy farmers received an additional $16 million in 1984.

The Equity Program is also very involved in working towards the adoption of higher minimum standards for fluid milk. The Equity Program is playing an active role in lobbying for minimum standards legislation on both the state and national levels.

Area recipients of the "Five Year Investor Award" include:

Pennsylvania: Henry E. Brenneman, Salisbury; Hillcrest Jersey Farm, of John Hoye and John McConnell, Volant; Leonard Kenyon, Coudersport; Frederic Knepper, Hustontown; Meadow View Farm, of Dawn Rhein, Pine Grove; Ralaine Jerseys, of Ray Sollenbarger, Everett; Harold Riddle, Emlenton; Alex Savakis, Jamestown; Sunset Ridge Farm, of Eugene and Brian Harris, Milan; John Vanderstappen, Fredonia; Robert C. Willaman, Transfer; Windy Acres, of William Eick, Columbia Cross Rds.

Maryland: Duane Norman, Fulton.

New York: Harold Alexander, Union Springs; Milton DeGraw, Groton; Grant Egelston and Sons, Fultonville; Timothy R. Everett, Sharon Springs; Kip Gregory, Salamance; Robert Heaman, LeRoy; Merle Lawton, Newark Valley; Thomas Moore, Hudson Falls; New York State Jersey Cattle Club; Alfred and Frances Partridge, East Durham; and Donald Wilcox, Preble.

Ohio: Raymond Altvater, Wharton; Bar Lee Jerseys, of Tom and Gray Nuhfer, Willard; Lawrence Jerseys, Norwalk; Grand River Jersey Farm, of David Kellogg, Rome; Margandale Farm, of Dale Kauffman, Shreve; Paul McLish, Washington Ct. House; and Neal Schirm, Canal Winchester.

Virginia: Huffard Dairy Farm, Crockett; Clifford Stiles, Tom Brook; Waverly Farm, Clearbrook.

Maryland Food Heritage Day

BALTIMORE, MD — "Maryland Food Heritage Day," a celebration to honor the contribution of Maryland agriculture to the state's economy and history, will be held in downtown Baltimore on September 6 & 7 this year according to committee chairman Edward H. Covell of Easton.

"The first event held last year was so successful, that by demand, we are expanding it to a two-day festivity in 1985," Mr. Covell said. In addition, it will be held in conjunction with the national convention of the United States Power Squadrons being held in Baltimore that week. Over 200 boats from throughout the nation and about 1,000 people are expected to be part of that event.

"Tentative plans call for us opening the activity Friday afternoon on the 6th remaining open until dark and then coming and running all day Saturday," Mr. Covell added.

The 1985 event will be staged on the western end of Rash Field adjacent to the Maryland Science Center. Last year the event was held at nearby Sam Smith Park.

Created in 1984 as a Maryland 350th Anniversary celebration event, the festival featured a fleet of food-laden Cheasapeake Bay Skipjacks sailing into the harbor, Maryland foods prepared and served ont he site and a number of Maryland counties and agricultural organizations presenting displays by the water's edge.

The event is co-sponsored by the City of Balitmore and the Maryland Department of Agriculture and is directed by a committee headed by Mr. Covell.

Any group wishing to participate in the 1985 activity should contact Tony Evans or Helen M. Huber by calling (301) 841-5770.

Get The Only New Technology Available For Cage Systems

Chore-Time's new 20" deep SSS 4-high system puts 33% more birds into the same row lengths as old style 3-high systems - without dropping boards and without a need for greater building width. That means at 6 birds per 16"x20" cage (53.3 square inches) a 52'x536' building can house over 108,000 birds.

But, just as important, with this Chore-Time system you also don't have to sacrifice the features and benefits you've come to expect from Chore-Time: single file egg belt, our all galvanized, SOFT TOUCH' II egg collection, a gentle cage floor slope to prevent checks and cracks...rugged A-frame cage support and legs every 4 feet to protect against cage sag and trough wear and Galv-A-Weld (welded black then galvanized) cage construction for long, trouble-free life... a choice of feeding systems to help you take control of feed costs: Meal Master Feedkar (traveling feed hopper), M.T. (rotating Flex Auger), and NEW Ultraflex (80 ft. per minute circulating Flex Auger).

And, with Chore-Time feeding systems you can take full advantage of the new production-boosting, feed-saving MEAL-TIME® feeding method developed by Chore-Time. Our feeding systems are designed to minimize waste and provide each bird with fresh, Un-Picked-Over feed.

Judging schools scheduled for dairy youth

STATE COLLEGE — The Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association will sponsor three judging schools this summer. The schools are open to all youth, regardless of breed orientation, who are interested in learning more about the basics of evaluating dairy cattle.

School officials this year will be Dr. William Etgin and Dr. Michael Barnes from UPI and Dale Olver from Atlantic Breeders.

The three schools are: Eastern - July 8-9 in Berks County; Central - July 10-11 in Centre County; and Western - July 12-13 in Westmoreland County.

Each school will run from 12:00 noon to 12:00 noon. Cost will be $25 for overnight participants and $15 for commuting individuals. The fee for second members from the same family who are staying overnight will be $20.

To register for the judging schools, your entry should include: your name, address, county, phone number, the school you will attend, and your choice of overnight or commuter participation.

Send your entry and check, payable to the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, to: PHA, 839 Benner Pike, State College, Pa., 16801.

Deadline for entries is June 7.

Sign up judging conference

STATE COLLEGE — The Pennsylvania Holstein Association is sponsoring their 10th professional judging conference on July 25-26. Holstein breeders in Washington County will host this year's conference.

The conference is open to any adult Pennsylvania Holstein enthusiast who would like to become involved in judging Holstein shows on the local, district and regional levels.

The official for this school will be John Morris, well-known teacher and judge from Frederick, Md.

The entry fee is $25, which includes the Thursday evening meal.

Registrations are limited to 50 people and will be accepted on a first come-first serve basis.

To register send your name, address, phone number, county, and $25 to: Pennsylvania Holstein Association, 839 Benner Pike, State College, Pa., 16801.

Hearing set on manufactured milk

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will conduct a hearing to receive public comments on proposed regulations for Manufactured Grade Milk on Wednesday, May 22 at 10 a.m in Room 309 of the Agriculture Building.

The proposed regulations establish requirements for milk manufacturing purposed in accordance with Act 163 of 1982. They are designed to encourage improved farm sanitation in the production of milk for manufacturing, and to establish minimum standards for processing of milk into manufactured dairy products such as cheese and butter

The guidelines were published in the May 4 edition of the Pennsylvania Bulletin. By law, written comments may be accepted for 30 days following publication.

For a copy of the proposed regulations, write the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Foods and Chemistry, Division of Milk Sanitation, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408

Dairy Policy Options for 1985

Target Price-Deficiency Payments Program

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth in a series of nine articles about dairy policy options for 1985. Compiled by Jack Kirkland and Blair Smith, Extension ag economists at Penn State, the articles are written by a variety of national authorities on dairy policy issues.

We are printing these articles to help you better understand and evaluate the policies and programs the dairy industry faces, and to help you take a more effective stand for the program you choose to support as the 1985 Farm Bill is formulated.

For further information about these articles or about dairy policy, contact your Extension agent.

BY ROBERT E. JACOBSON
THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

Since it began in 1949, the dairy price support program has worked so smoothly in most years that we tend to forget that there are other ways of achieving dairy policy objectives. An alternative to purchasing manufactured products to support farm prices would be a target price-deficiency payments program.

What Is a Target Price-Deficiency Payments Program?

Basically, a target price-deficiency payments program is one in which direct payments or deficiency payments are made to milk producers. Since there would not be a Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) purchase program for butter, cheese, and nonfat dry milk, wholesale product market prices would adjust to market-clearing levels.

Producer milk prices would quickly reflect such adjustments. The amount of payment is the difference between the target price and the prevailing market price for producer milk.

Look at an example of deficiency payments that emphasizes the contrast with the present CCC purchase program. Assume that the purchase program is in operation, the support price for milk is $12.31 (3.5 percent butterfat), and CCC purchase prices are $1.43 per pound for butter, $1.35 per pound for cheese, and 91 cents per pound for nonfat dry milk. Further assume that given these circumstances, the Minnesota-Wisconsin (M-W) manufacturing milk price for a given month is $12.40 per cwt.

If the CCC purchase program had been replaced with a deficiency payments program for that same month, let us assume the following responses would have occurred:

1. The $12.31 support price now becomes a $12.31 target price.
2. In the absence of CCC purchases, wholesale prices for (a) butter drop 12 cents a pound, (b) cheese drop 10 cents a pound, and (c) nonfat dry milk drop 6 cents a pound.
3. As a result of the price declines in product markets, the M-W price for the month falls to $11.40, a full $1 lower than the $12.41 reported under a purchase program.
4. With the competitive market price at $11.40 and a designated target price of $12.31, a deficiency payment of 91 cents per cwt. would be made.

Alternative Mechanisms for Implementing Deficiency Payments

The target price for milk could be identical to the support price. It could be established by the same procedure, whether that be parity, dairy parity, cost of production, or some other standard.

Deficiency payments could be designated not just as a means of addressing farm income problems in the dairy sector, but also to control milk production. In the feed grains program, for example, deficiency payments are used as incentives to participate in acreage reduction programs.

In dairy, deficiency payments 1) could be made available only to those producers who voluntarily agree to reduce marketings a certain percentage from a base, or 2) in a mandatory program could be refused to milk producers who fail to limit marketings to an amount below their base.

Some type of a deficiency payments-supply control program would probably allow higher target prices than deficiency payments without supply controls because program costs and effects could be controlled more tightly.

In a similar vein, deficiency payments could be limited or targeted to specific groups. Where deficiency payments have been used for other commodities, a $50,000 payment limit per farm has been specified. With a payment limit, larger dairy operations with production levels that exceed the limit would be at a disadvantage.

As a rule of thumb, deficiency payments of $1 per cwt. on all milk marketed would mean a payments ceiling of approximately 300 milk cows per farm if a $50,000 limit was adopted. At the same time, milk production on smaller and possibly less efficient dairy farms might increase in response to the payments.

Another possibility would be to extend deficiency payments only to milk used for manufacturing. About 40 percent of the U.S. milk supply is utilized in beverage milk products–in Class I– so savings would be proportional.

Class I prices could be established by adding Class I differentials to the target price rather than the market clearing M-W price. Thus, producers in fluid milk markets would receive deficiency payments only on Class III milk and would get the full Class I price on Class I usage.

This transfers part of the cost of farm income supports from taxpayers to fluid milk consumers. There could be periods when Class I prices would be much higher than normal relative to Class III prices.

Conditions Fostering Need for Deficiency Payments

There are several reasons why the target price-deficiency payments approach will be seriously considered. Easily the most important reason is that the market-clearing prices that are basic to this program would be demand sensitive, and lower prices could provide a significant boost to milk and dairy product sales in the long run.

The deficiency payments program would permit products to move through markets on a supply-demand basis, while CCC purchase prices hold wholesale prices up and thereby weaken demand for manufactured products. Also, the price advantage that some substitutes for dairy products now enjoy would be reduced substantially.

Closely linked to the demand stimulus that market clearing prices might generate would be new incentives to promote, merchandise, and market dairy products. The easy option of selling to the CCC would no longer exist. Proprietary firms and dairy cooperatives would be challenged to aggressively seek sales in competitive markets. Without an automatic government market, energies would be directed at expanding demand.

The deficiency payments approach would also link dairy price policy more closely to overall agricultural policy in the U.S. Critics say the dairy program in recent years has gone its own way--parity, purchases, no supply discipline.

Deficiency payments have been a basic tool for cotton, wheat, and feed grains since the early 1970s. By adopting deficiency payments, the dairy sector could become an integral part of a more unified agricultural price-income policy.

A final consideration might be that target prices can achieve the price-income goals of the dairy program more reliably than CCC purchases. For example, in the 1981 through mid-1984 period, the competitive M-W price was usually below the support price by 20 to 30 cents per cwt. A deficiency payments program would not be subject to that kind of slippage because the difference between the target price and the market price would be measured directly and payments to farmers would be made accordingly.

Consequences of Deficiency Payments

In the same way that CCC purchases ran into trouble because of high pro[illegible] 1983, the deficiency payments approach is vulnerable on a cost basis too. For example, if 91 cents per cwt. payments were issued for annual marketings of milk of 135 billion pounds, the dairy program would cost nearly $1.25 billion. When annual milk production is large, market clearing prices would be pushed to lower levels and deficiency payments would move to high and costly levels.

As was discussed earlier, program costs can be reduced by limiting payments or by transferring some of the cost back to consumers, as in the form of higher prices for Class I milk.

A very important short-run concern has to do with the disruption of the manufactured dairy products industry. The CCC purchase program is so institutionalized that processors of cheddar cheese, butter, and nonfat dry milk would face major adjustments if purchases were abruptly terminated. The nonfat dry milk market in particular, the butter market to a lesser degree, and even the cheese market on occasion have become dependent on the CCC as a residual buyer.

Dairy cooperatives have taken on much of the responsibility for handling excess milk supplies in recent years, so they would be challenged to move products commercially and obtain prices for these products that would not disadvantage their members.

If a deficiency payments program was adopted, it might be desirable to phase out CCC purchases or to establish some kind of a market-wide service payment mechanism for all dairy farmers so that an equal cost sharing of the adjustment away from government purchases might be effected.

Devon Horse Show opens Friday

DEVON, Pa. – The elegant and tradition-bound Devon Horse Show grounds will come to life again May 24 as the country's largest outdoor horse show begins its 89th annual nine-day run.

Besides world-class equestrian competition, elegant boutiques, gourmet food and midway amusements, the Devon Horse Show anad Country Fair again will offer special attractions.

This year these will include appearances by the crimson-clad U.S. Marine Corps Marching Band and the Foxfield Drill Team. a group of acrobatic horseback riders who perform incredible stunts without bridles or saddles on their mounts.

The governor of Kentucky, a state renowned for its Thoroughbred breeding, will also be on hand to make a trophy presentation.

Among top riders who will compete in the main ring will be Olympic gold medalist Joe Fargis, his fellow Olympian Leslie Burr Lenehan, U.S. Rider of the Year in 1983; former World Cup champion Michael Matz of nearby Collegeville, Pa., and dozens of others fron the world of show jumping and Thoroughbred competition.

Also represented will be some of the world's best riders and horses in the divisions for gaited or saddlebred horses, those proud, high-stepping descendants of plantation days.

Top riders are drawn this year by doubling of the prize money to $150,000. (Under equestrian rules, amateurs can ride for money which is paid to the owner of the horse.)

Among the sponsors are Anheuser Busch, Inc., Paine Webber, Atlantic Financial Federal and Devon Hill Motors.

Anheuser Busch will sponsor the richest class of the show, the $25,000 Michelob Devon Grandprix, a test of speed and endurance that only the best horses and riders in the land qualify for.

The Grandprix will begin at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, May 30.

Paine Webber will sponsor the $10,000 Open Speed Stake, a jumping event on Saturday night, June 1.

The Foxfield Drill Team, which will appear every night except opening night and Thursday night, is being sponsored by Devon Hill Motors, a BMW/Volkswagon dealership.

Atlantic Financial, Pennsylvania's largest savings and loans association, will sponsor the entire Intermediate Jumper division.

The Marine Corps Drum and Bugle Corp, known across the country for its precision drill and exciting musical arrangements, wil perform at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, May 29.

The Drum and Bugle Crops opens the 30-minute display of military pagentry with a 15-minute drill and concert exhibition known as a "concert in motion."

The Silent Drill Platoon than takes the spotlight to perform its famed 10-minute rifle drill. The presentation concludes as the Marine Corps Color Guard marches into the ring to present the Corps' Colors.

Added attractions include the Valley Forge Military Academy Mounted Drill Team, which performs the complicated movements of their musical ride Sunday evening and is escorted by the Honore Guard of the Anthony Wayne Legion.

The Country Fair, which benefits the Bryn Mawr Hospital, has donated well over $4 million to this worthy cause over the past three decades.

From department stores like Bloomingdale's and Strawbridge and Clothier to pastel artist Winifred Rumble to exclusive boutiques like Ermilio and High Horse, the Country Fair has shopping for everything from designer fashions to horse show souvenirs.

Classic jewelry, imported prints and paintings, valuable antiques and personalized wood carvings are all readily available in the Fair area adjacent to the show ring.

Devon show grounds are located on Route 30 in Devon, Pa.

General admission is $4.50 for adults at the gate or $4.00 if purchased before May 17. Children under 12 are $1.50.

Reserved seating is available. For ticket information call 215-688-2554, Monday through Friday, 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Tickets may be purchased in advance at the ticket office at the show grounds.

ADA will randomly select the names of several stores to check for promotional materials. If the store is not displaying the materials, another entry will be selected.

First prize in the contest is a trip to Mexico, second prize, a Universal gym, and third prize, a camera. A total of 112 prizes will be awarded.

In Pennsylvania 280 kits have been distributed to supermarkets and 504 kits to convenience stores, reported Dairy Marketing Specialist Roberta Bronson.

Shoppers will be exposed to audio dairy advertisements proclaiming "Enjoy more milk, 'cause milk's got more." The familiar jingle will be followed with information on in-store specials at the dairy case, explained Michelle Martins, a dairy marketing specialist with ADA/DC. A similar second ad will feature nutritional information about milk and an explanation about the "REAL" Seal.

"This is an opportunity to tie in the TV and radio promotions," Martins said. "It reaches people right at the point of purchase."

The in-store audio ads offer an opportunity to increase the frequency of ADA's message and cost only about 65 cents per 1,000 shoppers, she continued.

ADA will track sales with a follow-up study that will compare dairy sales in major supermarkets using and not using the ads.

Another form of the audio ads, called radio doughnuts, will be offered to dairy businesses at no cost. These ads are similar to the in-store promotion, but contain a blank space for individual businesses to insert their own messages. ADA provides a professional radio spot, and the business pays for the radio time, Martins explained.

Grocery shoppers aren't the only consumers ADA has targeted for promotion: pizza lovers will see tempting photos of pizzas prepared with real dairy products. ADA/DC representatives have been pounding the pavement to persuade pizza makers to sign a contract to use only real cheese on their pizzas.

In return, ADA/DC provides the producer with materials to help inform customers that they are using real cheese on their pizza. These materials include brightly colored decals for on the door, window or cash register, and table tents displaying mouth-watering pizza photographs.

ADA/DC has developed another contest as incentive for pizza makers to participate in the program. All pizza stores that sign into the program by June 1 will have a chance to win one of four drawings for 200 pounds of mozzarella cheese.

"Our goal is to increase the number of pizza makers enrolled in the program from 600 to 1,000 by year's end," Goslee said. So far, they have 400 signed agreements, with 125 pizza makers representing 151 stores entering the program for the first time. In Pennsylvania, 25 new producers representing 40 stores have signed up.

Transit users in ADA/DC's marketing area will soon be seeing billboards and subway posters that are part of a new outdoor campaign. The billboards, developed by UDIA, display a soccer player on a milk carton, the "REAL" Seal, and the message, "Milk America's Health Kick."

ADA/DC is also working on a promotion with the makers of Oreo cookies. The new ads will feature a striking visual of an Oreo dropping into a glass of frosty milk, said Mark Ellis, an account executive with DMM advertising. By June 4 or 5, the new Oreo ads will start appearing on buses and subways. Nabisco will pay the $60,000 cost of producing the ads and ADA/DC will purchase the media space.

By bombarding the consumer with these ads bearing the same message ADA/DC hopes shoppers will buy more REAL dairy products.

Farm Wives Love the NEW Meyer's 'Wife- Saver' Steel Bale Throw Box!

— but watch it, girls. It's so easy to unload everyone will want your job!

You'll never walk more than a few steps to unload even the last bale. Simply slide the bales on to the conveyor and away they go! There's no more leaning over the elevator to straighten bales

There just isn't room here to tell you all about the new Meyer's Semi-Automatic Steel Bale Throw Box. You'll just have to see it at your dealer.

It's only fair to warn you that once you have seen it, you'll never be satisfied with any other kind!

The best part is it's sold at a price you can afford!

"HERE'S WHY I SELL DUAL®"

There are other grass herbicides on the market, but none of them measure up to Dual. In field after field, year after year, I've watched them all perform. And once a grower sees Dual work in his own corn, soybeans, or sorghum, he's more than likely to stay with Dual.

Why I recommend DUAL:

- Excellent control of the problems like nutsedge fall panicum, and foxtails And it controls black nightshade in beans
- Lasts longer to keep late grasses from spoiling harvest
- Yield Dual delivers excellent grass control which has been proven to be a key factor in yield studies
- Low per acre cost Because Dual rates are measured in pints, not quarts

Finally I support Dual because Dual's the only one helping to get the farmers' message to the public on network television That helps all of us to be in that position. But I'm sure that you're not going to find the perfect individual in terms of background who will truly suit every agricultural organization in the state," states Grubb.

"I think it's important that the secretary of agriculture have input from farm groups. I know PFA's reputation well enough that I think, regardless of who the secretary of agriculture is, those channels of communication will be opened up and the input devices will be there along with every other ag group. Certainly you can't sit in isolation."

But Grubb does emphasis one of the strengths he can offer the agriculture department in the remaining months of the Thornburgh administration.

"I've been in administration for a good many years. I've had major responsibilities at the university, and they haven't all been the same," says Grubb. With the reorganizations the university has undergone, he adds, he has found himself in charge of a whole new division at the university in the matter of a day.

"The reason I've been involved in these (reorganizations) over the years is it doesn't take me six months or a year to get direction and movement. I know how to work with people, I know how to communicate."

"You don't sit and manage in isolation," says Grubb about his management style. "You use the resources you have; you draw the best out of them, you know, get a team and start working."

"I hope to step in and get to know the people I'm working with and be off and running in a very short period," says Grubb about the proposed agriculture post.

"A lot can be accomplished in a year.

Although PFA has criticized the Governor for not selecting a nominee who is currently engaged in commercial agriculture, Grubb is not foreign to the farm.

The Centre County native was born and raised on a beef, hog and general crop farm. Grubb earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees in agricultural economics.

When a product is this good on the inside, it's easy to put your name on the outside.

Month after month, year after year we hear the same thing, farmers using Crop-Sile™ have less shrinkage, less heat buildup, less ensiling time, and more natural appearing and palatable silage

And that's exactly what the research data shows

Tests at a major agricultural college proved Crop Sile * reduced shrink up to 50% — and provided 5% more available crude protein

Crop-Sile's outstanding results — increased crude protein plus silage well protected against excess shrink and fermentation —lowers your cost of off-farm feeds.

Nothing runs like a Deere™

Bingham's Orchard is a family business

BY MARTHA GEHRINGER
Staff Correspondent

ST. THOMAS — Bingham's Orchard near St. Thomas is nestled in the protective shadow of Mt. Parnell, a mountain which helps deflect destructive frosts from fragile apple blossoms. The mountain affects the air movements in the area and acts as a shelter from harsh weather for the Bingham's fruit trees.

The apple is the orchard's largest volume crop, and in deference to the mountain's protection, the Binghams merchandise some of their apples under the brand name Mt. Parnell. They have sold and sent gifts of tray-packed Mt. Parnell apples to all corners of the United States.

While apples are the largest crop, peaches are usually the most important crop based on dollar value. But this year, most of the peach crop was destryed by killing frosts that even Mt. Parnell could not deflect.

It is estimated that the peach crop suffered a 99 percent loss in Franklin County and across much of the east coast.

This year, the Binghams will be pleased if they harvest enough peaches to supply their own fruit market. During an average season, they sell about 35 percent of the peach crop at their fruit market, with some of the fruit being canned and sold under the Bingham label. The remainder of the crop goes directly from the orchard crates to truckers, unpacked and ungraded.

The truckers then take the peaches to markets in Ohio, Michigan and Northwestern Pennsylvania.

After the peaches leave the area, they acquire the label, "Chambersburg peaches." When retailers tell customers they are purchasing "Chambersburg peaches," customers think Chambersburg is the variety instead of the location where they are grown. During peach season many tourists descend on Franklin County in search of the delicious "Chambersburg peaches" they purchased at their local outlets.

Although much of the peach crop has been destroyed this year, the orchardists still have much work to do. They will have to maintain the orchards, pruning, spraying, mowing and fertilizing in preparation for next year's anticipated crop.

Despite the problems with the peaches, the Binghams remain optimistic about their largest volume crop, the apple. Marketing is slightly different with the apple; they mark and grade most of the crop. Some of the apples are held in cold storage for sale year round at the fruit stand. Others are processed for cider and apple butter, which are sold in several outlets other than the roadside market.

The Binghams recently added a cider press to their operation. The press, the first in western Franklin County, is unique in that it came from Italy and was originally designed to press grapes. The press is controlled by a computer and will go through one pressing at the touch of a button.

Family member Billie Dixon helped lay out the plans for the cider making operation and specifically designed the hydraulic apple dumper. They are also using an apple grinder that was developed in New England.

During the busy season, press operator Rod Shields will average 1,000 to 1,200 gallons of cider per day. Last year, he estimates, he pressed 26,111 gallons during the fall season. Even during the off season, the press operates an average of once a week.

Binghams Orchard cider is a high-quality product due to the care taken during the pressing and the careful blending of several varieties of apples. The recipe takes Red and Golden Delicious apples, plus a tart mixer or two such as Stayman.

After pressing is complete, the pulp or apple pumies are sold as a feedstuff to some area farmers since it still contains a high degree of protein.

Their well-known cider is handled for sale at many local outlets in addition to their own fruit market. Other orchardists sell the Bingham's cider under their own labels at their markets.

As in many orchards, Binghams Orchards is a family business. W.O. Bingham started the orchard with seven acres of apple trees in 1912. He processed the fruit by packing it in barrels and loading the barrels on freight cars, which took the fruit to Philadelphia via the railroad.

Gradually more land was cleared and the acreage has increased to the present 300 acres. The increased acreage gave them more room for diversification; today they raise approximately 150 acres of apples and 80 acres peaches, with the remaining acres planted in cherries, apricots, plums and pears.

All of these fruits, plus some not grown on the farm such as citrus and vineyard products, are sold at the roadside market, which W.O. Bingham started in 1928.

During the early days of the business, the Binghams used a cold storage unit with a 7,500-bushel capacity. This cold storage was one reason they were able to remain open all year and to continuously market their fruit.

Growth continued and in 1945 W.O. Bingham turned the business over to his nephew, Billie Dixon, who was working as orchard manager. About the same time W.O. turned over two additional orchards he owned to Billie's sisters. Of these three orchards, two — Binghams and Shatzer's (owned by Wilma Bingham Mickey) — are still in business. The third orchard merged with yet another orchard in the area.

Today three generations of Binghams are involved in the daily operation of the farm. Billie Dixon, although officially retired, works almost everyday with the orchard. He repairs equipment and is consulted on decisions regarding the operation of the orchards.

Betty Kriner, Billie's daughter and present owner, is the overall manager. In addition to the orchard, she operates an antique shop next to the farm market. Bob Kriner, her husband, is employed away from the orchard, but can be found helping at the market or orchard whenever possible.

Bill Kriner, their son, is orchard manager, and Tammy Kriner, Bill's wife, is the fruit market manager. Together they work to keep things running as smoothly as possible.

Their goal for the coming year is to survive the devastation of the peach crop and plan to improve their orchards in the coming years.

Orchard manager Bill Kriner chats with grandfather Billie Dixon, who although officially retired, works almost daily with the operation.

Bingham's apple cider is a high-quality product that is the result of careful blending of different varieties of apples. Pictured here is the entire operation.

Press operator Rod Shield makes an average of 1,000 gallons of cider day with this Italian apple press.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Every vocation has its hazards.

Typists break fingernails. Long-distance truckers complain of indigestion from bouncing around on ragged interstates and bumpy back roads. Computer operators suffer from trying to read endless strings of little flourescent digital numbers dancing across a tiny display screen

Pro-tennis players have terminally sore elbows and we all know about football-player knee. They're even recently diagnosed a chicken-packer-hand problem, an affliction of sore and stiff hands apparently related to lengthy exposure day after day to cold, wet processing conditions.

Dairy farmers are no different.

Bad backs and aching knees are classic ailments of dairymen, due to the constant stopping and kneeling that goes with milking cows Milking parlors, where cows are on raised platforms and milkers stand to work, have helped for some dairy workers

Our daughter and I suffer from another fairly common dairy farm complaint - what we might simply call "milkmaid hands" The disinfectants and detergents demanded by the strict sanitation standards of the dairy industry counter every hand lotion invented it seems And the allergies we've developed to them leave us with dry, cracked skin, never totally free of rash and itching Ivory hands girls" we just aren't

And I recently discovered another health hazard of farming, one I had frequently heard of but never intimately experienced.

Call it livestock eye-tis.

More commonly known as your everyday variety of black eye

The worst case of this affliction I've probably run across was suffered about a year ago by a good friend, when she was soundly kicked in the face by one of those more nervous young cows we all have in the milking string from time to time

Connecting squarely with our friends' face, the cow's powerful hoof left in its wake a broken nose and two severely blackened eyes Although it took quite some time to completely heal, there blessedly was no permanent damage

It was her I immediately thought of two weeks ago when a rambunctious heifer's head squarely connected with my lower forehead, as I leaned over to shake out straw while bedding a heifer pen

Ice applied immediately greatly reduced the pullet-egg-sized knot which arose at once But as it shrunk, it left behind in its wake the most lovely, grape-juice-shade of semi-permanent eye makeup imaginable

The greatest injury was solely to my pride - and not to my eye (I didn't even lose my contact lens) Time-wise, the garden needed attention anyway, as I went into hiding from the public for a few days

For the farmer, it meant suffering a string of accusations about wife abuse

To his defense, he was nowhere even close when Holly the heifer and I collided, and remained unaware of the confrontation until several hours later

Besides, he's not the type of person who would abuse his wife He'll just let me "help" instead

KEEP FOOD PRESERVATION RECORDS

A convenient, yet often forgotten item of food preservation is a "notebook." A written record of specific information will make canning or freezing foods at home easier and provide you with an inventory of all the foods you have on hand throughout the year.

Your notebook or record system might be a file box, a notebook binder, or a partially used note pad. The idea is to keep all the information in one place where you can refer to it easily.

Here are some tips on information you will want to record about the foods you preserve:

- Varieties of fruits and vegetables,
- Amount planted, when planted, time from planting to harvesting,
- Yield (in jars) of amount planted or purchased,
- Amount canned or frozen and date (list by number of jars or packages),
- Quantity of food to fill one canner load,
- Specific notes on processing–time to process one canner load, or blanching and packaging for freezing,
- Time needed to cool pressure canner for specific foods,
- Heat settings on range to maintain proper pressure or rolling boil,
- Favorite recipes.

In addition to having helpful tips on food preservation in an easy-to-find place from year to year, you will find it easier to "rotate" your food supply using oldest foods first, without having to count actual jars or packages. It will also be helpful when making up shopping lists throughout the year. And when someone asks you how much food you canned or froze–you can efficiently report your efforts with the aid of a record book.

BUYING LOWER FOOD GRADES CAN SAVE MONEY

Do you understand Unites States government food grades? You can shop more economically if you do.

Depending on how you plan to use a product, a lower grade may not only meet your needs, but be cheaper as well.

When establishing grades, the USDA considers the product qualities wholesale buyers and sellers look for. Because products with the better grade characteristics bring higher prices, retail food buyers specify certain grades when they place orders. However, consumers do not always see the gradings. Grade labeling is not required by law.

You are most likely to see USDA grades on meats, eggs and butter. However, some fresh produce such as apples and potatoes also are graded, as are certain cheeses and preserves. Grades usually reflect the product's color, shape, maturity and freedom from defects.

For example, USDA Prime beef is the top grade for tenderness and flavor. Prime is best for broiling and roasting because of the meat's marbled texture, but it's rarely available outside major markeet areas. Although marbling, the flecks of fat within the lean that make meat juicy, is more prevalent in Prime and Choice than USDA Good, the latter grade will cost less and can often meet your needs. This lower grade, usually sold under a house name, will become tender after slow, moist cooking.

Top grade products have the high quality appearance and texture that is important for use in specialty meals and dishes. If sunny-side up is the style of the morning, Grade AA or A eggs are especially attractive. But lower grade products are just as wholesome and nutritious. If appearance isn't important, buy Grade B. They sell for less.

Try some flaky pastry

The word pastry brings to mind visions of rich, flaky dough that tempts even the most steadfast of dieters. Delicious as the foundation for pies, quiches, and casseroles, pastry is the perfect way to start a dessert or an entree.

No recipe file is complete without a recipe for the "perfect pie crust." Well, it's time to dig out that dog-eared recipe card again and start topping those pastries with fantastic fillings.

And while you're digging, keep in mind that June dairy month is almost here. If you send your favorite dairy recipe (check out the topics below) to Lancaster Farming, we'll reward your effort with a little gift. We appreciate your generosity in sharing recipes throughout the year, and have selected June as the ideal time to say thanks.

PIE PASTRY

1 cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons each: butter, lard
3 to 4 tablespoons milk

Combine flour and salt. Cut in butter and lard until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle with milk, one tablespoon at a time, mixing until flour is combined. Shape dough into a ball. Roll out on lightly floured surface to form a 13-inch diameter circle. Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry; turn edge under and flute, forming a high rim.

FLAKY PIE CRUST

3 cups flour
1 cup lard
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup cold water

Work flour, lard and salt together with hands, then add the water and finish working together. Makes enough for 4 pie shells.

Mrs. Glenn Love

AMISH VANILLA PIE

½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 tablespoon flour
¼ cup dark corn syrup
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 egg, beaten
1 cup water
1 cup unsifted flour
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ teaspoon baking soda
1/8 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell

Combine ½ cup brown sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, corn syrup, vanilla and egg in a 2-quart saucepan. Slowly stir in water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Let cool.

Combine 1 cup flour, ½ cup brown sugar, cream of tartar, baking soda, salt and butter; mix until crumbly. Pour cooled mixture into pie shell, top with crumbs.

Bake in moderate oven (350°F) 40 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CORNISH PASTIES

Four 9-inch pie crusts
1 pound beef chuck or top round steak, cut into ¼-inch pieces
2 cups diced pared potato
2 teaspoons salt
2 cups diced carrot
1 cup diced onion
1 cup diced turnip
Pepper
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
Water
Milk or cream
Chili sauce or pickles

Heat oven to 350°F. Prepare pastry for two 2-crust pies; divide dough into 4 rounds. Roll 1 round into 12-inch circle; place on one end of ungreased baking sheet.

On half of circle, spoon ¼ each of meat and potato. Sprinkle with ¼ teaspoon salt. On potato, layer ¼ each of the carrot, onion and turnip. Sprinkle with pepper and ¼ teaspoon salt; dot with 1 tablespoon butter and sprinkle with 1 tablespoon water.

Brush edge of pastry with water; fold pastry half over filling, fold and roll lower edge of pastry over top edge; seal and flute. Cut slits on top; brush with milk.

Repeat with remaining pastry rounds and filling, placing second pastry circle on other end of baking sheet and remaining 2 circles on a second baking sheet. Bake 1 hour. Serve hot or cold with relishes.

JIFFY TARTS

Heat oven to 450°F. Prepare pastry for one 9-inch pie. Divide dough into 8 equal parts; roll each part into round. Fit rounds over backs of muffin cups or small custard cups, making pleats so pastry will fit closely. Prick throughly with fork to prevent puffing; place on baking sheet.

Bake 8 to 10 minutes. Cool before removing from pans. Fill with your choice of the following fillings and garnish as desired.

- Favorite flavor of pudding.
- Scoop of ice cream topped with favorite dessert sauce.
- Scoop of ice cream topped with fresh or frozen (thawed) fruit.
- Sweetened fresh or well-drained canned fruit.

Creamy-rich Sweet Spanish Onion Quiche features the luscious flavor of sweet Spanish onions, chopped spinach, bacon and swiss cheese, tucked inside a flaky pastry.

SWEET SPANISH ONION QUICHE

1 9-inch pie shell
1 large sweet Spanish onion (3 cups chopped)
4 slices bacon
1 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach
¾ cup grated Swiss cheese
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
Dash nutmeg

Bake pie shell in 375°F. oven for 7 minutes, until partially done. Peel and chop onion. Cook bacon in skillet until crisp. Remove and drain on paper towel. Add onions to bacon drippings in skillet and saute until soft, but not brown.

Cook spinach according to package directions, omitting salt. Drain thoroughly, squeezing out excess moisture. Crumble bacon. Layer onion, bacon, spinach and cheese in partially baked pie shell. Combine eggs, milk and seasonings, Pour over onion mixture. Bake at 375°F. for 35 to 40 minutes, or until knife inserted in center comes clean. Let stand 5 minutes. Cut in 6 wedges to serve as an entree, or 15 to 18 wedges as appetizers.

BEEFY QUICHE

1 9-inch pie shell
6 eggs, beaten
½ pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion OR 2 tablespoons instant minced onion
1 11-ounce can condensed tomato bisque soup OR 1 10¾-ounce can condensed cream of tomato soup, undiluted

Brush pie shell with small amount of the beaten eggs. Prick bottom and sides with fork. If using metal pie pan, bake shell in preheated 450°F. oven until golden brown, about 5 minutes. If using pie plate, bake shell at 425°F. Cool on wire rack. Reduce oven temperature to 375°F. for metal pan or 350°F. for pie plate.

In large fry pan over medium heat cook ground beef and onion together until beef is lightly browned. Drain well and sprinkle into pie shell. Beat together eggs and soup until well blended. Pour over beef mixture.

Bake in preheated oven until knife inserted near center comes out clean, 30 to 35 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

APPLE CREAM PIE

Crust:
1 1/8 cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening, chilled, divided into 4 pieces
1½ tablespoons butter or margarine, chilled
1½ to 2 tablespoons cold water

Blend together flour and salt. Add shortening and butter and mix until it resembles coarse meal. Add cold water, 1 tablespoon at a time, until dough begins to form a ball.

Chill dough in refrigerator 15 minutes. Roll to 1/8 inch thickness between waxed paper. Fold into quarters; ease into 9-inch pie plate and unfold, pressing firmly against bottom and sides. Trim and crimp edges.

Filling:
4 medium tart apples, peeled, cored and quartered
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream
1 egg
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
Walnut Crumb Topping

Slice apples. Sprinkle with lemon juice and arrange in pie shell. Mix cream, egg, sugar, flour and salt. Pour mixture over apples and sprinkle with Walnut Crumb Topping.

Bake at 450°F. for 10 minutes; reduce heat to 350°F. and bake 35 minutes longer. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Walnut Crumb Topping

¾ cup whole walnuts
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup all-purpose flour
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Coarsely chop walnuts. Add brown sugar, flour, butter and cinnamon. Stir to combine.

Featured Recipe

May is egg month and the American Egg Board provides us with this week's featured recipe. Many recipes include eggs in the list of ingredients, and the Popover recipe below is no exception. A very hot oven creates the steam inside the batter that "pops" bread to magnificant heights.

Homemakers take pride in serving them on special occasions, and some elegant restaurants have made them their trademark.

Popovers

3 eggs
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt

In small mixing bowl, beat eggs at medium speed until foamy. Blend in milk and butter. Add flour and salt. Beat at low speed until smooth, about 3 minutes. Fill greased popover pans, muffin cups or 6-ounce custard cups half full.

Bake in preheated 425°F. oven until brown and firm, 35 to 40 minutes. For crisper popovers, prick side of each with wooden pick and bake 3 to 6 minutes longer. Remove from pans or cups immediately.

QUESTION - Nancy Kramer, Newmanstown, would like recipes for fruit deserts that use only fruit She says she isn't looking for cakes or cobblers with fruit

QUESTION - Grace Ikeler, Bloomsburg, would like a recipe for Lebanon sweet bag bologna.

QUESTION - Annie Kauffman, Honey Brook, would like a recipe to can pizza sauce that tastes like the kind made from Mrs Wages Pizza sauce mix bought in stores.

QUESTION - Fran Westfall, Spring Grove, would like a recipe for heavy cheesecake made without cream cheese with a pie dough crust. The cake can be served with pineapple or with apples or raisins and cinnamon.

ANSWER - Nancy Farabaugh, Ebensburg, had requested recipes for flavored butters. Thanks go to Charlotte Caule, Boswell, for the following recipes.

Grape Butter

1 quart grapes
1 pint sugar
3 tablespoons water

Cook together 25 minutes Put through a colander Put in jars and seal

Pumpkin Butter

3½ cups cooked pumpkin
4½ cups sugar
1 tablespoon pumpkin pie spice
1 box powdered fruit pectin

Measure the pumpkin into a large saucepan Add the spice and pectin and mix well Place the mixture over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil Immediately add the sugar and stir. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 1 minute Stir constantly. Remove from heat and ladle into glasses. Seal with paraffin.

Pastry

STRAWBERRY SOUR CREAM PIE

1 9-inch baked pie shell
⅔ cup sugar
⅔ cup all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
4 eggs, separated
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
¾ cup dairy sour cream
1 cup sliced fresh strawberries
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup sugar

Combine ⅔ cup sugar, flour and salt in a 2-quart saucepan. Gradually stir in milk until smooth. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and mixture comes to a boil. Boil and stir 1 minute. Remove from heat and stir a small amount of hot mixture into egg yolks; return all to saucepan. Cook over low heat until thickened, about 2 minutes. Do not boil. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Gently fold in sour cream, a small amount at a time. Cover and cool to lukewarm.

Meanwhile, line bottom of pie shell with strawberries. Spoon filling over strawberries. Preheat oven to 350°F. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until frothy. Gradually add ½ cup sugar and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Spread meringue over filling, making sure that meringue covers filling completely and is sealed to crust. Bake until lightly browned, about 5 minutes. Remove from oven and chill 3 to 4 hours before serving.

Peach Bottom man wins dairy judging contest

FORT ATKINSON, Wis. – With a perfect score, H. Thomas Kirk, 24, Peach Bottom, won first place and $100 in the senior division of the 1985 Hoard's Dairyman Cow Judging Contest. Kirk operates a dairy farm with his parents, Francis and Ethel.

The judging contest is sponsored each year by Hoard's Dairyman, a national dairy farm magazine. The 55th annual contest attracted 96,924 contestants from all 50 states and 35 foreign countries.

Kirk was one of four of the 15,411 senior contestants to receive a "perfect 500" score. The odds of getting a perfect score in the contest are 1 in 7,962,624. Kirk was determined the winner based on his reasons for placing the classes the way he did.

Born and raised on his parent's Lancaster County dairy farm, Kirk is a 1979 graduate of Solanco Senior High School, Quarryville. He was a member of the Solanco FFA chapter, holding the offices of president, vice president and secretary.

He also was a member of the local FFA judging team for four years, placing third in the Pennsylvania FFA Dairy Cattle Judging Contest in 1977 and 1978, and first in reasons in 1978. His team placed first, and he was sixth high individual, at the 1979 Eastern States Exposition.

Kirk and his parents farm 365 acres and manage a herd of 100 registered Guernseys. The milking herd averages 14,400 pounds of milk and 660 pounds of butterfat.

The contest involves judging pictures of four cows from each of the five dairy breeds. A different breed is featured on the cover of five consecutive issues of the magazine. Nationally know dairy cattle judges make the official placings and the contestants are graded accordingly.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Holiday breakfasts to make ahead

Memorial Day and Father's Day are coming up soon. If you are planning for weekend company, a breakfast dish that can be made ahead is a quick and easy morning meal. Serve these Egg Stratas with fruit salad and sweet rolls or a coffee cake for a delicious company breakfast or brunch.

Egg stratas, if you are not familiar with them, are layered casseroles of eggs, cheese and other ingredients. Most are refrigerated several hours or overnight before cooking.

Stratas, like other casseroles that can't be stirred, need to be microwaved on medium power for even cooking. On high power, the edges or corners get hard (overcooked) before the center is cooked and set.

If you've made stratas in your range oven, the microwave versions will be less brown on top. Sprinkle grated cheese or paprika on top for more color. Or, put the casserole under an oven broiler during standing time to brown the top.

Egg and Cheese Strata

5 slices of bread, cubed (about 3½ cups)

2 cups (8 ounces) cheddar cheese, shredded

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

½ teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon dry mustard

½ teaspoon paprika

4 eggs

1 ¾ cups milk (or for richer flavor, use one 12-ounce can evaporated milk)

1. Layer half of the bread cubes, 1¾ cups cheese (reserve ¼ cup for topping), and the remaining bread in a flat 1½-2-quart casserole (such as a 9-inch round cake pan or a 10"x6" utility dish).

2. Melt margarine or butter in a 4-cup measure or small mixing bowl. Stir in salt, mustard and paprika, then add eggs and milk, beating until well mixed.

3. Pour egg mixture evenly over the bread layers. Gently press cubes down if they float up. Sprinkle remaining cheese on top. Cover and refrigerate overnight or for several hours.

4. Microwave, covered, on high power for 10 minutes, rotating pan ¼ turn after 5 minutes.

5. Rotate pan again, and cook on medium (50,5) for 10 minutes longer, until the center is set on the bottom. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Serves 4-6.

HINTS: Vary the flavor of this recipe by adding one of these: ¼ cup chopped scallions, mushrooms, or green chilies; ½ cup chopped cooked ham; or 5-6 slices cooked and crumbled bacon. Layer the optional ingredient under the cheese layer in Step 1.

For a browner top, microwave on high power for 10 minutes, rotating the pan after 5 minutes. Then bake the strata, uncovered, in a range oven at 350°F. for about 20 minutes, until browned and set in the center.

The Farmer's Strata below isn't a true strata, since it is not layered. However, it has the same flavor and appearance as a strata when cooked. With meat, potatoes, eggs and cheese in the recipe, you have a hearty and filling breakfast casserole.

This casserole is also good served with a green salad for a light supper dish. Or fix it the night before an extra busy morning, and you can "feed the men" in a snap!

Farmer's Strata

¼ cup chopped onion (1 small)

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

12 ounce package frozen hash brown potatoes, about 3 cups (OR use 3 medium peeled and shredded raw potatoes)

1/3 cup milk or cream

1 cup (4 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese

1 cup (4 ounces) diced cooked ham

½ teaspoon salt

½ teaspoon pepper

Paprika for topping, if desired

1. Saute onion in butter in a 9-inch round cake pan (or a 10x6-inch utility pan) for 3 minutes on high, until the onion is tender. Stir once halfway through.

2. Add potatoes, cover with a lid or plastic wrap and cook on high for 6 minutes, stirring once, until the potatoes are cooked.

3. Beat eggs, add the remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pour over potatoes and stir gently to mix. Recover with plastic wrap.

4. Cook, covered, on medium (50,5) for 15 minutes until the center is set. Sprinkle with paprika and let stand covered for 5 minutes before serving. Serves 4-6.

TO PREPARE AHEAD: Complete through Step 3; refrigerate covered overnight. Cook, covered, on high for 5 minutes, rotate dish, then continue with Step 4 above.

VARIATIONS: Use swiss cheese instead of the cheddar. Substitute 1 cup cooked and crumbled sausage, or 6 slices cooked and crumbled bacon in place of the ham.

NOTE: The cooking times above are for microwave with 600-700 watts of cooking power. For 500-600, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500, add 20 seconds.

MICRO/CONVECTION OWNERS: These recipes cook well in a micro/convection or combination oven at 350°F. (with microwave on). However, since each brand of oven cooks so differently from the others, I cannot give you the exact cooking time. Look for similar recipes in your oven's cookbook.

Kid's Korner

Today's Gypsies are centered in Europe

GRANADA, Spain – Speak of Gypsies, and most people still picture caravans around campfires and fiery, dark-skinned wanderers earrings and bandannas, playing tambourines and guitars, telling fortunes, and sleeping under the stars

Gypsies are either romanticized or branded as thieving vagabonds. Author Jan Yoors calls them that ' race of strangers who have lived among us for centuries and remained apart " Many people today wonder if they have vanished from the earth.

Outside Granada's Hotel Alhambra Palace, a woman wrapped in a shawl with her infant takes a single red carnation from a bunch of flowers and begs the American, "Senora, por favor...for the baby." She's Gypsy. A man waits to shine someone's shoes. He's Gypsy.

Flamenco In Caves

At night in the whitewashed caves of the Sacromonte, Gypsy girls in flounced skirts take turns dancing the flamenco for busloads of tourists. The caves, hollowed out of the hill, once sheltered hundreds of outcast Gypsies. The shiny copper pots and pans that cover the ceiling and walls are reminders of the days when many Gypsies made their living as coppersmiths and tinkers.

At various intersections across southern Spain, when traffic lights turn red, Gypsy women with rags rush up to cars to clean the windows. Boys beg for pesetas.

The Spanish Gitanoes, promoted as tourist attractions even while scorned for their squalor, are easily encountered by travelers in southern Spain It is estimated that there are more Gypsies in Spain than in any other Western European country – between a quarter and a half million

"Most Americans tend to think all Gypsies are floating around in Spain dancing the flamenco," comments an American Gypsy.

Around the world, Gypsies may not be as visible as they once were Nomadism is outlawed in most places, and most Gypsies have settled down In England, for example, Gypsies are not allowed to stop anywhere except at official caravan sites, usually located at the worst parts of town, near city garbage dumps or in condemned neighborhoods.

Gypsies everywhere still usually live on the outskirts of society, and generally are illiterate and poor But they have held fiercely to their Gypsy ways, are beginning to fight for their rights, and are actually increasing in numbers, experts agree.

Exactly how many Gypsies there are in the world today no one knows for sure. Estimates range from seven million to 11 million, says Ian F. Hancock, U.S. delegate to the United Nations for the World Romani Union, which represents Gypsy organizations in 27 countries. Hancock was born in England of a Hungarian Gypsy family and is now a professor of linguistics and English at the University of Texas.

Centered In Europe

Gypsy populations are still centered in Europe, with the largest concentrations in Eastern Europe, particularly in Yugoslavia, Romania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, and the Soviet Union. In Yugoslavia, where Gypsies are striving for national minority status, there are whole towns of them. In Hungary, their numbers are increasing rapidly.

On the road to the springtime Appleby Fair, these Gypsies in England obviously hope to sell this old-style caravan. As more and more Gypsies settle down or travel in motorized vans, the decorated wooden caravans are prized mainly by collectors. Buyers come to the fair, where selling horses is a featured attraction.

Within Europe, Gypsies are roughly divided into the Gitanos of Spain, the Manouche of France, the Sinti of Germany and Italy, the Romnichals of Great Britain, the Rom in Eastern and Southern Europe, and the Boyash in Romania. The Rom are further split into "nations," grouped by traditional occupation or place of origin. The Kalderasha, for example, were originally coppersmiths.

Sizeable groups of Gypsies are also found in the Middle East and Northern Africa – in countries along the original Gypsy migration routes to Europe, especially in Iran and Turkey. The only other region of the world with significant numbers of Gypsies today is the Americas, notably the United States, Canada, and Brazil

Even in the United States there are no exact statistics in Gypsies. Estimates range from 50,000 to 500,000, even up to a million, most living along the East and West Coasts, in the biggest cities: New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles. Only 6,322 persons listed "Rom" (the name many Gypsies prefer) as their ancestry on 1980 U S Census forms, but that number is generally acknowledged to be far too low. A Hungarian Gypsy, for example, may report as simply Hungarian.

Or may not report at all. Gypsies everywhere are fearful of filling not official forms. There also is the problem of identifying who is Gypsy. Gypsies don't even agree among themselves. Some groups don't consider others "real Gypsies." And the Gypsies who have remained nomadic don't count the sedentary groups as real

Origins Remain Clouded

Where did all the Gypsies come from? Out of the East -- from India, most scholars agree today It had been believed, even among many Gypsies themselves, that their origins were in Egypt, hence their Gypsy name, which was derived from the earlier English designation 'Gypcian, shortened from Egyptian.'

"It's still somewhat of a mystery," Hancock observes. "There's no real recollection within the Gypsy community, nothing handed down even orally." Scholars have traced their roots to India chiefly through their Romani language, which is akin to the classical Old Indic literary language, Sanskrit.

Ancient inscriptions place Gypsies in central India about 280 B.C. "That's about as far back as we can go with any certainty," Hancock says. The Gypsies' predominantly dark skin and hair and their tradition of "marime," or taboos, also point to an Indian ancestry.

Their long westward wanderings did not begin until about 1,000 years later from northwestern India. Why the Gypsies left India is still uncertain.

Because of language variations, most scholars conclude there was not one mass exodus, but perhaps as many as three separate migrations, moving in different directions, from about A.D. 800 to 1000. The record of early Gypsy wanderings is confused, but some of the first groups did settle in Persia and Syria, and later in Anatolia, or Asia Manor.

The conquering Ottoman Turks swept the Gypsies into the Balkan Peninsula early in the 14th century. Some groups were enslaved, but others journeyed farther across Western Europe, arriving in Germany by 1407, in Russia and the British Isles about 100 years later. Gypsies who reached Spain in the mid-15th century may have crossed from North Africa, and may have been one group that did pass through Egypt.

In Europe, Gypsies were eventually treated as outcasts, hounded and persecuted for centuries, banished from some countries, even put to death by hanging.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

I'd like to share with you some entries from a farm girl's diary. They were written in 1910 and 1913. Life was different then as you can surmise from this notation--"Clarence's 17 hens laid 16 eggs."

She says the Uncle Harry Engle brought a new separator to their farm. For those who might not understand, this was a machine that separated the cream from the milk. I well remember the noisy one that my Grandmother Shreiner had in her back kitchen. One March day in 1910 they churned 35 pounds of butter.

This farm girl's father clerked sales in the winter and when spring came the men filled the lime kiln and the next day started the fire. Here again, maybe some explanation is necessary. The kiln is a great outdoor "oven" built into a hillside. In it was placed raw limestone on a large pile of wood. This was then covered with clay and set afire. The temperature had to reach 850 to 1000 degrees Centigrade. The lump lime that was produced was spread on the fields to make them more productive.

On May 9th they planted tomatoes and then on May 11th there was ice on the water trough used for the horses. I'll bet the tomato plants looked sad. That spring of 1913 it was necessary to close the school because of a measles epidemic. Two of her brothers were teaching school and another took an examination to go to high school.

In the summer they traveled to New York City where a brother was enrolled in Columbia University. They toured the town and then took a boat trip up the Hudson River to visit an uncle and aunt near Albany.

In the fall they boiled 20 crocks of pear butter and put beets, turnips, carrots, parsnips, radishes and salsify in the root cellar. It was their replacement for our freezers. That November Jonas Nissley came to "smell water." I'm sure this rather odd entry meant that they needed a new well and he would try to tell them the best place to dig.

In December they baked fruit cakes and a brother came home from Penn State. Also a sister and her classmates, from Millersville Normal School, came for a meal. They had a big family to gather together for Christmas.

Md. 4-H'ers get new headquarters

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – The 40,000 young people who belong to Maryland 4-H clubs will soon have a new state headquarters at The University of Maryland.

Construction of the Maryland 4-H Club Foundation Inc. building should begin by early next year, announced Dr. Frank L. Bentz, UM vice president for agricultural affairs.

The 4-H headquarters will be located at the intersection of Metzerott Road and University Blvd. This will be adjacent to the site of the University's proposed Veterinary Science and Research Center.

In addition to acting as a central meeting place for club members, the building also will serve as a training facility for the 4,000 adult volunteers who help 4-H'ers learn about animal sciences, horticulture, nutrition and health.

Though originally designed as an informal education program for farm youth, 4-H today draws almost two-thirds of its membership from Maryland cities and suburbs. Open to young people between the ages of 8 and 18, 4-H is a youth program of The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

Financial support for the new building came from the Maryland General Assembly, which voted during the 1985 legislative session to set aside $525,000 for construction costs.

"The state legislature realizes that 4-H plays a tremendous role in helping Maryland's young people learn new skills and become responsible adults," says Maryland Delegate Pauline Menes (D-21st), who introduced the funding legislation. "We're sure that the tax dollars we've invested in 4-H will yield a significant return."

Other key supporters of the state headquarters included delegates Timothy F. Maloney (D-21st) and Thomas J. Mooney (D-21st); delegate Clayton Mitchell, chairman of the Appropriations Committee; and senators B.W. Mike Donovan (D-25th) and Thomas Miller, Jr. (D-27th.)

"The state's support of 4-H could not have come at a more opportune time," says Grove Miller, president of the 4-H Foundation, a private, fund-raising organization that supports 4-H. "Our volunteer enrollment is on the rise. We are reaching a more diverse group of young people. The time for a central headquarter is now."

Lebanon quilters prepare for June 8 show

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

SCHAEFFERSTOWN – If you're a quilt fancier, the Lebanon Quilters' Guild has a treat in store for you. On June 8, the Guild is sponsoring a quilt show and contest at Historic Schaefferstown which will feature 100 quilts in eight categories.

According to Marlene Williams, one of the show's organizers, the Guild is accepting the first 100 quilts, limiting the number because of the space available in the barn on the original Alexander Schaeffer farm. The quilts will be displayed on clotheslines in the main upper portion of the barn.

The show is open to anyone, and already there have been entries from neighboring areas in Pennsylvania. There is a limit of one quilt per person per category, and first, second, and third place ribbons will be awarded in each category. Judging will be done by a panel of four judges selected on the basis of their expertise in various areas.

The show was organized because members of the Guild wanted to see work from the community, according to Hetty Wengert, another one of the organizers. She added, "We wanted to have one because of all our enthusiasm."

Indeed, Guild members are not lacking for enthusiasm, and seem to enjoy quilting above all else. Lynn Trump wore a T-shirt which proclaimed, "Quilting forever–Housework whenever." At the group's urging she shared some of her "quilting" philosophy, including "Dust is a protective covering for furniture" and "We may skip a meal but never a stitch."

Calling quilting an art form, Kitty Zackey, who also teaches quilting, said, "I find it very satisfactory." Then she adds with a laugh, "We don't do housework."

She went on to explain that the judges will be looking at the quality of the workmanship, choice of color, choice and suitability of fabrics.

Most of the quilts to be displayed will be modern quilts, but there are already some antique quilts entered. For this show there is no time limit on when the quilt was completed.

Kitty points out that the chance to enter a quilt in a show and contest is an excellent learning opportunity. She noted that the judges at this show will offer private critiques on each quilt. "That will be very helpful," she noted.

It is evident that many Guild members are relatively young, many with pre-schoolers. Nevertheless, quilting is an important craft for them and they are eager not only to share their ex-

Marlene Williams, left, and Hetty Wengert display a dahlia pattern quilt in the log house, a perfect setting for the beauty of a quilt.

Louise Bell demonstrates the quilting technique using a hoop, a very popular replacement for the more traditional and larger frame. Louise is working on a Log Cabin design quilt, and is shown here in the log house at Historic Schaefferstown.

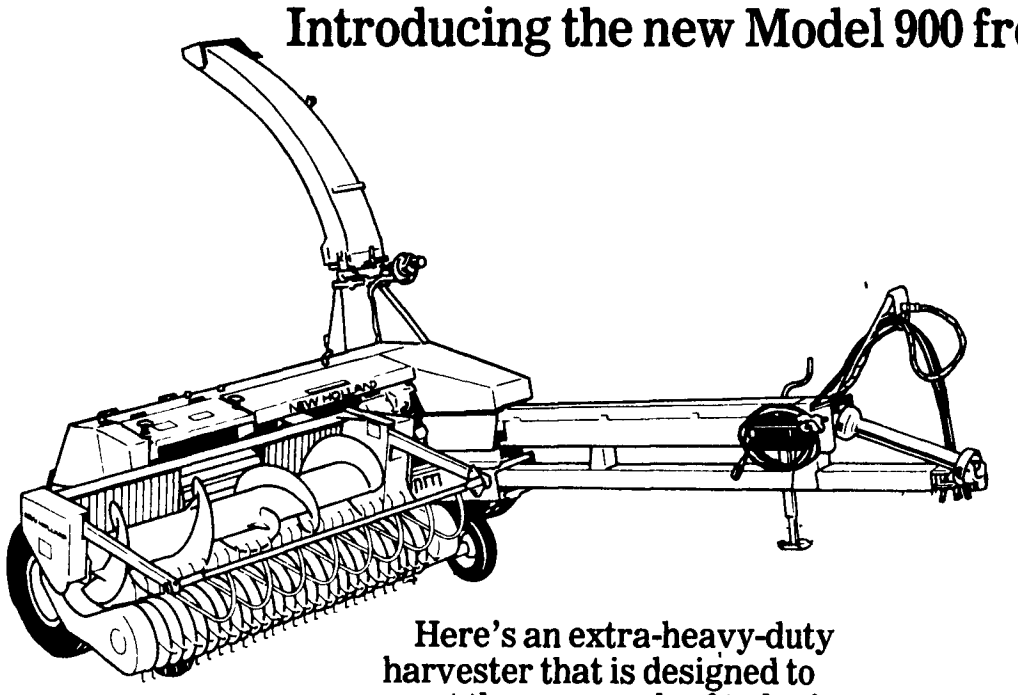
EXTRA CAPACITY. EXTRA PROTECTION.

Introducing the new Model 900 from Sperry New Holland



Here's an extra-heavy-duty harvester that is designed to meet the new needs of today's big crop producers. With the Model 900 you can hitch up to more horsepower and move into your crop with confidence.

Feature Flexibility

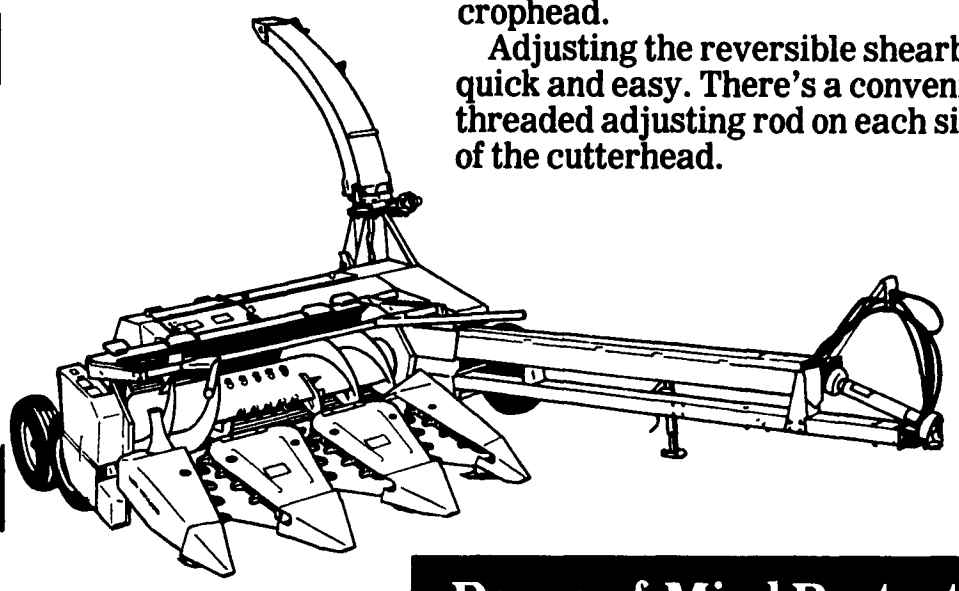
The new Model 900 comes to you with a greater range of feature flexibility so that you can choose the equipment that is exactly right for your operation. Important practical options include:

- Hydraulic swing tongue
- Slip clutch feedroll protection
- Two-speed blower
- Electromagnetic clutches on gearbox
- Tandem wheels
- Truck rims
- Electronic metal detector

Maintenance Made Easy

Maintaining the Model 900 in top chopping condition is easier than ever before. The flip-up feedroll design allows easy access to the shearbar and scraper without removing the crophead.

Adjusting the reversible shearbar is quick and easy. There's a convenient threaded adjusting rod on each side of the cutterhead.



Powerful Performance

Performance starts with the 1,000 rpm driveline. It's rated at 190 PTO or 210 tractor horsepower. The massive twelve-knife cutterhead is 21 inches in diameter. Hardened alloy knives have tungsten edges to reduce knife-sharpening chores.

Energy-Saving Efficiency

You get smoother feeding and controlled chopping, thanks to the new crop-control design, which allows the feedrolls and cutterhead to work as one unit for minimum material loss and low power needs. Under-knife baffles and auger baffles keep your crop flowing after it is chopped to reduce cutterhead carryover.

Peace-of-Mind Protection

METALERT® II is a new generation electronic metal detector that gives you a five-year guarantee against cutter-head "blowups" caused by ferrous metals. More important, it keeps dangerous bits of iron and steel out of your feed.

DON'T BE FOOLED BY IMITATIONS - NO OTHER FORAGE HARVESTER IS EQUIPPED WITH SPERRY NEW HOLLANDS EXCLUSIVE METALERT II

HERE'S HOW METALERT II WORKS

1. Both front feedrolls are made from stainless steel. Housed inside the lower feedroll are a magnet and sensor. The magnet emits a constant magnetic field between the two front feedrolls.
2. When stray metal disrupts the magnetic field, the detector immediately sends a signal to a solenoid which releases a spring-loaded stop pawl into the ratchet wheel. The feedrolls and crop-head drive stop immediately, before the metal reaches the cutterhead.
3. Electric remote controls have built-in alarm light and horn to warn when a detection is made and feedrolls are disengaged. The feedroll control switch is used to reverse the crop.

After the metal is removed, the system resets automatically.

See your Sperry New Holland dealer and ask to see the new Model 900. You won't find a forage harvester that works as well for you.

The next meeting will be at the Water Street Rescue Mission at 1 p.m. on June 8. Later in the afternoon, the group will go to the home of Francis Greenawalt, Conestoga.

Berks Society 12

Berks Society 12 recently met at the home of Rita Stump, Bernville. Gail Malsburg gave a course in counted cross stitch.

The group helped at a game party for the residents at Berks Heim. They also attended the volunteer appreciation dinner at Berks Heim.

Final plans were made to attend the Spring Rally in Hagerstown, Md. on May 22.

Berks Executive Board

The Berks County Farm Women Executive Board met recently in the Agriculture Center.

Each group is responsible for two door prizes at the County Convention in October. Nominees are needed for county treasurer.

A Garden Party will be held at Berks Heim June 8 and 9 from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. The next bingo will be held Nov. 14 at the main building.

About 70 Berks Farm Women will attend the Spring Rally in Hagerstown, Md.

The State Project for 1985 will be a Farm Women's Cookbook. The goal is 3,920 recipes, one from each member. All recipes should use at least one Pennsylvania grown or produced product. Mary Fizz will head the project. These cookbooks will be sold at the 1987 convention. Youth are also invited to participate.

State Farm Week will be held Nov. 21 to 28. Several groups will send children from Hamburg Center to camp.

The board will meet next on June 24 at the Agriculture Center.

Chester Society 3

Chester Society 3 held their May meeting at the home of Clair Herr, with co-hostess Barbara Ross.

Mrs. Hall talked about "The Quilt Connection" materials.

periences and talents, but to learn from others. Hetty said they have learned a lot from their Amish and Mennonite friends and adds, "They seem to take pride in the fact that young people are involved in quilting."

These quilters, for the most part, do not sit around a quilting frame. What they use for economy of space and for efficiency is a portable hoop. Louise pointed out, "They're easier to use and you can throw them in the closet if company comes. It also makes it possible to quilt in an apartment."

There will be a demonstration of quilting in progress the day of the show and many Guild members will be on hand, eager to share information.

In its second year, the Guild meets regularly on the first Monday of the month at South Lebanon Elementary School at 7:30 p.m., except for during the summer. Visitors are always welcome. Marlene adds, "Being a member of the Guild helps make you feel a part of the community."

Guild members say they are delighted with the many sources of fabrics for quilters in the area. Kitty says, "This is a wonderful area for fabrics." They agreed that in general, prices are better in this area than in other parts of the state.

One community service project which the Guild worked on was piecing and quilting a quilt to be raffled at the Historic Schaeferestown Cherry Fair on June 22. The quilt, featuring a cherry motif, has 92 hours of work on it, much of it done at the Meyerstown Public Library where it was on a frame and members went to work on it at their convenience. Tickets for the raffle will be sold on June 8.

In addition to the quilt show, which promises to offer a wide variety of patterns and colors, there will be a plant sale. Barbara Hehnly, a member of the Board of Historic Schaefferstown, noted that there will be perennials, annuals, herbs, trees and handcrafted plant accessories. Admission to the grounds will be free, but there will be a charge for admission to the quilt show.

A registration form and more information on the quilt can be obtained from Kitty Rose Zackley, 315 East Weidman Street, Lebanon. Tickets are $1.50.

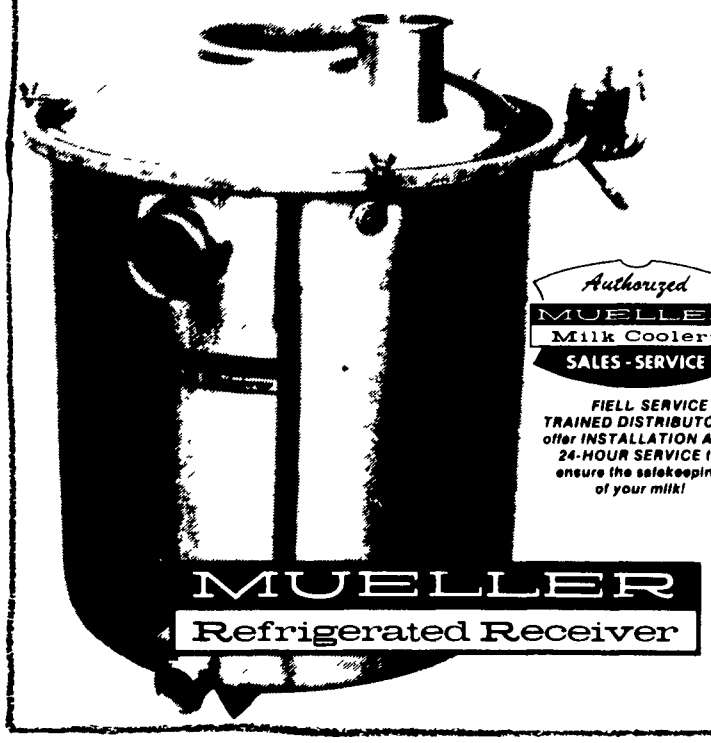
PRE-COOLING DOES MAKE A DIFFERENCE!

Stainless Steel



. A difference in quality Since Mueller introduced its Refrigerated Receiver more than two years ago, it's made some remarkable differences.

Milk temperatures lowered from 95 to 40 degrees without agitation. Improved butterfat. Bacteria counts down to between 10,000 and 15,000 units. More efficient cooling. Easy to clean Overall improved quality Enhanced taste and smell.

Isn't it time for you to join the growing number of dairymen testifying to the improvement the Refrigerated Receiver has made in their operations!

We Mueller distributors know the Refrigerated Receiver can make a difference in your operation, too Just ask us how

Six contestants vie for Centre Co. dairy princess crown

BELLEFONTE — The Centre County Dairy Promotion Committee has announced the contestants for their Dairy Princess Pageant, May 19, at 7:30 p.m., at the Logan Grange Hall, Pleasant Gap. The new dairy princess will succeed Judy Vonada of Howard, the 1984-85 Centre County Dairy Princess.

The six contestants are: Annette Lea Emel, Jody Gates, Elizabeth Amy Heald, Dora Kay Hettinger, Beth Ann Korman, and Amy Nyman.

Annette Lea Emel, 16, the daughter of Dorothy and Richard Tullis, is a junior at Bald Eagle High School. She lives with her grandmother, Dorothy Neff of Howard. She plans to attend beauty school after graduation. Her activities include cheerleading, Students Against Drunk Driving, the girl's leaders club, and the chorus. The Neffs own 34 Holsteins.

Joy Gates, 17, the daughter of Arva and Dorothy Gates of Warriors Mark, is a junior at State College Area High School. After graduation, Joy plans to work on the family farm.

She is a member of the Centre County 4-H Dairy Club, Recreation Club, and the County Council. In addition she is a member of the Gatesburg 4-H Club and serves as secretary for the Ross United Methodist Church. Joy owns five Holstein animals.

Elizabeth "Beth" Amy Heald, 19, the daughter of William and Judith Heald of Spring Mills, is a graduate of Penns Valley Area High School. She is currently a freshman at the Pennsylvania State University, majoring in dairy production.

She was the 1983-84 Centre County Alternate Dairy Princess. Her other activities include: the Centre County 4-H Dairy Club (1983-Secretary, 1984-President), the Penn State Dairy Science Club, publicity assistant, and the Penn State Block and Bridle Club. Beth owns three Holstein heifers.

Dora Kay Hettinger, 16, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Hettinger of Rebersburg, is a junior at Penns Valley Area High School. After graduation, she plans to attend Lock Haven University to major in elementary education.

She is a member of the Yearbook finance staff, Youth for Christ, the Drama Club, the Paging Youth, the Rambling Rams, and the Madisonburg United Methodist Church Youth Group where she serves as vice-president. The Hettingers own 21 Holstein cattle.

Beth Ann Korman, 17, the daughter of Gerald and Marjorie Korman of Centre Hall, is a Junior at Penns Valley Area High School. After graduation, Beth plans to attend business school and work on the family farm.

She is the Colorguard Co-Captain, and member of the Penns Valley Area Beef Club, the school band and choir, and the St. Luke's Lutheran Church Youth Group. The Kormans own 20 Holstein animals.

Amy Nyman, 16, the daughter of Claude and Ruth Nyman of Howard, is a junior at Bald Eagle Area High School. She plans to attend South Hills Business School after graduation. Her activities include: Cheerleading, S.A.D.D., school chorus, and the Fairview United Methodist Church Youth Group. The Nymans own 26 Holstein cows.

The pageant will be followed by an ice cream social. The ice cream will be provided by Meyers Dairy and Don Boller's Dairy Queen, both of State College.

The master of ceremonies for the pageant will be Wendy Williams, a popular radio commentator, and owner of Media Magic in State College. The judges include: Clarence Corman, an animal classifier for the Holstein Association of America, Linda Davis, the State College Jaycees "Mother of the Year", and Jay Grove, President of the Pennsylvania State Young Farmers Association.

Cindy Larrison named NW Pa. Maple Queen

CORRY — Cindy Larrison was selected Northwestern Pennsylvania Maple Queen during a pageant held recently at St. Thomas Parish Center, Corry.

Cindy, the daughter of Karen and Emory Kardosh, Conneautville, is a senior at Conneaut Valley High School and is active on the yearbook staff and prom committee. She is an Explorer scout and helps her parents in their maple operation. After graduation Cindy plans to attend Edinboro University to study computer science.

Members of the Maple Queen committee are Mrs. Lloyd Gates and Mrs. Ernest Allen, Corry; Dennis Northrup, Corry; and Mr. and Mrs. John Deets, Titusville.

On Oct. 4 and 5, Cindy will compete with maple queens from four other regions for the State Maple Sweetheart contest. The Endless Mountains Region will host the State Maple Tour in October, when the State Maple representative is selected.

Farm Women Rally to feature Walt Buescher

HAGERSTOWN — Walt Buescher, owner of Grass Roots Communications, a sales promotion company in Tennessee, will be the featured speaker at the 20th annual Spring Rally of the Pa Society of Farm Women on May 22

Buescher has spent his entire corporate career in the farm equipment industry and was named Marketing Man of the Year by the National Agri-marketing Association in 1974

Over 1,000 Farm Women from across the state are expected to attend this annual event that will be at the Ramada Inn Convention Center in Hagerstown, Md. The meeting will begin at 10:45 a.m. with greetings from Marie Baughman, immediate past state president from Franklin County Naomi Bupp, newly-elected State Farm Women president will be the guest of honor

The program also includes music by Christopher Simmons, a singer with "Friends In Spirit," Hagerstown, and nine-year-old organist Timmy James of Mt Holly Springs

Anyone interested in attending the Spring Rally should contact Wilma Wenger, 8988 Hades Church Road, Greencastle, Pa 17225

Correction

In last week's story on Nancy Ambler it was incorrectly reported that the Ambler's former farm was in Lancaster County. The farm was located in Chester County Nancy's daughter, Denise, is a former Chester County dairy princess. The article incorrectly said she had been a Lancaster County dairy princess.

Grange Youth place in competition

BATH, NY — Two Pennsylvania Grange members topped sign-a-song and public speaking competition in the regional Mid Atlantic Grange Youth Conference in Bath, New York. Grange youth participated in the conference from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio and New York.

Wanda Gallimore of Gettysburg placed first in the sign-a-singing contest. The contest consists of using sign language combined with dance and movement to demonstrate to deaf persons the rhythm and flow of the song. Gallimore currently serves as the State Grange deaf activities chairperson, directing programs to assist hearing impaired individuals throughout the country.

MeeCee Baker of Port Royal placed first in public speaking competition in the 19-25 age group. MeeCee formerly held the office of Ceres in the State Grange.

Both individuals are now eligible to compete nationally at the National Grange convention in Eugene, Oregon in November.

Five women from Chester County took second place in the sign-a-song group category. Members of the team are: Lois Steele, Betsy Huber, Ellen Huber, Virginia Buffington and Alicia Broomall.

Also placing second in youth competition was Gloria Fogel of Cambria County, who competed in the public speaking contest's 14-16 age group.

If you believe the Creator knows what is best

For our good in the long run, and if you believe that we should heed His instruction so that we can be fit candidates to populate the new heaven and new earth, loving our neighbor enough that we wouldn't want to pollute his water, then ask for literature about our soil conditioners and bacteria, (to replace the ones killed by chemicals) liquid fish, and soil minerals liquid or dry. These are all excellent for hay fields, for pasture (a great potential here) and to speed up late crops and make healthy vegetables and extra nutritious cow feed.

One had 300 bu. corn per acre using rock phosphate, soil minerals and bacteria. One tripled soybeans side by side in Jersey. One claims 30% more alfalfa in side by side test and the product cost less than $5 per acre. There is no excuse for not obeying natural laws. Our customers are winning in every way, including cost. And they have earlier vegetables for the higher prices.

A dairyman customer sold $27,000 worth of vegetables last year and talks about quality and his special market and says without the good crop he would have went broke.

COME TO A MEETING AND LEARN ABOUT SPECIAL MARKETS

that want quality produce grown with only organic fertilizer, but doesn't have to be 100% spray free. They have patience till you can be weaned off gradually like some others have done. The meeting place is

YODER'S MARKET & RESTAURANT
½ block south of Rt. 23 at east end of New Holland.
THE ORGANIC MARKET speaker speaks at 7:15 p.m., May 23, 1985...

A NEW TYPE FERTILIZER WITH GREAT CLAIMS FOR BIG, HEALTHY BUG AND DISEASE RESISTANT CROPS AT A VERY REASONABLE PRICE—

At 7:30 hear another speaker from Ohio — He processes soft coal into superior fertilizer for producing abundant, nutrient rich, bug and disease resistant crops. You can really wean yourself from costly, toxic chemicals very profitably and have a better market, even for grain that is 2% higher in protein and considerable lower in moisture naturally. Chemical grown has slower maturity and slower dry down. Please sharpen your pencil and figure out the bottom line — your income minus expenses, and stop complaining about the hard times. Rather, think of our customers who have it made because they believe that the Creator knows best. Do you use a John Deere manual for a Ford tractor?
INVITE OTHERS TO THE MEETING WHO NEED A BETTER BOTTOM LINE.

E-Z DUMPER®

DIRECT FROM FACTORY

DUMP UNIT FOR PICKUP TRUCKS SAVE TIME....LABOR....MONEY

The E-Z DUMPER is hydraulically operated and is powered by the 12 volt truck battery. The safe removable key switch is standard equipment. The dump angle of 47° assures quick and clean unloading. The removable tailgate can be opened from the top or bottom for easy flow control.

Designed for do-it-yourself installation - the E-Z DUMPER comes ready to install, including hydraulic fluid. Most pickup trucks require no alterations. Just slide the E-Z DUMPER and secure with clamps using existing bolts and holes. Installation is fast and simple. Dump over 4,000 lb. of firewood, gravel, topsoil, coal, corn, mulch, etc. in seconds.

Four contestants will compete for York dairy princess title

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — In a garden setting with a nostalgic theme of reflections in time, four young farm women will compete next week for the title of 1985-86 York County Dairy Princess.

The annual princess pageant is planned for 8 p.m., Saturday, May 25, at the York County 4-H Center at Bair.

Contestants for the title are Loretta Cooper, Kelly Kilgore, Dawn Klahold and Joyce Ruppert. A winner and alternate will be crowned as the highlight of the pageant by current dairy princess Judy Perry.

In a special 30-year reunion segment of the program, former dairy princesses will be introduced to the audience. Among those taking part will be the first York County Dairy princess, Hope Hanley Bradley, now of Delta, who won the county crown in 1955.

Loretta Lynn Cooper, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Cooper, Delta R2. She is a junior at Kennard-Dale High School, and serves as vice-president and Sweetheart of the FFA, county FFA secretary, and member of the FFA state band. Her career plans include nursing, and she's a member of the school's medical careers club, band, varsity club in volleyball and hockey, and on the yearbook staff. Among Loretta's community activities are 4-H and the softball team at Slateville church. The Cooper family farm includes a milking string of 62 Holsteins and 150 acres of cropground.

Kelly Lynn Kilgore, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kilgore, Airville R2. Former York County FFA president, she currently heads the chapter at Red Lion High School, where she is a senior. Kelly is the county's first alternate dairy princess, and owns six head of Brown Swiss and Holsteins which she exhibits in FFA and 4-H. A member of the Airville Fire Company ladies auxiliary and the Chanceford Presbyterian Church, she plans a career in allied health care work, and hopes to continue assisting with the family's farm of 70 milking animals and 1,000 acres of cropground.

Dawn Marie Klahold, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Klahold, York R24. A junior at York Area Vocational-Technical School, she's a member of the band and the band front, and the VICA club. Following her graduation in 1986, Dawn plans to study photography and commercial art. The Klahold family milks eight head of Holsteins on their ten-acre farm.

Joyce Elaine Ruppert, 21, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ruppert, East Berlin. A 1982 graduate of Dover High School, she was on the track team, class treasurer, national honor society and yearbook staff. Joyce is active with her church youth group and is a Sunday school teacher. She studied for one semester at the Antonelli Institute of Art and Photography, and is currently employed on the family farm, assisting with the 56 head of milking Holsteins and 168 acres of cropland.

Little Lions FFA receive awards at annual banquet

STATE COLLEGE — The State College "Little Lions" FFA recently held their annual recognition banquet at the State College Area Intermediate High School.

The main item of business for the evening was the presentation of awards students earned by completing projects during the year.

MARION — J-R Acres Pabst Pete, a December daughter of Char-Sam Elevation Pabst, topped the 10th annual Franklin County 4-H Dairy Calf Sale at $700.

Roy E. Kendig, Orrstown, consigned the calf to the sale, held recently at the Ralph Horst Sale Barn, Marion. Brian Reichard, Chambersburg, purchased the calf.

Windy Knoll View Miss 4-H, a December daughter of Coldsprings Ira, consigned by James and Nina Burdette, Mercersburg, was purchased by Mike Cordell, Chambersburg. The Burdettes donated the proceeds from the calf to the new 4-H Center.

Criderdale Tradition Deb, a March daughter of Sweet-Haven Tradition, consigned by Criderdale Farms, Chambersburg, was purchased by Kenneth Mummert, Chambersburg Mummert had the calf resold and donated the proceeds to the new 4-H Center.

Dennis Crider and his committee selected 12 Holstein and two Jersey calves of varying ages for the sale, which averaged $515.

Proceeds from the sale of Windy Knoll View Miss 4-H were donated to the Franklin County 4-H Center. Shown are consignors James and Nina Burdette, Mercersburg, along with sons Justin and Kyle. At the halter is Mike Cordell, Chambersburg, who purchased the calf for $650.

Brian Reichard with the top selling animal in the sale, J-R Acres Pabst Pete. The calf was consigned by Roy Kendig, Orrstown.

Winners named in Dauphin Land Judging Contest

HARRISBURG — The Dauphin County FFA Land Judging Contest was recently held on the Richard and Keith Oellig Farm near Grantville, Pa. Competing in the event were students from Upper Dauphin, Lower Dauphin and Halifax High School.

The purpose of the annual contest is to provide students with an opportunity to evaluate numerous soil properties which affect land use. After evaluating each of the four sites relevant to their limitations, each soil is assigned a soil capability and appropriate land use. Winners from the County Contest will compete in the State Contest scheduled at Penn State in June.

Joel Myers of the Soil Conservation Service in Harrisburg was responsible for site selection and the site evaluation at each of the four sites. Assisting with the contest were County FFA Instructors Ronald Yerger, Paul Wise, Stanley Weaver, Marlin Henninger and Diane Dorer, Program Assistant for the Soil Conservation Service

Berks County Beef Club

The Berks Beef Club recently attended Ag Day at Delaware Valley College. The group saw livestock shows and judging, student displays and displays of farm trucks and equipment There were also tours of the campus and livestock barns

The next meeting will be the Spring Show on May 18 at the Reading Fairgrounds. The meeting will begin at 9 a.m., when members will select teams to fit cattle. Greg Snyder and Ted Teaford will judge the fitting. Cattle will be freeze-branded in the afternoon.

Recent winners in the 1985 Dauphin County FFA Land Judging Contest included: Larry Engle, first; Jim Lesher, second; Troy Schreffler, third; all from Upper Dauphin High School. Fourth place went to Kelly Kulp from Halifax High School.

Alfred State plans second annual Ag Summer Weekend Camp

ALFRED — With summer fast approaching, Alfred State Agricultural and Technical College has announced that its second annual Ag Summer Weekend Camp for youth ages 14 to 19 is scheduled July 12 to 14 on campus.

The weekend is a joint venture of the college's School of Agricultural Technologies, its Office of Special Academic Program, and Allegany County Cooperative Extension.

Deadline is June 12 to register for the three-day event during which a variety of agriculture-related laboratory instruction sessions will be offered under supervision of college faculty and staff.

Besides professional instruction, the weekend cost of $55 includes two nights' lodging in a college residence hall, meals, and use of the college pool, gymnasium, and other facilities.

The weekend opens with registration 5-8 p.m. Friday, July 12, and concludes at 4 p.m. Sunday, July 14.

Lab sessions from which young people may choose during the weekend include the following

Milking procedure, arc welding, oxy-acetylene cutting, hay tool fundamentals (I and II), tractor operation, swine breeding, dairy cattle breeding, pest control, dairy judging, and tree planting for reforestation/wildlife habitat.

Also, computer recordkeeping, woody plant identification, greenhouse plants for fun and profit, silk flower arranging, soil analysisd, beef handling, sheep management, and bee keeping.

More information, including a complete description of laboratory sessions, is available by contacting the college's Office of Special Academic Programs (607-871-6335).

The second annual Ag Summer Weekend camp for teenagers is scheduled for July 12-14 at Alfred State Agricultural and Technical College. Here, students participate in one of last year's lab sessions.

Hunterdon dairy princess contestants needed

FLEMINGTON, NJ — The annual search is on for young women to compete in the 1985 Hunterdon County Dairy Princess Contest.

The title sounds impressive. .and the responsibilities assumed by the princess for the year of her reign are significant. She becomes Hunterdon County dairy industry's ambassador and promoter of milk and dairy products through a variety of activities. She appears at milk promotions in malls and super markets across the state, speaks to many school audiences, civic and service clubs.

To be eligible to compete in the Hunterdon Contest, you must be 17 to 24 years of age, single, and have some dairy farm background. The dairy experience, in addition to living on a dairy farm, could be 4-H dairy club involvement, working on a dairy farm, or some other exposure to dairy cows and farming.

Judging is based on a number of qualities, including appearance, personality, ability to speak in public, knowledge of dairy farming, milk and dairy products.

In the contest a winner and runner-up are chosen. Both will compete in the state contest, which is held during Flemington Fair.

The Hunterdon contest is scheduled for Sunday, June 9, during Dairy Farm Open House on the Ernest Kuster farm, Raritan Township. The judging will take place a day earlier; crowning, though, will be part of open house day.

Any questions on the dairy princess program should be addressed to Mrs. Schwab, or to the Cooperative Extension Service office. We'll see that you get the application form.

Deadline for dairy princess applications is Friday, May 31

'85 winter wheat crop up

HARRISBURG — Based on May 1 conditions, Pennsylvania's 1985 production of winter wheat is expected to be above 1984 levels, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Acreage to be harvested is forecast at 215,000 with a yield of 39 bushels per acre. The resulting production at 8,385,000 bushels is fractionally above the 1984 level of 8,360,000 bushels.

Total 1984 tobacco production for Pennsylvania was 22,370,000 pounds. Southern Maryland, Type 32, acres harvested were 4,300, with an average yield per acre of 1,800 pounds and production of 7,740,000 pounds. Pennsylvania, Type 41 acres harvested were 7,700 with an average yield of 1,900 and production of 14,630,000 pounds.

Hay stocks on Pennsylvania farms as of May 1 totaled 966,000 tons, 412,000 tons above last year's level.

U.S. winter wheat production is forecast at 1.97 billion bushels, four percent less than last year's production of 2.06 billion bushels. Total 1984 U.S. tobacco production was 1.73 billion pounds, 21 percent above 1983 production. All hay stocks on farms as of May 1 totaled 26.86 million tons, 33 percent above that stored on May 1, 1984.

Beads have been used for thousands of years as decorative accents for clothing. However, it was not until the mid-19th century that beadwork, as a needle art form, achieved the height of popularity. In the Victorian era, with its rich opulence, beadwork was an integral part of needlework.

One of the most recognized pieces of beadwork done during this period (and it still is an occasional "find" at antique shops) is the evening bag decorated with colorful beads. These beads were made from many different mediums such as glass, metal, wood and semiprecious stones. The bag generally was knitted or crocheted, but continues even today to be known as the "beaded bag."

A booklet by Rosemary Drysdale titled Beaded Lace incorporates the techniques of beading and counted cross-stitch for an exciting variation on both themes. To purchase Beaded Lace, send $3.50 to MPR Associates, P.O. Box 7343, High Point, NC 27264.

The following is a list of basic materials needed to knit or crochet with beads, and tips from Drysdale for needleworkers interested in trying their hand at beading.

Glass beads. It is recommended that authentic glass beads be used. Other trims can be attached in the same manner: bangles, paillettes, pearls and wooden beads.

Yarns. The most important thing to remember is to choose a yarn that will give the same stitch gauge as indicated in the directions for specific patterns, and that will allow the beads to slide easily along the strand.

Needles. Any knitting needle or crochet hook that will give you the required gauge.

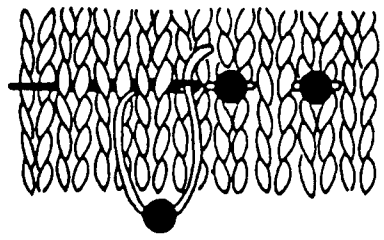
Tapestry needle. A size 22 is recommended to accommodate a knitting worsted-weight yarn and will slip through the hole in the bead.

Although each design pattern book gives directions and diagrams, here are a few pointers that will help you to achieve successful results.

If the design you are working on takes only a small amount of beads, do not thread the entire tube of beads. Thread only the amount that is required to complete the motif.

Always secure the yarn, strung with beads, by knotting it securely in the first row.

Never end or begin a row with a bead. You also might note that some beads vary slightly in size. This is because authentic beads are less uniform than factory-manufactured beads. It will not detract from your finished piece,



To attach beads to a store-bought item, use a simple backstitch and add beads as you go. This technique will enhance any "off-the-rack" purchase, or can be used to mend antique beadwork that has damaged areas.

but may cause problems when trying to fit the needle through a somewhat smaller hole. Simply set aside any beads that will not fit, allow the needle to pass or use a finer needle.

The care of beaded garments is important. Be sure to follow manufacturer's recommended laundering directions on the yarn label. Glass beads need no special care, however, if machine washing is recommended. Turn the garment inside out so that the beads do not the side of the washer. As with any special needlework, do not place directly in sunlight for any length of time. The beads will fade, as will the yarn.

Extension names "leader" for 17 northeast counties

UNIVERSITY PARK – Neal R. Buss has been appointed regional program leader for the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service. He will provide leadership for county staff in 17 northeast counties.

Buss, whose office is located on Penn State's Wilkes-Barre campus, will work to improve communication among county staff, state specialists and state program leaders. He will be responsible for identifying areas within the region that can be used to strengthen education programs in agriculture, community development and natural resources. He also will assist with planning and conducting multi-county events, activities and training.

Buss received his bachelor's and master's degrees in animal science from Penn State. He earned his Ph.D. in animal science with Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Buss was formerly employed by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Bureau of Animal Industries as an administrative officer. He also was a research analyst for the Pennsylvania State Senate and House of Representatives. As an assistant county extension agent in Lehigh County he worked to develop and implement 4-H and adult livestock and dairy programs.

A native of Northampton, Buss is a member of the Penn State Stockmen's Club.

ELCO FFA

The Eastern Lebanon County FFA chapter recently elected officers for the 1985-86 school year. The senior class nominated candidates they felt would fulfill the required duties.

State Grocers Association plans Hershey convention

HERSHEY — More than 3,000 people are expected to attend the 86th Annual Convention of the Pennsylvania Grocers Association June 2-4 in Hershey.

The exposition will feature over 150 exhibits of new food and household products, new services for retailers and consumers, and the latest in computer hardware and software for the grocery industry.

In addition to the exhibition, the convention offers an outstanding business and social program. Sunday evening's President's Dinner will feature the presentation by keynote speaker Philip D. Steffen, principal in Philip D. Steffen Assoc. Inc.

Two half-day business seminars will highlight the educational events.

On Monday the association will examine "STORE DESIGN: A BLUEPRINT FOR SUCCESS" with presentations by Philip Morris Co. and by Arnold Ward and Gary Lind, partners in the design firm of Arnold Ward Studios, Ltd. There will be an explanation of techniques for increasing sales and profits through improved store layout, image and design.

John H. Hollingshead, Director of Retail Development and Store Planning for Affiliated of Florida, Inc., Tampa, will discuss store engineering, demographic considerations and merchandising.

On Tuesday, Harker Collins will discuss "PERSONAL FINANCIAL PLANNING," elaborating on "cycle investing" an approach which is designed to enable the busy person to maximize the return on personal investments with a minimum of time and effort. Harker Collins is founder and CEO of Harker Collins & Co., Inc., a New York Stock Exchange listed financial management company.

Dr. Carole F. Bitter has been selected to receive the "OUTSTANDING WOMAN IN THE PENNSYLVANIA FOOD INDUSTRY AWARD" during the brunch on Monday. Dr. Bitter is President and Chief Executive Officer of Harold Friedman's, Inc., a corporation operating seven supermarkets and one warehouse store.

Touring golf pro Al Geiberger, will participate in the association's Annual Golf Tournament to be held on Tuesday.

The convention program has been coordinated by Affiliated Food Distributors, Inc. of Scranton, PA. The Pennsylvania Grocers Association is a trade association representing over 2,000 independent family owned and cooperative food retailers, wholesalers and suppliers operating in Pennsylvania.

CREAMERY – It's well-known that most garden plants do better in as much sunlight as possible. However, every property has some shaded spots that can present a challenge to the gardener, says County Agent Paul Reber.

"To grow plants in the shade, it's important to determine the type of shade at hand," Reber says. "Not all shade is the same, and there are varying degrees that influence plant growth."

Light shade or filtered shade is often found under the spread of tree canopies where the full force of the sun is broken. Partial shade may be in an eastern or western exposure where the sun is available during parts of the day. Deep shade is found under the overhang of a building where no sunlight falls and total light is restricted. Finally, open shade might be on the north side of a wall or building which is open to the sky, but away from direct sunlight.

The most difficult natural shade site can be found under the spread of a shallow rooted tree, like a Norway Maple. Under such conditions, light doesn't limit growth as much as the moisture competition from surrounding tree roots. If you are just starting a garden in the shade, avoid setting plants directly under trees.

Impatiens are probably the most popular shade-tolerant annual in the garden. They offer bright colors and continuous summer-to-fall bloom, are easy to maintain, and fit into a number of garden situations, from beds to tubs to hanging baskets.

Impatiens varieties to look for include the compact and uniform "Super Elfins" and "Bright Eyes." Varieties are available to meet most color and growth requirements.

Begonias offer interesting flowers and foliage for the shaded garden. Many tuberous-rooted begonias produce beautiful double or semi-double blooms that resemble open roses. Some well-known names include the attractive "Nonstop" series and the "Clips Mixture," a colorful selection of white, yellow, orange and scarlet blooms.

Salvia, or scarlet sage, is another colorful group to consider for partial shade or full sun. These plants provide the gardener with some of the brightest reds and scarlets in the world of annuals. The "Carbiniere" series contains scarlet, orange, blue and white types that are effective in mixed plantings.

Coleus do well in any degree of shade. They're available in many foliage colors, shapes and sizes. Leaf color can be solid or variegated for extra interest. Flowers are small and of little interest when compared to coleus's leaf quality.

Other shade-tolerant annuals to look for include nicotinia, primula, viola, browillia, lobelia and forget-me-not. Any or all of these will add seasonal color to areas where most other annuals fail.

When growing plants in the shade, remember that:

1. The best shade is a moist, partially shaded spot, either with light leaf cover or a few hours of afternoon or morning shade.
2. The deeper the shade, the taller the plants will grow.
3. In deep shade under trees, you will need extra moisture. Drip irrigation or a similarly regulated supply are popular ways to conserve water while meeting plant needs. Raised beds, underlaid with plastic, will also add color in the shade.
4. Late afternoon and evening sun is harder on plants than morning sun followed by shade the rest of the day. Full morning sun followed by a period of shade is best for these plants.
5. Dappled shade from sunlight filtered through high tree branches is very effective for most shade-tolerant plants.
6. Plantings on the south and west side of a building will generally receive too much sun and heat.

York Capon Club

The York 4-H Capon Club will meet on May 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the 4-H Center. The group will hear a speaker on the care and feeding of capons and will see a demonstration of caponization.

Election of officers will also be held.

4-H Exchange Club

The 4-H Exchange recently selected the following officers for the coming year: Tara Wiktor, president; Shana Wiktor, secretary; and Karen Bimeal, treasurer.

The Interstate Exchange Group will be traveling to the New Haven, Conn. area July 21 to 27 and will stay with 4-H'ers there. The Connecticut group will return the visit in 1986.

Junior Exchange Program members from Elk County will visit Cambria County July 31 to Aug 2. Cambria County members visited Elk County in 1984.

The next meeting will be Thursday, May 23 at 7 p.m. at the Extension Office in Ebensburg. All members must attend this session.

Little Dutchmen FFA

The Little Dutchmen FFA chapter recently participated in the County Land Judging Contest near Cedar Crest High School. Members from Cedar Crest, ELCO, Northern Lebanon, and Annville-Cleona participated in the contest.

Annville-Cleona swept the contest with the top ten contestants, and 16 of the top 20. The top 10 individuals were as follows: Steve Rigel, Daniel Brandt, Michael Beare, Dale Balmer, Scott Brinser, John Gilbert, Kenneth Fernsler, Timothy Elliott, Frank Shuey and Paul Longenecker.

Leaf rust

NEWARK, DE – Middle Atlantic area farmers should check small grain fields now for signs of leaf rust. If not controlled in time, this disease can severely reduce wheat yields.

According to University of Delaware extension plant pathologist Bob Mulrooney, rust is beginning to appear on susceptible wheat varieties throughout the state. Though incidence and severity of the disease are currently low, under the right conditions it could develop quickly.

The following conditions favor rust:

- temperatures between 59 and 72 degrees F,
- Periods of normal rainfall and dew, and
- high humidity.

Unlike powdery mildew, rust also develops at temperature ranges in the 70s and 80s.

Mulrooney advises growers to check wheat fields regularly for leaf rust, which can be identified by its rust-brown, oval pustules. The following varieties have been identified as susceptible under Delaware conditions: Hart, Pike, Tyler, Severn, Potomac, Massey and McNair 1003. Other varieties may also be susceptible, so it pays to keep a watchful eye on all fields.

Apply a fungicide when the following conditions exist:

- Rust covers 5 to 7 percent of the upper two leaves between flag leaf emergence and flowering of the heads;
- Yield potential is high (60 to 70 bushels an acre);
- A susceptible variety is grown;
- Weather conditions favorable for disease development persist.

Registered fungicides for rust control include Bayleton and mancozeb (Dithane M-45, Manzate 200). Benlate is now registered for use at a quarter to a half pound acre plus Manzate 200 at a rate of 2 pounds per acre for control of powdery mildew, leaf rust, Septoria leaf blight and glume blotch. Follow label directions for application methods and timing.

Shooting Sports Workshop planned

NEWARK, Del. – A Shooting Sports Workship is planned for June 14, 15 and 16 at Camp Barnes and will feature archery, air rifle, air pistol and shotgun. The workshop is designed for volunteers who are interested in working with youth ages 9-19 in a 4-H Shooting Sports program area back in their town or community.

This workshop offers hands on learning experiences and in-depth training programs featuring sessions in archery, air rifle, air pistol and shotgun and safety measures with youth, program planning, coaching philosophy and working with youth, wildlife conservation, and working as a team. Participants will review successful models of programs in New York and Texas, and share ideas with others on developing programs and working with volunteers and community resources.

The objectives of the 4-H Shooting Sports program include developing responsible sportsmanship, ethical behavior and respect for safe conduct of shooting sports activities. Participants will gain awareness and appreciation of the broad spectrum of shooting sports and related activities as leisure opportunities, develop shooting knowledge and skills, gain in-depth experiences in individual specialized areas of interest and become aware of related career opportunities in the industry.

The cost of this workshop is $20 per participant which includes food and lodging as well as workshop material and handouts. Each county will be looking for three interested volunteers in each of the four sports areas or a total of twelve participants per county. Responses are needed by May 30th and you should contact the Newark 4-H office (451-8965) for more information.

Pa. Farm Museum prepares for craft days

LANCASTER – The twenty-ninth annual "Craft Days" weekend will be held Saturday and Sunday, June 1 and 2, from noon until 5 p.m. at the Pennsylvania Farm Museum of Landis Valley. "Craft Days" is an outdoor festival featuring demonstrations of more than fifty different crafts and activities associated with Pennsylvania life from 1750 to 1900. At Craft Days visitors will see how to rope a bed, bake in an outdoor oven or make a basket. New crafts this year will include inkmaking, ragdolls, and weaving.

Visitors will be able to see the Veterinary Office, Isaac Landis Gallery, and the Grossmutter House; areas open only on special occasions. On Saturday the Red Rose Chorus Barbershop Quartet will perform at 2 p.m.

"The Landis Valley Collection" of reproductions from the Farm Museum will be on display for the first time this year. New items for 1985 will include Fraktur drawings, redware pottery, and a small porch bench. Also tin cookie cutters, furniture and leather items from the collection will be available.

No-till skiprow planting gives Jim Plank and son Jim, Jr., higher yields and less erosion. The Westminster, Md., growers built a 12-row, 12-inch planter with 22-inch skips. Four 55-gallon drums filled with water insure sufficient coulter penetration into corn stalks or barley straw.

THE FASTEST MOWER CONDITIONERS IN THE WORLD.

When conditions get tough, the new Vicon KM mower/conditioners get the hay in the windrow 30% faster than any conventional system. Available in working widths of 7'10", 9'5" and 10'6", the new KM mower conditioners combine a disc cutterbar with a square-cornering drive system to dramatically improve your mowing and conditioning. See the new KM mower/conditioners.

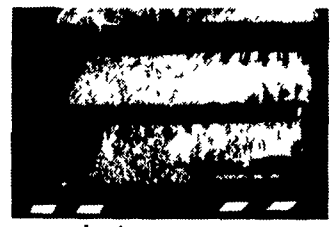
smooth worm gear drive
Cast iron gears with bronze worm runs in oil — continuous lubrication, for smooth performance Three speeds forward, two working speeds, plus a sweep speed, standard, for high speed cleanout so you go back to the field with an empty box No belts to slip — no sheaves Just smooth, steady transfer of power from pto to apron chains



non-wrap beaters
Rugged solid bar teeth extend through the drums for extra strength The spiral arrangement of the teeth peels off the load in uniform layers for even delivery PLUS, the large diameter drum virtually eliminates material wrapping Two- and three beater combinations are available

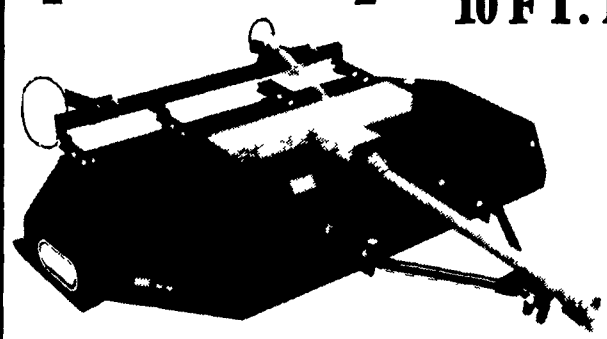
DRAG MODEL RC 120 DL 10 FT. ROTARY CUTTER



STANDARD EQUIPMENT:

- 7 Gauge Reinforced Deck
- ½x3" Free Swinging Suction Blades
- Round Blade Carriers
- Ratchet Jack Height Adjust
- Clevis Hitch
- (2) 15" Laminated Puncture Proof Tires
- Safety Yellow Driveline Guards
- Heavy-Duty 4-Plate Override Clutch
- Torque-Limiting Shock Absorber

CONSTRUCTION: All Southeast 10' Rotary Cutters feature our new streamlined "cut-away" deck which prevents material from lodging or "caking" in the front corners of the cutter. Gear box mount plates are of 3/8" steel and the deck is equipped with full length runners. The standard 4-plate slip clutch and Torque Limiting Shock Absorber protects both mower and tractor from shock loads DRIVELINE is all gear driven, dual blade spindle, featuring three heavy-duty gear boxes designed for tough long-life service.

Saves Those Tender Leaves!

CUT DOWN ON LEAF LOSS.

New Gehl 2160 9'3" mower conditioner's full width conditioning rolls crack stems without crushing off leaves. You save the valuable nutrients, and at the same time get fast-drying windrows. Adjustable reel and ground-hugging header flotation let you mow in a variety of crop and field conditions.

See your Gehl dealer . . . and see how cutting down leaf loss brings up profits. Or, if you need a 7' model, with all the same features, ask to see our new model 2130.

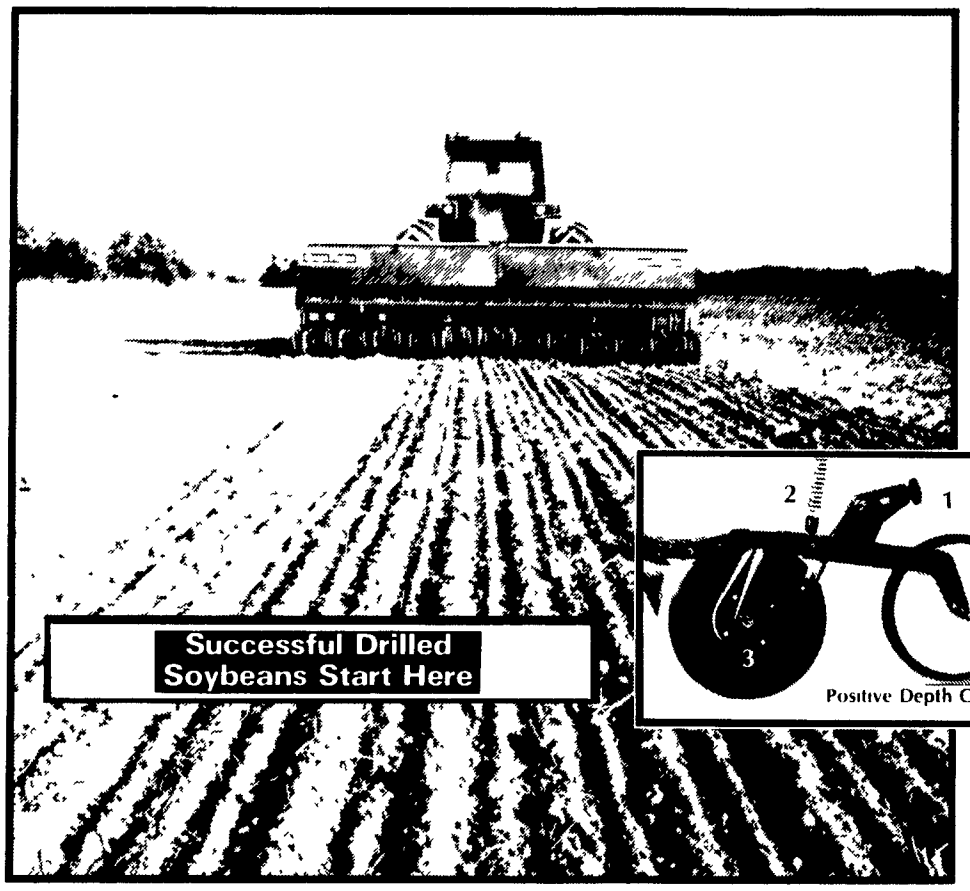
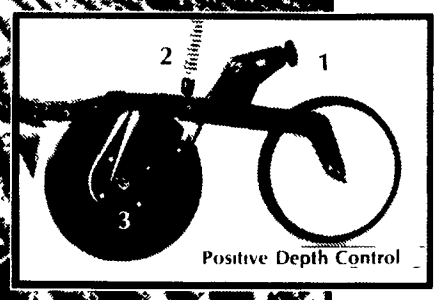
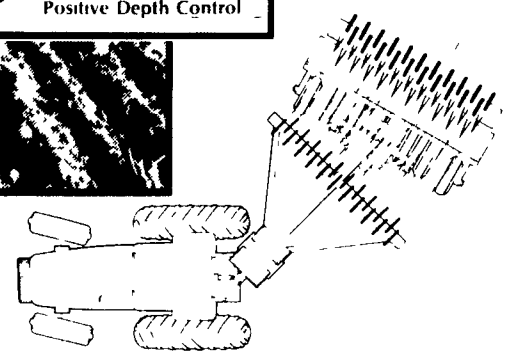
You Won't Find A Better No-Til Soybean Drill Than GREAT PLAINS





Great Plains Solid Stand™ drills have the planting accuracy drilled soybeans need;
(1) Depth-Gauging Press Wheels keep the opener from penetrating too deep; planting depth can be quickly changed with exclusive dial-a-depth adjustment system. (2) Double Down-Pressure Springs hold opener firmly in the soil — preventing the bouncing action which leaves seed scattered on top of the ground.

(3) Special Seed Chute places seed in the very bottom of the v-slot, rather than allowing slot to partially close prior to seed release.



THE NO-TILL HITCH THAT WORKS FOR SOYBEANS

Here's why:
A unique pivot between the coulter unit and the drill allows each disk opener to track exactly in the slot cut by the coulter in front — even while the unit is rounding a curve.

Excellent penetration is also achieved, thanks to a heavy-duty framework, calcium-fillable transport tires, and a special weight transfer design which applies some of the weight of the drill itself to the coulters. Should additional weight be needed, specially designed weight brackets are available which accept most tractor suitcase-style weights. In all, up to 400 lbs. of weight per coulter is possible — ensuring penetration even in the toughest ground.

Finally, all Combination Drill Hitches feature a quick hitch for attaching easily to 3-point drills. So you have the flexibility to no-till some acreage, then switch back to a conventional seeding method as conditions vary.

COMPARE PERFORMANCE! COMPARE PRICE!
YOU'LL BUY A Great Plains NO-TILL SOYBEAN DRILL

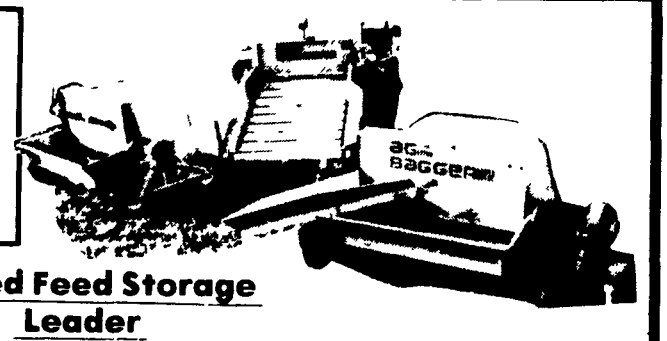
AG-BAG System Compare & SAVE



Sealed Feed Storage Leader

Better Forage At Lower Cost

Ag-Bag System gives not only lower investment and interest cost, but gives the quality forage you would expect with an oxygen limiting silo By using the Ag-Bag on a custom work basis no major capitol cost was required and the interest which was foreseen with other systems was eliminated We would recommend the Ag-Bag System for anyone with storage shortage at a very low cost per ton of feed

Custom Bagging - Haylage, Silage, Rye, Etc.

Your Best Investment

"I believe this machine has done me more good per dollar of investment than any machine I've ever owned." Earl Chapin, Battle Creek, MI

- Mow and condition any hay crop in one pass, regardless of conditions.
- Dependable, low maintenance machine in 7', 9' and 12' widths.
- Suction knives lift and cut a downed tangled crop like no other machine...turns and fluffs rain soaked windrows.
- Windrow stalks for bales and stacks.

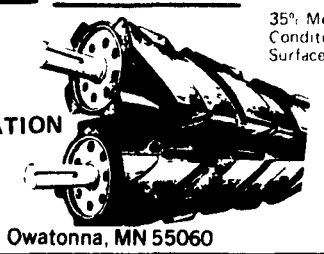
Self Propelled Capacity ...Wide Roll Conditioning .....Pull Type Cost

That's OMC's Model 235 Swing Tongue Auger Windrower.....

.....A commercial duty design, BUILT STRONGER, to last longer....offering MORE CAPACITY than any competitive model available. The WIDE ROLL CONDITIONER gives you 35% MORE conditioning edges than continuous groove rubber rolls. This means FASTER CROP DRYING.

All this....at the cost of a PULL TYPE.... that doesn't empty your pocket book.



ARRANGE FOR A DEMONSTRATION

Owatonna Manufacturing Company, Inc Owatonna, MN 55060

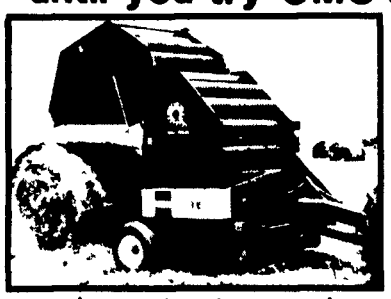
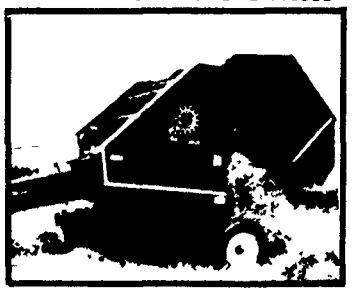
until you try OMC's 590 or 596.....





They're easier to operate.... have less moving parts.... bale more crop without problems.... bale faster in the field.... produce picture perfect bales with weatherability built in.... better than any competitive brand available.

May-Co Silo Liners

In fermenting crops, such as alfalfa, corn, sorghum and high moisture grains, certain bacteria change carbohydrates into organic acids, principally lactic and acetic acids. These acids are nature's own food preservatives and mold inhibitors. When enough of these milk acids are produced, the fermentation stops and the feed is preserved. However, the bacteria that make these organic acids do not grow in the presence of oxygen The flow of oxygen can be eliminated by installing a MAY-CO SILO LINER inside your silo, which also eliminates juice run-off In an oxygen free ferment, the silage will not freeze to the silo wall, will not shrink, will not mold or heat between feeding even in hot weather, and will produce more T D.N and Digestible Protein without an additive

(ATTENTION DAIRYMAN)

In today's economy stress, you must feed your cows properly.
Put in trough dividers, with fold up flaps to make easy sweeping. It prevents late lactating cows of over-eating & gives the high producers more time to eat their feed which results in more dry matter intake and more milk.
Being able to know exactly what each cow eats will be a benefit to you and the cow.
We also build self locking head gates and cattle guards, gutter grates.

INTRODUCING NEW MASTER MIX
SILO-BOOSTER

Why should you use new Master Mix SILO-BOOSTER instead of another product? SILO-BOOSTER has been proven in 20 years of on-farm use, as well as in continuous university research. With each new discovery in silage science, we have improved the original formula. Today's SILO-BOOSTER gives the most effective silage innoculant yet developed.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS

Alfalfa Ensiled With And Without SILO-BOOSTER Conducted At The University Of Minnesota West Central Experiment Station Morris, Minnesota 1984 Crop

DRY MATTER RECOVERY (1)	CONTROL	SILO-BOOSTER
Amount D.M. Ensiled, lb.	26,228	30,418
Amount D M Removed, lb	24,432	30,278

(1) Individual loads of fresh forage were weighed before ensiling; after storage, silos were emptied completely at one time

Composition and pH of Stored Alfalfa Ensiled With and Without SILO BOOSTER

	CONTROL	SILO-BOOSTER
Dry Matter, %	50 66	54.98
pH	6 33	5.82
Crude Protein, %	23.64	23.45

Dry matter recovery data from these conventional silos demonstrates a 6.3% difference in feedable alfalfa silage. For each 100 tons of silage, there would be an additional 6.3 tons of silage available for feeding. This is equivalent to 3.5 tons of 90% dry matter hay worth approximately $350.00. This is a $3.50 return for each $1.00 investment in SILO BOOSTER from a reduction in fermentation losses alone.

Maryland, Delaware join to study poultry air sac infection

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – When Don Mariner talks about a $5 million a year problem, he is characteristically blunt:

"How does air sac infection affect our poultry flocks? Either they get better or they die."

Mariner is the production manager for Chesapeake Farms, one of the major broiler producers on Maryland's Eastern Shore. He and other Delmarva peninsula producers share in that $5 million-a-year loss when their birds come down with air sac infection. And that figure only accounts for 10-11 percent of the total loss incurred by the nation's broiler producers.

"When they come down (with air sac infection)," says Mariner, "the birds go off their feed, they become listless and lose weight, and they stand around with their eyes closed."

And, adds Dr. G. Thomas Holder, "there are the audible sounds of respiratory distress in the broiler house."

Unknown Origin

Holder, who is the chairperson for the Delmarva Poultry Industry's "Poultry Health Committee," says air sac infection is a result of a respiratory virus. That much he and other avian virologists agree on. What they don't know is what causes the infection.

Some researchers believe a viral agent causes enough stress in susceptible broilers that their immune systems are no longer capable of fighting off infection. Normally harmless and common bacteria such as E. soli become pathogenic and ultimately destroy the birds. Says Holder: "Death can come rapidly – in as little as 48 hours after infection sets in – or it can come more slowly – 7 to 10 days after infection."

Mariner, who has been in the broiler business for "20 to 25 years," says the impact can be staggering to the large broiler producers in the area. "Our's is a small operation – we place maybe 600,000 birds a week. The whole (Eastern) Shore does about 10 million a week. "So when you deal with large number of birds, they tend to die in large numbers. Anytime you lose even one-half of 1 percent, you're talking about large numbers," he says.

People like Mariner and Holder cannot say if air sac infection is just one of those occupational hazards of raising animals, or if the problem is aggravated by the way broilers are managed from farm to farm.

One way they are trying to get a handle on the problem is by working with scientists at the University of Maryland on a pilot project that has been in the planning stage for several years now.

Flock Profiles

The university's Agricultural Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service are teaming up with the Delmarva Poultry Industry (DPI) and the University of Delaware to monitor the infection. They hope this monitoring activity, called "flock profiling," will help them determine what agents or factors are responsible for spreading the infection.

The flock profiling concept was developed by University of Maryland researchers and tested by Dr. Edward T. Mallinson, who encourages its use by poultry producers through the Cooperative Extension Service. The pilot program with DPI and Delaware represents the first large-scale field trial of flock profiling since the technique was first conceived.

According to Mallinson, flock profiling is a diagnostic tool producers can use to determine if a disease is present in a flock, how much of it is there, and what kind of threat it poses to the entire flock. It permits continual monitoring of health conditions in a flock, and it pays off by promising lower mortality rates from diseases such as Newcastle virus, infectious bronchitis virus, avian mycroplasmosis, and bursal disease.

Mallinson adds: "If you know from the flock profile that a disease is making inroads into a flock, you have early detection on your side, and that can be critical in planning a rational program of prevention and control."

Producer Involvement

The project involves 18 poultry farms in Maryland and 21 in Delaware, says DPI executive secretary Ed Ralph. "In Maryland, field workers will be collecting 13,000 blood and tissue samples from farms where the problem is acute, those where it is not so bad, and those where there does not seem to be a high incidence of infection."

In Delaware, says DPI's Dr. Holder, disease-free birds will be placed in production houses with the same characteristics – high incidence of air sac infection, low incidence, and average incidence – to determine if and how quickly they pick up the infection.

Meanwhile, in Maryland, field agents will collect and send blood and tissue samples of infected birds to the University of Maryland's laboratories in College Park. Blood samples will be analyzed for evidence of seven different kinds of viruses by a team of scientists headed by Dr. David B. Snyder and Dr. Warren E. Marquardt. Snyder and Marquardt modified last year a system called ELISA (for Enzyme-Linked Immunosorbent Assay) to analyze huge numbers of blood samples in a relatively short period of time.

The ELISA system is so sensitive, it can detect a viral infection several days sooner in its pathogenic cycle than other more commonly used assays. It is a high-speed diagnostics tool: It can detect viruses in a matter of hours, while conventional methods can take days, even weeks of laborious tests.

In addition to blood tests, actual samples of tissue from infected birds will be analyzed by another team of scientists at Maryland. While the blood tests look for that which you cannot see – the presence of a virus – the tissue tests will be looking for visible or microscopic changes that take place as a result of infection.

All of the scientists have one goal -- to find the common denominators in diseased flocks that cause air sac infection.

The most important nutrient

Water is a nutrient that's easy to forget. But there's little doubt that water ranks high in importance. Virtually everything that happens in an animal or on the farm depends on water. And every producer knows that when you stop the flow of water to a group of hogs, they'll be off feed in a matter of hours.

How much water do pigs need? That's related to feed intake and body weight. A rough rule of thumb is that a pig needs about 2½ pounds (1.25 quarts) of water for every pound of feed he consumes. So a 50-pound pig that's eating three pounds of feed a day will need a little less than a gallon of water per day. If pigs are limit fed or bored they may drink more. For example, I've seen pigs housed in metabolism cages drink three times the usual amount. High salt or mineral levels in the water and hot weather will also increase water consumption.

Is it OK to limit water intake? Yes, if you're limit feeding. For example, sows getting five pounds of feed per day need no more than three gallons of water under normal conditions. But lactating sows should have free access to water to maximize milk production. Market hogs on full feed should also have an unlimited water supply, if you want to make the most of their growth potential. Some commercial feeding systems combine limited access to both feed and water. So far they seem to be working satisfactorily.

Be concerned about your water source. Ponds or slow-moving streams may contain water that's warmer than normal. That can lead to bacterial growth and potential health problems in the hogs. High levels of minerals such as sulfates and magnesium can lead to diarrhea. Elevated nitrate levels can be toxic as well. A total solids content of 7,000 parts per million is considered the maximum before performance is affected.

Should you have your water checked? It's not a bad idea. It's a must if you observe chronic diarrhea, poor feed intake or other health problems. A commercial laboratory or your health department can usually assist in water analysis.

What sort of watering device is best for pigs? One that can provide clean water. One that requires little maintenance. One that won't freeze. And one that can stand a lot of abuse. For growing pigs it's tough to find a waterer that will do the job better than a nipple. Nipples work well for sows, too. If sows are housed in gestation crates, however, a continuous concrete trough with a valve at one end is an effective and inexpensive way to go.

For baby pigs, a bowl or cup waterer that can be shared by the sow and litter is best. There are quarter-inch nipples designed for nursing pigs, but many have a tendency to clog or leak. And baby pigs won't use nipples as readily as the bowl type waterers.

Many folks feel that nipples have to be mounted on a 45-degree angle to prevent water wastage. I disagree. It's probably more important to install guards around the nipple to force the pig to bite the waterer from the front. Another problem with the 45-degree theory is that the nipples should be adjusted for the pig's size. And to be correct, they should be the same height as the pig's back line. If you're not inclined to constantly adjust the nipple height--and most people aren't–you'll be just as well off to mount the nipple horizontally. Placing the nipple 9-12 inches off the floor will suit the needs for growing hogs.

How many waterers should you provide? It's better to have too many than not enough. Pigs fight over the feeder and they'll do the same thing at the water fountain. A rule of thumb is one waterer for every 10 to 15 pigs, with a minimum of two per pen. Space the fountains far enough apart so pigs can drink without aggravating each other–1½ to 2 feet minimum.

Water is the cheapest and most important nutrient you have to provide. Give it the attention it deserves.

UEP to coordinate eggs for Ethiopia program

DECATUR, Ga. – The United Egg Producers is launching a drive to coordinate the donation of 100 tons of dried egg mix to Ethiopia and other drought-stricken areas of Africa.

Although the media no longer focuses prime time coverage on the ravaging drought and the harsh reality of famine in Africa, the starvation and death continues. Sudan has appealed to the Western and Arab nations for new shipments of food for the approximately 7 million starving people.

Egg producers should respond to this appeal with the donation of eggs for this dried egg mix program during the month of July. Truckload quantities will be collected within each state at a central facility for delivery to the drying plants.

The further processors, in turn, will mix and package the product and deliver to the designated ports. The Christian Relief Development Agency and the International Red Cross have volunteered to ship the dried egg mix and deliver it within Africa. UEP will be coordinating the donations through its regional offices.

For more information contact Northeast Egg Marketing Association, P.O. Box MM, Durham, NH 03824. Phone: 603-868-2824.

4 states represented at Shorthorn Spring Sale

MERCER – Buyers from Pennsylvania, New York, Virginia and Ohio competed for the 32 head of Shorthorn cattle at the Pa. Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn Spring Sale on May 4.

Held at the Mercer 4-H Park, Mercer, the sale featured eight bulls and 24 females. The event's top selling bull was a yearling Irish bull consigned by Frank McCracken of Monaca, Pa., and sold to Hizely Highland Farm, New Waterford, Ohio, for $775.

The sale's high open heifer was Woodside Royal Eliza 29X, consigned by Woodside Farm of Waynesburg, Pa. Sired by JAF Major Duke, the July heifer went to sale manager George Hunter of Stoneboro, Pa., for $600.

Tuscarora Shorthorns of Neelyton, Pa., consigned the high selling cow-calf pair. Tuscarora Queen 34X with her Megshire Frontier X-sired bull calf went to John Piscella of Apollo, Pa., for $770.

By the close of the sale, nine buyers had paid an average of $464 for eight bulls, and $360 for the 24 females.

"Grasstime Sale"

HARRISBURG – The Pennsylvania Simmental Association announces its first offering of Simmental in eastern Pennsylvania. The Farm Show Complex will be the site of this first ever "Grasstime Sale" on Saturday, May 25, at 1 p.m. in the Small Arena.

Sixty-five lots will be sold. Percentage and purebred females will be available, with most being bred or having a calf at side.

For information contact Wayne Stough, RD1 Box 1197, Spring Grove, Pa. 17362. Phone: 717-225-6279.

Rally Farms Angus tops New York Bull Test Sale

ITHACA, N.Y. — An Angus bull of OLC Winchester consigned by Rally Farms of Millbrook, N.Y. topped the New York Performance Test Bull Sale May 3 at Ithaca with a price of $3,300. The buyer was ShiRaLoKen Farm of Depost, N.Y., who bought the top selling bull at the 1983 Bull Test Sale also.

The 48 bulls sold by auctioneer John Spiker of West Virginia during the fast-paced sale grossed $64,985 for a sale average of $1,353.85 — the second highest average for a New York Bull Test Sale.

The mood of the sale was set by New York Commissioner of Agricutlure and Markets Joseph Gerace who opened the sale by paying tribute to the breeders who had consigned their bulls to the performance test program. "These bulls here tonight are the best of the best," the Commissioner said, adding, "they are branded with the outline of New York State and so will be recognized not only for themselves but also for the state's beef industry."

The 18 Angus bulls, although last in the sale order, recorded the highest breed average, $1,634 and grossed $29,425.

The second and third highest selling bulls were also Angus consignments. A Ballantree Farm of Westfield son of Premier Independence was purchased at $2,500 by George Junior Republic of Freeville. This was one of the two Angus bulls to attain superior certification. A Cluvert Brook Farm of Hamilton consignment, a Pine Drive Big Sky son, went to Watchtower Farms of Walkill for $1,900. Watchtower also bought the fifth high selling bull, also an Angus as well as three other Angus bulls.

Honors for fourth high selling bull and top selling Simmental bull went to the Simme Valley Ranch of Auburn consignment, a son of Generation III. The buyer at $1,825 was Robert Treadwell of Naples.

The five Charolais bulls grossed $6,975 for the second highest breed average of the sale, $1,395. The top selling Charolais was a MeadowView Farm of Frankfort son of LCC Royal Perfecto which was bought at $1,500 by Percy Nickerson of Mayville.

The 11 Polled Herefords grossed $13,700 for a sale average of $1,245. The top selling Polled Hereford was a Si-Jo Oak Citation 87 son consigned by Windy Knoll Farms of South Wales. The buyer at $1,475 was Raymond Dunn of Hornell.

The two Red Angus bulls grossed $2,075 for a sale average of $1,037. Ken Marquis of Ithaca consigned the top selling bull, a son of Leachman STPMDR 4069. The buyer at $1,175 was Richard Shaver.

The five Shorthorn bulls grossed $3,685 for a sale avarage of $735. The top selling bull was the certified superior son of Sangamon Irish Plumber consigned by Stony Brook Farm of Locke. The buyer at $1,200 was Angelica Feeder Sales Inc.

"William Greene, livestock extension associate at Cornell and director of the Bull Test program and sale said, "the brisk bidding and the prices that are comparable to other 1985 bull test sales show the acceptance of performance testing and the realization that the bull represents half of the genetic package of the herd."

This year more than 100 bulls were nominated and 85 bulls completed the 140 day performance test program with a cumulative average daily gains of 3.43 pounds. The 48 bulls in the sale were those that met the strict certification standards as to rate of gain, frame score, efficiency, and breeding and structural soundness.

The Bull Test and Sale are sponsored by Cornell University, Cooperative Extension, Ag & Markets and the Beef Cattlemen's Association.

Bedford to host Beef Preview Show

BEDFORD — Young 4-H and FFA cattlemen from Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Somerset, Huntingdon and Fulton Counties should plan to attend the second annual Bedford County Beef Preview Show on Saturday, June 29, at the Bedford Fairgrounds.

Saturday's 1 p.m. show will be preceded by show preparation demonstrations throughout the morning. Fitting, clipping and showing demonstrations will get under way at 8 a.m. provided by Jeff W. and Jeff K. Claycomb of Claycomb's Livestock and Crop Farm, Osterburg. Hoof trimming instruction will be given by Charles Whitfield of Schellsburg.

Cash prizes will be awarded to exhibitors of the grand and reserve champion steers, as well as the first five placings in each class and the champion heifer over all breeds.

For more information contact the Bedford County Extension office, 814-623-5148.

A BALING BREAKTHROUGH

Krone Round Balers

- A totally NEW concept in baling machinery, the Krone line of round balers features an endless chain conveyor without belts. Closed chamber reduces problems associated with conventional belt type balers. Less horsepower required for the Krone Round Baler's fewer moving parts means great energy savings. Produces weather resistant bales with hard outer wrap and medium density core for better curing. Available in two models for bale diameters of five or six feet.

Penn State to hold rabbit conference

UNIVERSITY PARK — During the past 10 years, interest in raising rabbits has grown to the point that approximately 24,000 people now keep rabbits in Pennsylvania. To address subjects of interest to those people in the rabbit industry, a rabbit conference has been scheduled for June 14 and 15, 1985, at the Pennsylvania State University.

This conference will feature Dr. Hugo Varela Alvarez from Oregon State University, who has conducted considerable research internationally on lactation and nutrition of the rabbit. In addition to nutrition, the conference will address such topics as marketing of pelts, use of drugs or other therapeutics to prevent or control disease, proper buildings and environment, and 4-H and other youth activities. Also included in this year's conference will be a wet lab workshop to necropsy and diagnose disease.

To obtain a program for the 1985 Penn State Rabbit Conference, call (814) 865-8301 or write Short Courses in Agriculture, 306 Agricultural Administration Building, The Pennsylvania State University, University Park, PA 16802.

Cattle scours report available

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — A new management report on the incidence and treatment of diarrhea in beef and dairy cattle is now available from The Upjohn Company.

The report describes how calf scours and winter dysentery can rob a producer of much needed profits by lowering milk production as well as possibly causing the death of some affected animals.

Included in the report is expert advice on how to manage cattle to lower the incidence of these diseases and treatment procedures to follow when the diseases strike.

Single copies of this report can be obtained by writing: Cattle Scours Management Report 1, The Upjohn Company, P.O. Box 5087, Kalamazoo, Michigan 49003.

Angus Juniors to converge on Tulsa in July

TULSA, Okla. — More than 600 head of Angus cattle will be arriving at the state fairgrounds in Tulsa, Oklahoma this summer for the 17th National Junior Angus Show, July 9 to 12.

Joe Bill Meng, Bowling Green, Kentucky, will judge the divisions for bred- and- owned heifers, bred-and- owned bulls, cow/calf pairs and owned heifers. Dr. Bob Kropp, Stillwater, Oklahoma, will judge the "on-hoof" steer division.

All exhibitors must be a junior, regular or life member of the American Angus Association, and be nine-years-old by January 1, 1985 and not yet 21 years of age by that date.

Finals of the 19th National Junior Angus Showmanship Contest will take place on Friday, July 12. Around 76 contestants from 36 states and Canada are expected to compete for the honor of "Top Showman".

For more information and entry blanks, contact the junior activities department of the American Angus Association, 3201 Frederick Blvd., St. Joseph, Missouri 64501.

Alfred State College will hold swine open house

ALFRED, N.Y. — On May 30, 1985 Alfred State College will hold an Open House in its new swine facility on the College Farm Complex.

The new facility will be used to train students in modern management of swine. It will be a 45-sow, farrow-to-finish unit with four areas: Gestation-breeding, farrowing, nursery and growing-finishing.

The Open House will be from 1:00-3:00 p.m., May 30, at the College Farm Complex, Rt. 244, Alfred, N.Y.

"Here's why I sell Bicep"

Bicep does a better job of controlling broadleaf weeds and grasses in corn and sorghum than most tank mixes In field after field, year after year, I've watched them all perform And I've had my customers come back, for Bicep

Here's why I like to recommend BICEP:

- Weed and grass control that you don t get with other products or tank mixes
- The convenience of handling just one product
- And economics is the clincher

It s pretty interesting When my customers start to discuss weed control in corn or sorghum Bicep usually comes out on top And for good reasons

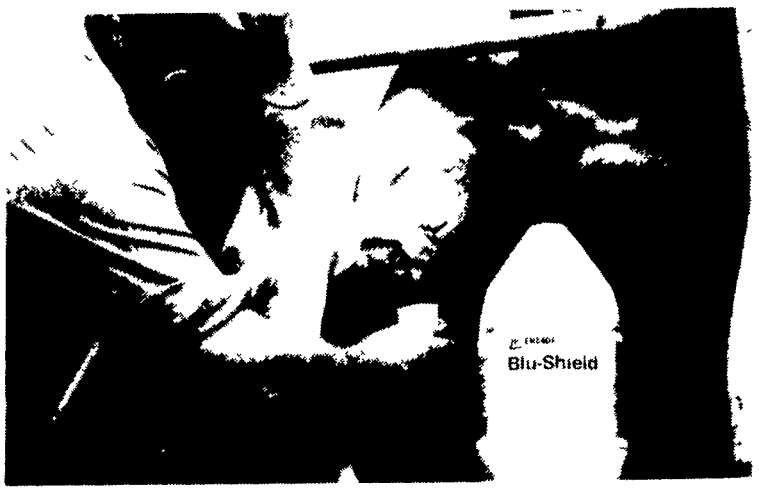
BUSINESS NEWS...



New Blu-Shield™ Barrier Teat Dip forms a protective barrier to keep bacteria out. Its powerful germicide provides anit-bacterial activity for up to 12 hours, while emollients treat teats and hands gently. And Blu-Shield can be more easily removed than other barrier dips.

Klenzade unveils Blu-Shield mastitis dip

ST. PAUL, MN – Dairy farmers can now effectively guard against milk production losses caused by mastitis by using a teat dip that combines barrier protection with a powerful, proven germicide.

New Blu-Shield from Klenzade Division of Economics Laboratory, Inc., offers rapid, broad spectrum germicide action and also forms a protective barrier on the teat, preventing common mastitis-causing bacterial organisms from entering the teat canal between milkings.

The product provides the quick kill of germs needed immediately after milking inflations are removed and continues the protection throught its physical barrier.

The active ingredient in Blu-Shield–DDBSA for short–is the same found in Blu-Gard from Klenzade. This powerful germicide has been proven effective against strep, staph and coliform mastitis organisms in university tests.

Blu-Shield can be easily applied after each milking for maximum protection. In contrast to latex barrier teat dips which may have to be peeled off, Blu-Shield can be removed with warm water and a wet udder towel before the next milking.

As it dries following application, the product's unique formulation creates a small button at the bottom of the teat, providing added protection over the teat opening.

The Blu-Shield germicidal barrier protects cows when they are most prone to infection: just after milking, in muddy conditions and during drying off and freshening.

Blu-Shield contains no iodine, preventing many of the problems associated with iodine teat dips. It does not have an offensive odor; it minimizes irritation; and because of its blue color cannot be confused with high-acid iodine udderwashes.

Equipment makers provide prizes for forage contest

MADISON, WI – Three major farm equipment manufacturers are providing forage equipment prizes for the WORLD'S SECOND FORAGE ANALYSIS SUPERBOWL. Each will provide their lead product for "one season's free use" to a grand prize winner. Winners will be determined during the WORLD'S SECOND FORAGE ANALYSIS SUPERBOWL at World Dairy Expo here October 2-6.

Grand prize in the hay division is one season's use of a 1985 New Idea Round Baler 494 model with a special attachment for slicing bales.

Grand prize in the haylage division is one season's use of a Gehl 1060 Forage Harvester with forage attachment.

The "Best of the Rest" award is one season's use of a Badger Northland Forage Box.

Dairymen interested in participating in the contest can get entry blanks from the World Dairy Expo office, 2135 Rimrock Road, Madison, WI 53713. Wisconsin dairymen can also get entry blank copies from their Wisconsin DHI supervisors.

Over 36 commercial companies are sponsoring prizes worth over $30,000 for the WORLD'S SECOND FORAGE ANALYSIS SUPERBOWL.

The WORLD'S SECOND FORAGE ANALYSIS SUPERBOWL is designed to reinforce the importance of good quality hay and haylage in the pursuit of optimum milk production. Contest sponsors are HOLSTEIN WORLD magazine, World Dairy Expo, The University of Wisconsin – Extension, and Wisconsin DHI. All dairymen are encouraged to enter their hay or haylage samples in the WORLD'S SECOND FORAGE ANALYSIS SUPERBOWL.

Melroe introduces new skid-steer loader

FARGO, N. Dak. – The Melroe Company recently introduced a new 2400-pound-rated skid-steer loader to its dealer network meeting in San Diego, Calif. The new 943 Bobcat was the highlight of the meeting, which drew some 1500 Bobcat dealer representatives from around the world.

Powering this new loader is a four-cylinder Perkins diesel engine, rated at 68.5 horsepower, with 236 cubic inches displacement.

Equipped with four-wheel hydrostatic drive, and backed by 8900 pounds of operating weight, the 943 has a tipping load capacity of 4800 pounds. The machine's skid-steer principle makes it maneuverable in quarters where loaders of comparable capacity couldn't operate.

The 943 has a 30-gallon fuel tank to ensure full-day operation without refueling breaks. The Perkins 4.236 engine is transversely mounted to shorten the loader's overall length for better maneuverability

The loader will lift 2400 pounds up to 10-½ feet with a forward reach of two feet for easy loading into trucks.

The Bobcat's heavy-duty Bob-Tach mounting system allows quick changing of attachments–ranging from dirt, utility and light material buckets, to an industrial grapple, to pallet forks–all in less than a minute, without wrenches, bolts or problems.

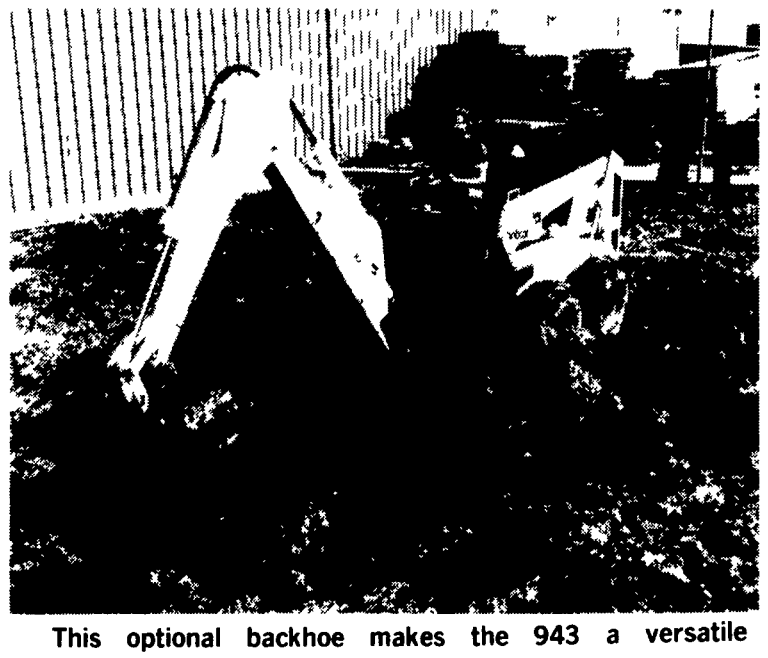
A rear scarifier attachment can be mounted to the loader frame and activated hydraulically for ripping up compacted ground for sidewalks, driveways and landscaping.

Backhoe Available

A companion to the 943 is Melroe's new 13-foot Bobcat backhoe.

The 913 backhoe was designed with a special rack and pinion swing system that allows a narrower frame for maneuverability in tight quarters, yet the wide stabilizers give this new backhoe super stability. The wide stabilizer arms fold up within the width of the loader's frame for exceptional compactness.

Servo-assisted steering controls allow fingertip response on Melroe's new 943 loader.



This optional backhoe makes the 943 a versatile workhorse.

The 943 comes equipped with a deep-cushioned, adjustable suspension seat. Other standard features include an ether starting aid, parking brake, operating lights, top and rear windows, front and rear auxiliary hydraulics, and spark arrestor muffler.

Optional accessories include a cab enclosure with heater for winter operation, backup alarm, horn and caution lights, lift eye kit, fire extinguisher, boom stops and flotation tires.

For information, contact Melroe Company, 112 North University Drive, Fargo, North Dakota 58102, phone 701/241-8700.

Fertilizer group backs two export measures

WASHINGTON – Two separate efforts in Congress this week, targeted toward expanding agricultural exports through "in-kind" incentives, were applauded by the head of the fertilizer industry association here.

Gary D. Myers, president, The Fertilizer Institute, said plans advanced by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., and Rep. Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa, deserved rapid consideration by Congress and the Administration.

Sen. Dole called on the administration Monday to activate what he termed "BICEP" (Bonus Incentive Commodity Export Program). Later in the week, a House agriculture panel, led by Reps. Bedell and Pat Roberts, R-Kan., adopted an amendment to farm legislation which also is aimed at use of U.S. stored commodities as in-kind export incentives.

The Fertilizer Institute has been one of the leaders in encouraging export promotion and incentive programs in order to expand markets and improve the U.S. farm economy. "Now, in the midst of our U.S. planting season, is the time to aggresively push for expansion of foreign markets for our farm products," said Myers.

Both the Dole and Bedell proposals come on the heels of French President Mitterand's action over and the weekend to block any discussion of farm exports in international trade meetings. In his statement to the Senate on May 6, Dole urged the administration to initiate his BICEP program to demonstrate U.S. resolve to compete in world markets against prevailing anti-competitive foreign farm export subsidies.

Under Dole's plan, government surplus commodities would be available on a bid basis as bonuses to companies which contract to sell specified quantities of U.S. agricultural products in export. A special government and private sector ag export committee would administer the program.

Dole noted that storage of government-owned commodities will cost $360 million in FY 1986 alone, and said his BICEP program would reduce these outlays, as well as boost ag exports and aid the U.S. farm economy.

Bedell's export promotion plan also would utilize surplus commodities owned by the Commodity Credit Corporation as incentives for agricultural export contracts. Commodities would be available as a bonus in an amount "having value that is equivalent to the difference between U.S. export prices and world prices." Under the plans, the export payment-in-kind program could involve the same commodity, or a different commodity, to that being shipped under contract sales.

Myers pointed out that the two proposals join a number of others either introduced or announced in Congress, all of which would seek to aid the agricultural economy through government-backed export expansion programs.

Scours manual

KALAMAZOO, MI – A new reference manual on "Keeping Scours Under Control" is available from The Upjohn Company. This management manual is the fourth in a series of publications on various aspects of profitable swine production – previously including economics, respiratory and arthritis problems.

The scours manual describes the symptoms associated with nutritional, viral, bacterial and parasitic scours, their effects on hogs and management practices for treating and preventing all three forms. A management checklist is also included for producers to analyze and reduce scours in their herds.

This and the other manuals, too, should be helpful to local extension agents, farm advisors, veterinarians, university specialists and other agricultural consultants.

A copy of this manual is obtainable by writing: Swine Scours Diseases Manual, The Upjohn Company, P.O. Box 5087, Kalamzaoo, MI 49003-5087.

Case International unveils line of combines

RACINE, WI — This year, a familiar team of reliable machines will roll into the field with a new name. The entire fleet of International Harvester Axial Flow® combines will be offered by the new Case International dealer network.

Case International dealerships are fully stocked with parts for all the models, and staffed with mechanics trained to service them, says Gerry Salzman, J I Case Manager, Combine Promotion. "Parts, service and warranty support will be better than ever," Salzman said. "Case is committed to keeping these machines in the field."

The Case International combine lineup includes:

• Self-propelled 1420, 1440, 1460 and 1480 model Axial Flow combines for corn, soybeans, wheat and other grains, equipped with 124, 135, 170 and 210 horsepower diesel engines. The 1460, one of the most popular combines ever made, is a proven performer. The 1480 is designed for the largest acreages, including custom cutting.

• Pull-type 1482 Axial Flow combine for 130 to 200 PTO horsepower tractors. One of the largest pull-type combines manufactured, it has captured more than half of all pull-type sales. IH was the first manufacturer to offer a rotary pull-type combine.

• Self-propelled Axial Flow rice combine models 1420, 1460 and 1480. Wheel and track-type models with 124, 170 and 210 horsepower, designed especially for rice.

• 1470 Hillside Axial Flow Combine with 210 horsepower and hydrostatic four-wheel drive for steep slopes and soft soil conditions.

• Model 810 rigid cutterbar grain headers for wheat, milo, barley, flax, oats, rice and other crops. Ten to 30 foot sizes.

• Model 820 flexible cutterbar header, ideal for soybeans. Thirteen- to 22 ½-foot sizes, with deluxe reel available.

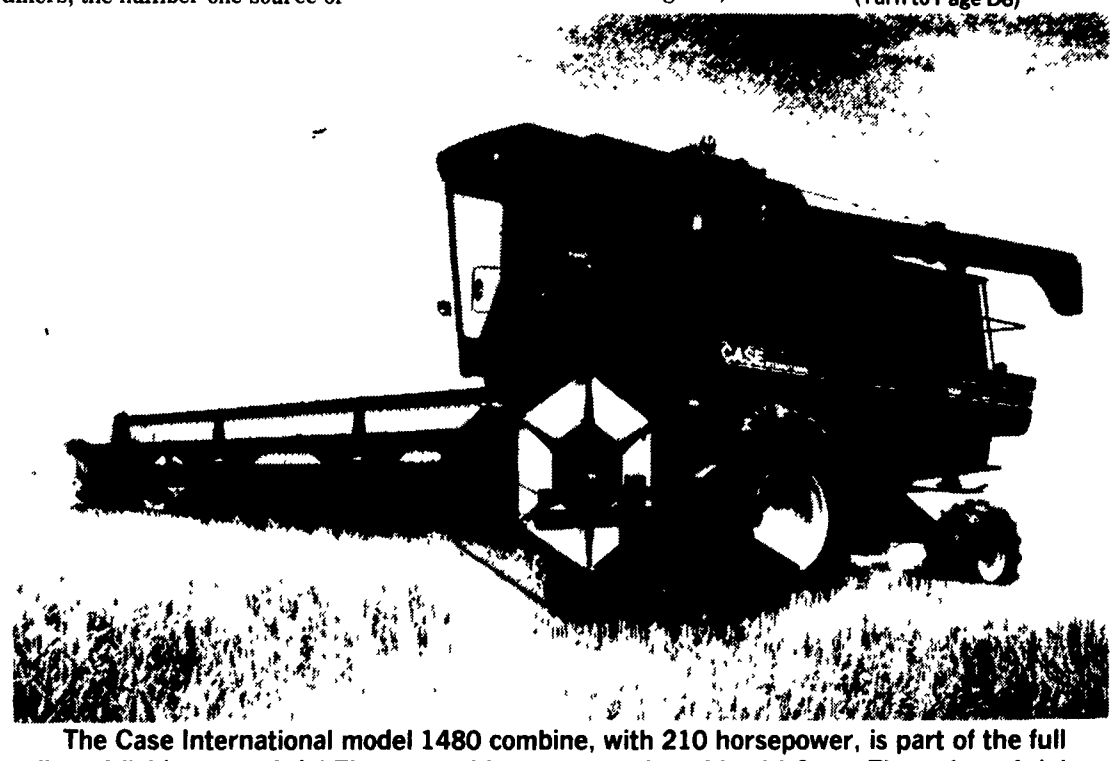
Leading the lineup are the 1480 and 1460 self-propelled Axial Flows, designed to tackle big acreages and tight schedules. These cost-competitive combines feature 210 and 170 horsepower diesel engines and the unique Axial Flow threshing and separating mechanism.

In comparison to conventional cylinder and straw walker systems, the Axial Flow has several advantages:

Greater Grain Retention — While other combines just thresh the grain once, the Axial Flow uses a multiple threshing and separating action, combined with centrifugal force, to recover a higher percentage of grain from the heads and do a better job of separating it from the straw. In doing so, they eliminate straw walkers, the number one source of grain loss and maintenance problems in conventional combines.

Less Grain Damage — Since conventional combines have just one chance to thresh the grain, they must use harsh, abrasive action to yield an acceptable amount. The Axial Flow combine, however, uses multiple passes over the threshing area for

(Turn to Page D8)



The Case International model 1480 combine, with 210 horsepower, is part of the full line of field proven Axial Flow® combines now marketed by J I Case. The unique Axial Flow multiple threshing and separating system is designed for top grain retention, grain quality, time savings and dependability.

Neogen buys Ideal Corp.

EAST LANSING, MI – Neogen Corporation has announced its acquisition of Ideal Instruments, a 53-year-old veterinary products company. Ideal, based in Chicago, was formerly owned by Immunogenetics Incorporated of Vineland, NJ. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

"Ideal produces the widest array of durable veterinary products in the United States, ranging from hypodermic needles to major pieces of surgical equipment," said James Herbert, president of Neogen. "Since Ideal develops and markets products for administering animal health, its business is very compatible with many of the current and projected interests of Neogen."

Neogen Corporation is a four-year-old, privately held biotechnology firm. The company develops and markets products for the diagnosis and prevention of diseases in animals and plants, using new techniques made possible through biotechnology.

"We expect to continue the programs that have made Ideal the nation's leader in the production of vaccination and obstetrical equipment used by veterinarians and livestock men," Herbert said. "In addition, we expect to develop new instruments for the delivery of animal health that will keep pace with the new technologies being employed in the industry."

Herbert also announced the new Ideal management team, all of whom were Ideal employees under Immunogenetics management. William Ostrosky has assumed the responsibilities of Vice President and General Manager; Mike Trantham has become Sales Manager; and Glenn Dalton is the new Manager of New Product Development.

Select Sires adds two bulls

PLAIN CITY, OH – 7H1862 Joy-Dale Tradition Jim-ET and 7H1901 Woodbine Valiant Eldon-ET, two young bulls from the state of Pennsylvania, have been chosen to enter Select Sires' Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) sire sampling system.

Based on their outstanding pedigrees, these bull calves have been selected as two of 140 Holstein bulls throughout the United States to enter the program in 1985.

Joy-Dale Tradition Jim-ET was bred by Dale W. Peifer of Kirkwood. The sire of this bull calf is Sweet-Haven Tradition, a high PD Milk sire with 99% Repeatability. The dam, Tri-Town Conductor Joyce, is a Very Good (88) Wapa Arlinda Conductor daughter with all records over 20,200M. Her best record is: 6-3 350d 24,477M 3.9% 959F. The granddam is Very Good (87) with records to 24,304M 921F in 315 days. The third dam is also Very Good (89) with two records over 25,800M and 1,100F.

The second PGA young sire is Woodbine Valiant Eldon-ET, bred by Paul H. Knight of Airville. His sire S-W-D Valiant, a high TPI, triple plus Arlinda Chief son. His dam is Woodbine Elevation Ella, a Very Good (88) Bis-May Astro Jupiter daughter. As a junior two-year-old she made 18,895M 4.2% 785F in 365 days. Her best record is: 2-11 365d 21,210M 4.2% 890F. The granddam is the famous All-Time All-American Aged Cow, Northcroft Ella Elevation (EX-97-3E) (EX-MS). She has all records over 32,800M and 1,100F, twice over 44,000M. Her best record is. 7-7 365d 48,731M 4.2% 2,028F.

thorough, yet gentle, action. This means less cracking and dockage, which means better quality. This is particularly crucial for soybeans, edible beans and other sensitive crops.

Faster Harvesting – Quick harvesting enables the producer to take advantage of good weather. The Axial Flow combine's large rotor prevents "bottlenecks," and the 108-inch threshing length keeps the grain flowing smoothly and rapidly through the cage. The 210 and 170 horsepower engines in the 1480 and 1460 models provide ample power for the fastest practical ground speed, even in soft fields and heavy crop conditions. Hydrostatic drive gives complete speed control to operate fast enough for maximum productivity but slow enough for minimum crop loss.

Simpler Design, Easier Servicing – The Axial Flow combine's simple design means fewer parts to service, which helps prevent breakdowns. For example, one rotor does the job that requires 16 moving parts in a cylinder and straw walker combine. Fewer moving parts and easily accessible components cut service time to just a few minutes per day. The engine can be reached without having to go through the grain tank, and the hydraulics, drive elements and fuel tank are serviced from the rear deck.

Field Proven – Salzman says many producers have reported that their Axial Flows are more productive than their previous combines. The customer reports - for corn, soybeans, wheat, rice and milo - showed that Axial Flows averaged more bushels per acre and more cents paid per bushel.

Hisex creates grower guide

TROUTMAN, N.C. — A new technical management guide recommending effective grower techniques in managing the Hisex White layer is now available from the Hisex Division of Pilch, Inc., Troutman, North Carolina.

Based on several years of field results and an intensive testing period, the new manual provides growers with guidelines in layer management.

Included is information on feed consumption and body weight for the growing and layer period; average production per week; egg size; and such management guidelines as brooding temperatures, feed space and living space allowances per bird, requiring watering space, living space during growing stages in cages, nipple or cup type drinkers during the growing stage and guidelines in beak trimming.

Also included is information on monitoring pullet weight and uniformity, recording body weights and nutrition tips on the optimum housing space, and proper light requirements.

For a free copy of the new technical manual, contact Hisex Division, Pilch, Inc., Pilch Road, P.O. Box 438, Troutman, NC 28166 or call (704) 528-4501.

Farm Credit News

Farm Credit adopts new logo

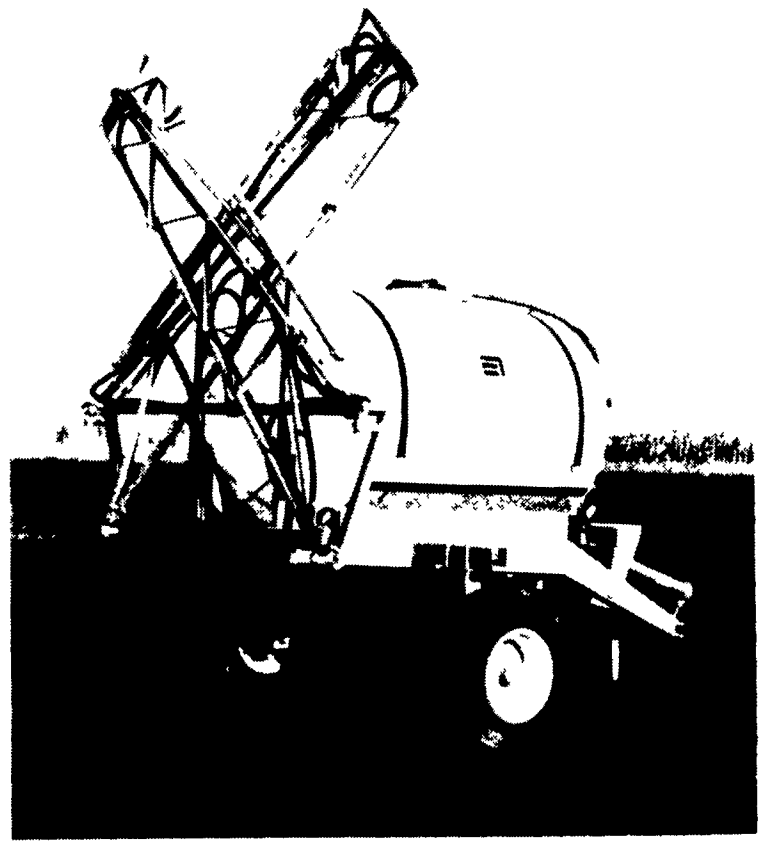
LANCASTER — The Lancaster Farm Credit Associations formally announced adoption of a new corporate symbol on April 1, 1985.

The new symbol, called the Biostar, will replace the current Farm Credit Service symbol according to James S. Owens, General Manager of the Associations.

The Biostar, represents "a new symbol of progress" for the Farm Credit System, according to Baltimore Banks' President, Gene L. Swackhamer.

"An organization that is growing and committed to the future needs a strong identity," he noted. "The new mark represents both the agricultural industry we serve and the strength and unity of the System."

Ag-Chem pull sprayer



Ag-Chem Equipment Co., Inc.'s 502 TP quick-attach/quick-detach pull sprayer has a 500-gallon rated capacity and a poly tank with a full-length, stainless sparger for complete product agitation, and a large gathering sump for product withdrawal. Standard equipment includes a Hypro centrifugal pump in either 600 rpm or 1000 rpm. The pump may be PTO mounted or PTO shaft driven. A 7-way boom control valve gives selectable application with any section or combination of sections on the 40' truss type boom. The heavy-duty field chassis has "C" section steel frame and crossmember construction. The full-length tank saddle provides added support for long tank life. More information is available from Ag-Chem Equipment Co., Inc., Industrial Park, Jackson, Minnesota 56143, phone 507/847-2690.

Sollenberger Silos honors dealers

CHAMBERSBURG – Lloyd F. Shaffer of SOMERSET BARN EQUIPMENT, Somerset, PA, was recently recognized as Sollenberger Silos Corp.'s number one dealer in sales and years of service.

Shaffer has sold nearly 100 upright poured-in-place concrete silos in the Somerset area over the past 17 years.

Beginning before 1910, SOLLENBERGER SILOS of Chambersburg is now building concrete silos in seven states through a network of 19 dealers. The company is still growing with dealerships available in selected areas.

In the number two position was Terry Harclerode of HARCLERODE'S DAIRYMEN SPECIALTY, of New Paris, PA. Terry has sold 42 silos since 1978.

Recognitions were made at the first annual dealer meeting held recently in Chambersburg, PA.

Roche to sell growth drug

NUTLEY, NJ – Hoffman-La Roche Inc. has obtained a sole and exclusive worldwide license from G.D. Searle to make, use and sell progestin Norgestomet as a growth promotant in heifers. Searle developed the compound and had been working toward its approval by the Food and Drug Administration for use in heifers.

Roche will soon begin field trials with Norgestomet, which is intended to be administrated via the implantation of a long-term, time-release delivery system that will enable the drug to be utilized in pasture cattle.

"This new product and delivery system will offer a significant advantage in terms of facilitating long-term growth promotion in pasture heifers prior to their selection for breeding or the feedlot," said Robert J. Frattaroli, vice president and general manager of Roche's agriculture and animal health business.

Roche is also the developer and marketer of Bovatec (lasalocid sodium/Roche), a growth promotant for feedlot and pasture cattle.

Women's work boot

SOUTH PLAINFIELD, NJ – Tingley Rubber has introduced two new women's work boots.

The boots have been created expressly for the smaller countours of a woman's foot.

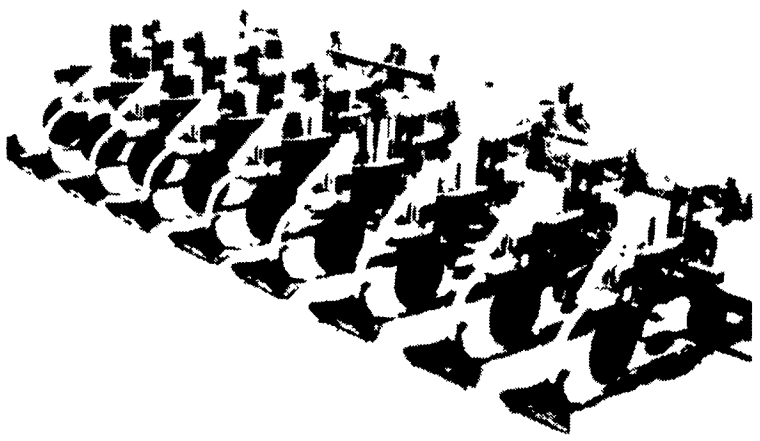
The first style is molded from Tingley's Premier Performance pvc/nitrile blend. It is for use around salts, alkalies, most alcohols, organic acids and inorganic acids. It comes with a chevron sole for excellent slip resistance on clean, wet surfaces.

The second style is molded from Tingley's General Purpose pvc blend. It offers either a chevron sole or a self-cleaning cleated outsole.

Both the pvc and pvc/nitrile styles are available in steel toe or plain toe.

For more information, contact Tingley Rubber Corporation, P.O. Box 100, South Plainfield, New Jersey 07080 (201) 757-7474.

Glencoe Cultivator



The Glencoe® High Trash Cultivator is designed primarily to cultivate and build precise, uniform ridges in ridge-till systems. The heavy-duty, easily adjusted implements also works effectively in no-till, minimum till and traditional till systems where maximum amounts of residue may exist. Glencoe's 7-by-7-inch, heavy-wall toolbar supports the double-decked Sturdi-Link parallel bars designed for strength and cultivating accuracy. The 4-by-4-inch, weighted gang tubes put more weight over the row where it is needed for shank penetration to weed or build ridges. Two adjustable disk hillers and a choice of rigid shanks or the patented Glencoe Adjusto-Pitch® shanks and sweeps provide complete removal of weeds from row to row. Equipped with unique adjustable ridger attachment this unit will build ridges up to nine inches without damaging fragile crops even in adverse conditions. The Glencoe High Trash Cultivator is available from four-row, 30-inch non-folding to 12-row, 30-inch flatbed models. For additional information contact Portable Elevator Division, Bloomington, Il.

Soil and water conservation can help wildlife

LEESPORT — A soil and water conservation system in force on the farm can benefit wildlife as well as crops.

Many practices that provide special needs of wildlife are discussed in a new publication, "Going Wild With Soil and Water Conservation," Program Aid Number 1363, prepared by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service.

Your District Conservationist can help you plan a conservation system and determine the quality of wildlife habitat on your farm or ranch. SCS conservationists offer management assistance to save soil and water and to increase or improve the habitat for desired wildlife species. "Going Wild" recommends several plants that benefit wildlife in many areas. Make sure that the plants you are considering are adapted to your area.

Wildlife can benefit from many conservation practices, especially erosion control practices used on cropland. Practices include conservation tillage, cover and green manure crops, stripcropping, grassed waterways, narrowbase or bench terraces, field windbreaks, and field borders. Also, areas that are erodible or difficult to farm lend themselves well to wildlife management.

Farming methods affect the wildlife habitat in many ways. Growing the same crop year after year reduces the diversity of plant cover and the variety of wildlife. Fall plowing buries grain and other residues that can provide food or cover for wildlife, which must compete with domestic livestock for food and cover that remain.

Conservation tillage leaves crop residue on the surface and lowers the chances of destroying nests in the field. The residue may provide food for birds, deer, and other small mammals as well as provide some cover. Of all methods of conservation tillage, no-till is most effective in reducing erosion and providing wildlife food and cover. All crop residue is left on the surface to support a greater number and diversity of nesting birds than clean-tilled fields.

Cover and green manure crops, strips of small grain in stripcropping, grassed waterways, terraces and field windbreaks provide cover and attract such wildlife as deer, pheasant, songbirds, and quail.

Where an earthen pond can be constructed, it serves to control gully erosion as well as a source of livestock water. A pond can provide, water and cover for waterfowl and other wildlife.

Through rangeland management, the quantity and quality of vegetation can be improved through practices such as proper grazing, deferred grazing, range seeding and brush management. With good range, both livestock and wildlife can flourish.

On pasture, when you select plants of more than one species, you can increase the length of the grazing season, improve forage quality and provide more food and cover for ground-nesting birds as well as improve forage for livestock.

When considering woodland improvement for wildlife, plant birdsfoot trefoil and tall fescue where adapted to provide forage for deer and a source of seed for wildlife. Fescues and clovers are desirable firebreaks because they stay green all year.

For more information on conservation practices that benefit wildlife, or a copy of "Going Wild...," contact your local Soil Conservation Office.

NEDCO board members elected

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — James G. Patsos of Waterloo, N.Y., and Glen Seeley of Marcellus, N.Y., were elected president and secretary, respectively, of the North East Dairy Cooperative Federation of the April 8 board meeting.

Mr. Patsos, a director of the Cayuga Lake Milk Producers' Cooperative, operates a 225 acre, 150 head Ayrshire dairy farm with his wife, Margaret, and son, Jim.

Mr. Patsos graduated from the New York State College of Forestry. He is active in the Tyre Reformed Church as well as in several ag-related associations: NYS Ayrshire Breeders, Cooperative Extension Agriculture Committee, DHIA, and 4-H as a veteran club leader.

Mr. Patsos was the Wayne County Farmer of the Year in 1981 and received the NYS Ayrshire Breeders Distinguished Service Award.

Glen Seeley, former Syracuse Dairy Farmers' Cooperative President, is the youngest director to sit on the executive committee. He and his wife, Nancy, both Penn State graduates, operate a 500 acre, 140 cow dairy farm.

Mr. Seeley is a member of Farm Bureau, DHIA, ADA/DC, Eastern AI, is a Mason and a member of the Marcellus Methodist Church.

Bicep cuts weeds in no-till corn

GREENSBORO, NC — Bicep herbicide now offers no-till corn growers in several states greater flexibility in broadleaf and grass control.

"Growers may apply a postemergence Bicep treatment in corn in Delaware, Maryland, Michigan, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia if rainfall after a standard preplant surface application results in a break in weed control," according to Dr. Henry Collins, a Ciba-Geigy senior research specialist.

"The soil life of a herbicide is normally reduced by excessive moisture. This label addition gives growers the opportunity to supplement their early application if weeds emerge prior to close-in of corn." The treatment is labeled for medium- and fine-textured soils.

For additional control of weeds like lambsquarters and pigweed, Bicep may not be tank mixed with linuron (Lorox) in preemergence applications in Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia.

MICROPAK CDA sprayer

The MICROPAK is a CDA sprayer with a 3-gallon backpack tank which, according to its manufacturer, will cover two acres at the recommended application rate, without the cumbersome and heavy 5-gallon, 48-pound tank of conventional sprayers. The backpack itself was designed to be comfortable for the operator. Its atomizer head is electrically powered by flashlight batteries, thus making the tiresome pumping of other backpacks a thing of the past. Controlled droplet application, (or CDA, as it is normally known) is a technology utilizing rotary atomization instead of hydraulic pressure for chemical spraying. This technology was introduced by Micron to the United States in 1977. CDA, as an ultra low volume application technique, significantly reduces the need of water, producing an even spray with droplets in a very narrow size range.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

DAIRYING ON 50 ACRES

This may come as a shock to some people who think that ALL farms are great big spreads of several hundred acres. The truth is, that there are thousands of small farms right here in the heart of southern Pennsylvania. Would you believe that the average farm size in Lancaster and Lebanon counties is less than 125 acres?

That means that nearly half of the farms are smaller than that, and that many working farms are between 50 and 75 acres. Many of them are dairy farms with 50 or more cows. Can these small acreage farms support that many cows, and just how efficient are they?

Experience in Dairy Extension over the past dozen years has brought me into contact with many of these small farms. And just as you would expect, there are good, profitable small farms, and there are those that are very marginal.

There are some conclusions that can be drawn about this, but usually boils down to two things; one is the size of the debt load the farm business is carrying, and the other is how well oiled and polished is the management machine. The first is rather obvious (to you, anyway), but the second needs some explaining.

While size of the debt load should be a rather obvious factor in the success of a small dairy operation, it often becomes as insidious and creeping infection that can destroy any hope of having a profitable business, no matter how big or small the farm is. Any business must generate enough cash flow to pay the current operating expenses, feed and clothe and educate the family, and, in addition, must pay interest and principal on borrowed capital.

If the farm seems to be feeding the family and presenting a good front to the community, but is hopelessly mired in debt, the days of the small family farm are numbered.

As for the 'well oiled and polished' manager, there are so many little facets involved that it nearly defies description. He (or she) needs so many attributes; intimate knowledge of cows, feeding and nutrition, health and breeding, attention to small details, and a thirst for knowledge in every angle of farm life. He not only subscribes to local and national dairy publications, but finds time to read and absorb the wisdom they contain.

A good part of that polish as a manager is exhibited in the ability to keep good records, and above all, to know at all times what the records are trying to tell him. Records kept for IRS tell very little about what it costs to grow a crop, feed a heifer, or produce 100 pounds of milk.

HOW TO SURVIVE ON A SMALL FARM

Maybe I should have started here, but I had to get your attention first. Small farms are not all alike, and should not be written off as failures just because of size. The economies associated with bigness can also become traps. A big farm needs big, expensive equipment, and lots of it. It also needs big management.

The most successful small dairies that I know of keep the operation as simple as possible. They concentrate on the most profitable features of their farm operation. If they can grow good alfalfa, and alfalfa is the backbone of the feed for the herd, that is about all they raise on their limited acreage. They need only the machinery required to make hay.

They can afford to pay a custom operator to fill the silo, rather than go into debt for equipment. Grain is often cheaper to buy than to raise.

But if they'd rather grow corn and beans than alfalfa, then that's where their efforts are concentrated. Their entire energy is spent where it counts most. The key is simplicity, in investment, time, and concentration on getting the most from the land and the herd.

And for the zillion'th time I must repeat that a farmer, big or small, must know how to figure the cost of each enterprise before start-up. He has little control over prices, but costs can always be projected. And if they are higher than expected prices, he "Should have stood in bed!"

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

With all of the reports about crime in the city, it's easy to overlook the problems of crime on the farm. Statistically, rural crime is insignificant. But farmers and farm organizations are worried about a spiraling crime rate in rural America that runs the gamut from breaking and entering to cattle rustling.

There was a time when there wasn't much around a farm worth stealing, except perhaps some livestock and that was hard to move, disguise, or even resell. But nowadays big-time agriculture means big investment in equipment and supplies, and that makes it a prime target for burglary.

Today's farms are just loaded with valuable items, and yet the general level of concern and security in agriculture is appalling. It's nothing to see a $100,000 combine or a $50,000 tractor left standing in the middle of a field overnight during the busy harvest season, or parked in an unlocked, open-fronted shed a half-mile or more from any human inhabitants for an entire winter. What an inviting target for an agricultural thief – one who specializes in farm items.

These guys know the value of modern agricultural inputs. They know how to get onto a farm and get off in a hurry and take with them just those things of marketable value that are easy to peddle.

One such farm thief was interviewed in prison. He said he specialized in farm burglaries because they were easy and profitable. He estimated an annual take of $80,000 -tax free – and figured he could easily steal $2,000 worth a day, even more if he went for large machinery. This particular bandit stole anything of value – tractors, livestock, fuel, antiques, even copper wire. And he said it was usually quite easy.

This guy's usual method of operation would be to ride around the country in the daytime, looking for a place with unmowed grass in the summer or unshoveled snow in the driveway in the winter.

He would watch for other signs of activity and note hazardous conditions such as security systems, barnyard lights and barking dogs. When he found a likely place he would return later, usually at night, with the proper vehicle to haul away whatever he was after. He would drive right up to the place, knock on the door, and if no one answered it was open house.

Surprisingly, this thief said farmers are genial hosts, hardly ever locking their homes and securing valuable equipment and supplies with flimsy locks and lightweight hasps. Entry was usually easy and escape, due to the relative isolation of the selected farm site, was hardly ever a problem.

So what does this thief think farmers should do to keep from being ripped off by the agrarian bandits?

* A loud-barking dog – no professional thief wants to tangle with one of them.

* Plenty of lights at night and a radio playing in the house and in the barn.

*A lived-in appearance by keeping the grass mowed, the mail and papers picked up and cars in the driveway.

*Good locks on all doors and windows for all buildings where things of value are kept.

*A security system -- professionals will pass them up rather than take a chance on tripping an alarm. Even one of those signs that says the place is protected by a security system is an important deterent.

And never leave machinery and livestock or other valuable items where they can't be watched. There have been occasions when farmers have lost animals kept some distance from their farmsteads, and have not even discovered the theft for several days. By the time such an incident is reported, the livestock have been sold to some unsuspecting customer miles and miles away.

• Mark all equipment with identification numbers.

• Be suspicious of strange vehicles and strange people.

• Jot down license numbers of unknown vehicles that show up in the driveway.

• Beware of strangers asking directions for someone you've never heard of, or providing some other excuse for their presence.

• Notify law enforcement agencies when you plan to be away from the farm for a few days and ask them to keep an eye on things.

• Talk with your neighbors and agree on what might be suspicious activity around your place. You hear those stories about a moving van backing up to a house and loading up everything in it while the unsuspecting neighbors pour iced tea for the perspiring movers.

There was a time when the neighborliness and isolation of rural America made these kinds of crimes very difficult. A stranger would be watched from the time he entered a community until he left.

But nowadays farmers have become accustomed to the invasion of outsiders, and they probably don't pay much attention when a truck rolls into the neighbor's place and loads up a tractor.

And that's where some good old-fashioned suspicion comes in handy. After all, how many tractors get a ride into town without the farmer-owner being there to supervise the trip? And how many farmers load cattle in the middle of the night or send a truckload of fertilizer back to town?

Another contributing factor to some of the farm burglaries around the country is a new kind of absentee farming. There used to be a family living on every farm and it was easy to keep track of the place.

But now a farmer may live many miles from the farm where he stores his equipment or bins his produce. Those kinds of vacant farms are easy targets for the professionals. They're in and out in a matter of minutes, taking whatever they want without a trace, and it may take the owner days or weeks to discover he's been ripped off.

It may be a long time before the crime rate around the farm catches up to some of our large cities But it is a growing factor – something that farmers must come to grips with.

Researchers find reclaimed land less productive

LANCASTER – Reclamation following strip mining, as required by law in Pennsylvania, improves the aesthetic quality of the site but for the most part leaves the land less productive than before the mining activity.

In a study of seven sites in Indiana County, researchers from Penn State's Institute for Research on Land and Water Resources found that five of the property owners felt that their land was less fertile than before strip mining took place.

On a positive note, one property was made suitable for farming through the reclamation effort, Roger H. Downing, research assistant, said at the 61st annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science on April 22.

"Another beneficial effect is that three of the properties are now more level and are graded into terraces," he said.

"On the negative side, five of the properties are considered by the owners to be less fertile. One property has contaminated groundwater as a result of the stripping.

"On most of these stripped lands subsidence occurred for several years following the stripping, which causes problems with new buildings. Some of the owners complained that their potable water supply was disrupted.

"All tracts were seeded to grass or legumes which, from a distance, appear quite productive, however, on closer examination, the fields are strong, rough and difficult to farm or pasture."

The researchers talked with realtors in the area of the study sites and found that stripped lands fall into the lowest land value class because of their location along a major highway.

They found the market value of the stripped lands to be about $300 per acre, $400 per acre for some of the better land with potential for tree farming, Downing said.

The average value of general farmland in the area is about $500 per acre.

Downing cautioned that the findings are tentative and the researchers are uncertain whether they are representative of stripped-mined lands in general throughout the state.

"We feel it is important that a more thorough investigation be undertaken," he said. "If these findings are representative of the general situations, then a revision to the strip mining and reclamation laws seems in order."

Allied tests indicate sulfur deficiency

NEW YORK, N.Y. – Preliminary results of a soil-test survey conducted by Allied Corporation indicate that most crops are not getting enough sulfur for efficient, high-yield crop production.

The company recommends tissue testing crops for sulfur content early this summer and, if necessary, sidedressing a soluble form of sulfur to fill the nutrient gap.

Of more than 21,000 soil-test results collected by Allied over the past two years, 60 percent were considered low in sulfur, 25 percent were rated medium and 15 percent scored high. All soil samples in the survey were analyzed and rated by university or independent soil-testing laboratories.

These startling data were accumulated from 28 midwestern, southern and northeastern states as part of Allied's "Test for S" dealer-incentive program, launched in September 1982 to track the extent of sulfur deficiency.

Allied will continue to collect soil and plant-tissue test results until Dec. 31, 1985, when the company expects to have approximately 100,000 entries in its data bank. A more detailed report will be issued at that time.

While preliminary results of the "Test for S" survey do not cover all U.S. soils, they do provide a general indication of the extent of sulfur deficiency in many highly productive soil types, says Don Messick, an Allied agronomist.

Messick says the record crop yields produced by U.S. farmers in recent years have naturally depleted soil reserves of nutrients. Farmers routinely put back nutrients like N, P and K, he explains, but many have neglected to replenish their soils with adequate sulfur, a nutrient used by crops in the formation of chlorophyll and protein.

"Unlike more traditional forms of plant food such as ammonium sulfate (21-0-0-24S) and ordinary superphosphate (0-20-0-12S), today's high-analysis grades of N and P do not contain any incidental sulfur," the agronomist adds. "If you keep removing sulfur from the soil without putting some back, it's going to catch up with you sooner or later."

Without adequate sulfur, Messick says, crops cannot be expected to reach their full potential in terms of yield, quality or protein content. "As a general rule," he adds, "crops should contain one unit of sulfur for every 12-15 units of nitrogen. If your tissue test shows on N:S ratio wider than 15:1, your crop will most likely benefit from sulfur fertilization."

Pasture renovation can pay dividends

CREAMERY – "Undermanagement is a most common practice with pasture," states Tanya Mason, Soil Conservationist, with the Montgomery County Soil Conservation Service. Too often animals are out on pastures and left until the pasture is overgrazed, which can lead to low quality forage and soil erosion.

These pastures can be greatly improved by renovation, says Mason. Proper pasture management involves liming, fertilizing and reseeding, when necessary. Spring is also the time to apply the proper herbicides to erradicate unwanted weeds. Consult your Agronomy Guide or Extension agent for specific recommendations on herbicide use.

"After renovating," according to Mason, "rotational grazing is a sequence of grazing where the pastureland is divided into compartments of equal size (usually five compartments are ideal). One compartment is grazed at a time. Thirty-five to 40-day intervals are allowed between grazings after 7 to 10 days of intensive grazing.

"Pastures should be clipped immediately after livestock is moved to another compartment. This procedure not only improves appearance, but also helps control unpalatable forage and weeds," Mason says.

Renovating and rotating your pastureland can increase forage quality multifold. For more information on improving your pastureland, contact your county Soil Conservation Service office.

Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

For years I have been writing that the key to economical milk production is forage quality. For years top money managers among dairymen have been aiming at forages in their goal to produce milk at a cost that is less than the price received. Today I would like to take an excerpt from a ten-year study done at Wisconsin.

RESULTS

RESULT NO. ONE - Milk per ton of forage:

- Low quality forage (under 56% TDN under 13% Crude Protein) 1340 lb. of milk per ton of hay-type forage.
- Average quality forage (58% TDN and 16% Crude Protein) 1735 lb of milk per ton of hay-type forage.
- High quality forage (over 62% TDN and over 19% Crude Protein) 2031 lb of milk per ton of hay-type forage.

RESULT NO. TWO - They found that it was not possible to feed enough grain to fully compensate for the poor quality forage.

RESULT NO. THREE - Using the cost of maintaining a 1200-lb cow producing 16,000 lb of milk per year,the researchers found that an acre of low-quality forage actually lost $200. They also found that an acre of average quality forage made nearly $100 and an acre of high quality forage made over $220.

Raising Forage

Raising high quality forage starts with a sound fertility program. This means soil testing so nutrients are in balance and the pH is adequate. It means application of the right mix of nutrients at seeding time and as a top dress on established stands.

A second step is recognizing when hay forage crop fields need to be rejuvenated by tearing them up and going into another type of crop. Or when all that is required is a good maintenance lime and fertilizer application for rejuvenation.

A third step is the selection of the proper mixture of legume and grass for the soil, the area, and your needs (sale crop, beef, dairy). You may be able to sacrifice some yield in favor of more quality by the way you select the grass to go with your alfalfa. Or you may use trefoil in some of the northern counties in place or or along with alfalfa.

Producing Forage

A lot of farmers can raise high quality forage. Where many fall by the wayside is in following through on the producing end.

Early cutting does two things. It improves quality - no one disputes that. It also may increase the overall yield by providing you with one more cutting.

However, as you can see from the Wisconsin results above, quality is far more important than yield. There is no way the cow can eat through low quality forage to offset the milk production from higher quality forage.

If the cow did have an unlimited capacity for forage it would take a yield of 52% more per acre on low quality forage than on high quality forage. Example: It would take 4.5 tons of low quality hay per acre to equal 3 tons of high quality hay.

In fact we usually find that cows will eat more of the high quality material than the lower quality material.

Using Forage

Just as you use soil tests to determine the balance of nutrients for your crops, use forage tests to determine the balance of nutrients for your animals.

Forage testing does 2 things:

- It monitors the quality of your forage - an important step in the production of high quality forage.
- It saves on the feed bill by showing you how to balance nutrients - not over feed protein in relation to energy or visa versa.

Assistant agent appointed in York

YORK – John E. Rowehl has been named assistant extension agent in York County, following an announcement by W. Wayne Hinish, associate director and associate dean of Penn State's Cooperative Extension Service.

Rowehl will be responsible for developing and conducting educational programs in agronomy, potato farming, water quality and soil management. He will also develop agricultural and 4-H programs in agronomic crops and tractor safety.

One of Rowehl's major projects involves the Chesapeake Bay. We plan to study soil and water conservation techniques and how they apply to farm practices like manure management," he says. "Basically, we want to know how we can reduce's agriculture's share of the problem."

Rowehl earned his bachelor's degree in agronomy from Cornell University in 1982. Before attending Cornell, he obtained an associate degree from the State University of New York's Agricultural and Technical program.

Since March of 1984, Rowehl acted as assistant county supervisor for farm and rural credit with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Lockport, N.Y. Earlier, he was self-employed as a vegetable crops production manager in Mattituck, N.Y. Rowehl has a New York State pesticide applicator's license.

Cornell scientists develop new potato varieties

ITHACA, NY — The nation's potato industry will get a series of shots in the arm from Cornell University, where scientists are mounting an all-out effort designing new potato varieties that will meet the needs of growers and consumers.

One of the aims is to develop new varieties through greatly stepped-up breeding work, thus improving the likelihood of producing commercially acceptable varieties in the next few years.

All of the varieties to come out of the program will have one thing in common–natural ability to thrive in areas infested with a destructive soil-dwelling pest known as the golden nematode.

Such efforts, now in high gear, should result in five or more resistant varieties during the next ten years, a feat considered unprecedented in the history of potato breeding.

Launched in 1980, Cornell's accelerated potato breeding program has already produced two new varieties--"Rosa" and "Hampton." Best suited for the chipping industry, Rosa went into commercial production in 1982. Hampton, a table-stock variety, is just off the "assembly line," ready to make its commercial debut this year in New York State.

In addition, several new varieties are now on the drawing boards. One variety of promise has strong resistance to scab, a disease affecting the appearance of the potato. Other features in this one will include early maturity and high-yielding capacity, according to Cornell plant breeder Robert L. Plaisted.

Other varieties in the making include a good chipping potato, an oblong russet potato for baking, and one that has red skin–something many consumers prefer, says Plaisted, a professor of plant breeding in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell.

When it comes to creating new varieties, scientists weigh a number of factors, including yield, dependability, adaptability, shape of tubers, uniformity, maturity, color of skin, and, of course, taste, among others.

Equally important is the ability to resist a host of debilitating diseases and insects and other pests destructive to the crop. Major potato diseases right now include early blight, late blight, Verticillium wilt, scab, and several kinds of viral infections. The hope is to squeeze into every variety multiple resistance to as many diseases as possible.

One outstanding feature to be added to all of the new varieties being created at Cornell is natural resistance to the golden nematode, which has New York growers for decades. Both Rosa and Hampton have strong resistance to this microscopic pest.

"Other varieties to follow in the years ahead will have a high degree of resistance," Plaisted promises.

In fact, the major thrust of Cornell's stepped-up potato breeding efforts is to make sure every variety coming out of the program has the ability to thrive in areas infested with the golden nematode, according to Bill B. Brodie, a USDA nematologist and a professor of plant pathology at Cornell.

Despite intensive efforts to stamp out the golden nematode for more than four decades since its discovery on Long Island in 1941, only limited success has been achieved, he points out. The golden nematode, in recent years, has found its way into some of the potato growing areas in upstate New York.

"If the pest spreads to seed potato growing areas of the state, it will place the entire potato industry of the eastern United States under immediate threat," Brodie warns. "The use of resistant varieties will preserve the state's potato industry and also protect other areas from introduction of the pest."

So far, New York is the only state in the nation that has the golden nematode, but there is no assurance that the pest would not spread to other regions of the country.

"There is always a threat that this pest might be introduced to other areas," Plaisted points out. "It is to the advantage of the other parts of the country to have resistant varieties ready just in case."

Explaining how a resistant variety combats the pest, Brodie says that all the female larvae that enter the root are unable to survive. Males, however, stay alive, but they will have no mates to reproduce. As a result, the number of viable cysts (egg-containing structures) is greatly reduced.

"The resistant plant causes the larvae to hatch from eggs, just as the susceptible one does, but the nematode population buildup canot take place because females die out. The result is a low number of cysts, so that they no longer become a threat," Brodie explains.

The source of resistance to the pest came from a potato variety named "Polo" grown in the high Andes Mountains of Bolivia. Through intensive breeding and selection processes, Cornell scientists now have a number of "clones," or potential varieties, that have a high degree of resistance to the golden nematode.

In speeding up the breeding work, scientists involved in the project are not using any special trick. All they do is carry out sheer hard work.

Plaisted says, "We keep crossing breeding materials and increasing the number of seedlings to glean the best candidate."

At least 200,000 seedlings are required to find one that might make a variety, according to Plaisted. On the average, one in five such "finalists" succeeds as a commercial variety. Promising candidates are then tested out at a number of locations thorugh the cooperation of potato growers.

Brodie points out that the accelerated potato breeding program has enabled the Cornell research team to reduce the time required to get a brand new cultivar into the hands of the farmer from ten to four years or less.

In addition to Plaisted and Brodie, other scientists on the Cornell team are plant pathologists Edward D. Jones and H. David Thurston. In addition, much support comes from the potato specialists in Cornell Cooperative Extension.

The project is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, and the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

Maryland study reveals excessive soil loss

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – Soil loss from Maryland's cropland is more severe than previously thought, according to a new study by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

Preliminary results from a survey of ephemeral gully erosion show that soil loss from gullies in a field can range from 3 to 135 tons per acre per year. Previous studies, which measured sheet and rill erosion only, put the annual soil loss at 5.6 tons. The allowable soil loss, or rate at which soil can be lost and still maintain productivity, is 2 to 3 tons per acre per year.

According to David L. Yost, SCS soil scientist, although gullies affect about 10 percent of the cropland, they will increase the state's average soil loss rate by about 30 percent.

"It is patently obvious that we need a lot more conservation practices like grass waterways, contouring and stripcropping on steeper slopes. Minimum till or no-till alone is not enough to protect the soil from erosion," Yost says.

Conservation tillage methods are considered one of the most effective ways of keeping rainfall from washing away soil because the new crop is planted through the residue from the previous crop. However, if planting is done up and down the hill, small channels form where the water can collect, pick up speed, and dislodge soil particles.

Most gullies, said Yost, form in natural drainageways and on fields that are conventionally plowed. Conventionally plowed fields also had excessive sheet and rill erosion, where thin layers of soil moves over large areas. Soil loss rates on these fields ranged in the teens and twenties.

"Unlike sheet erosion where the soil may just move from one part of the field to another, sediment from gully erosion usually ends up on roads, in streams, or in woods," Yost said. "You can't put it back."

Data from the study was collected in eight central Maryland counties during March and April. Yost said the survey points will be observed again in the fall to see if the gullies, which were plowed in during spring planting, recur after heavy rains that normally occur during summer.

Prof sees "new interest" in land use management

UNIVERSITY PARK – Although the public is coming to terms with the natural world, concerns remain over the costs of environmental clean-up and land management, a Penn State professor said.

Since 1970, major national legislation has been enacted to protect air and water quality, regulate waste disposal, reclaim strip-mined land and establish other national procedures to safeguard the environment, Arthur Davis said at the annual lecture sponsored by the Agricultural honor society Gamma Sigma Delta.

"But as cost increased and difficult questions emerged, progress in achieving environmental objectivity has slowed," he said. "By contrast, national land use policy legislation has failed to gain approval. State programs designed to guide land development and protect critical environmental areas have slowed down or stopped altogether."

Recently, Davis said, concern over the loss of prime agricultural lands and the "buckshot urbanization" of the countryside has focused new interest in land use management.

"The hare of environmental quality and the tortoise of land use management are now at the same pace in terms of progress," Davis said.

The major concerns facing environmental quality have to do with costs and determining the acceptable levels of risk. For land use, the major concern is accommodating the increasing number of people who want to live in rural areas without diminishing the quality of the countryside. In cities, the challenge will be the renovation and rehabilitation of aging buildings that can bring new life to decaying neighborhoods.

Davis admitted that environmental and land issues are complex, difficult and confusing.

"Above all, we must do away with the malaise and rancor that too often accompany disputes over environmental resource management," he said. "We must unblock the impasses that keep us from getting to 'yes' on individual issues, and improve the basic processes through which we seek to achieve our goals."

'83, '84 wheat totals revised

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Statistical Reporting Service will revise 1983 and 1984 estimates of five classes of wheat produced in this country. The revisions, to be published in the May 10 Crop Production report, will not alter total wheat production estimates.

William E. Kibler, agency administrator, said the revised estimates for hard red winter, soft red winter, white winter, hard red spring, and spring wheat reflect information collected in a special wheat variety survey conducted every 5 years. Additional data on wheat varieties will be published later this year.

Nitrogen in air pollution; Too much of a good thing?

ITHACA, NY – The idea that too much of a good thing–the fertilizing nitrogen compounds in atmospheric pollutants–is indirectly harming trees will be tested at the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research with a $147,000 grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

A BTI team led by Jay S. Jacobson, a specialist in the effects of acid rain, has begun a four-year test to determine whether unnatural nitrogen fertilization from air pollutants is prolonging growth of trees during the spring and summer growing season, and thus delaying the annual dormancy and making the trees more vulnerable during the winter.

Tree decline in temperate forests appears to be widespread in western Europe and eastern North America," says Jacobson, a plant physiologist at the institute, which is based at the Cornell University campus in Ithaca.

"The occurence of tree decline at locations where deposition of pollutants from the atmosphere is high provides circumstantial evidence for chronic stress by pollutants as the cause," Jacobson explains. "But there is no proof of this or any agreement on how pollutants reduce tree growth and increase mortality."

Tests beginning in laboratory greenhouses and later moving to the forests will examine the effects of an artificially prolonged growing season on the ability of red spruce and balsam fir seedlings to withstand one of the most important forms of stress–the cold of autumn frosts, winter freezes, and late spring frosts.

"Nitrogen fertilization is known to stimulate and prolong growth, and nitrogen from atmospheric pollutants is deposited in large amounts, particularly in high-elevation forests of eastern North America and western Europe," Jacobson notes. "The major sources of atmospheric nitrogen are nitrate in rain, ammonium in aerosols and particulate matter, and nitric acid. Climatic conditions in mountainous areas produce high rates of deposition in forested areas."

Working in collaboration with researchers from the University of Pennsylvania, the U.S Forest Service, and the University of Kuopio (Finland), Jacobson will grow seedlings from locations in the eastern U.S. in their native soils, exposing them to simulated acid mist that contains nitrates. After each growth period, the research team will simulate the onset of autumn with shorter days and decreasing temperatures, the extended cold of winter when the trees are normally dormant, and a late spring frost after the period of dormancy has been broken.

Observations of the young trees over the next four years may reveal effects of the unnatural fertilizer on growth and development. Field experiments will also be conducted at New York's Whiteface Mountain and at the Green Mountain Forest in Vermont.

The Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research is one of the few private non-profit research institutions in the country that concentrates its research efforts on plants. Established in 1924, the Institute was located in Yonkers, New York for 54 years before moving in 1978 to its present location on the campus of Cornell University.

Warm skies speed cherry forecast

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Statistical Reporting Service will publish the first forecasts of 1985 tart cherry production in Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin on June 19 rather than June 26 as previously announced. Above average temperatures have hastened maturity and necessitated earlier forecasts.

William E. Kibler, agency administrator, also announced that the production estimate for Michigan's 1984 tart cherry crop will be revised and published in the May 10 Crop Production report.

Although final estimates of the crop for all states were issued in December, further evaluation of utilization of fruit available for harvest, including that not harvested for economic or natural reasons.

Landfill borrows a page from agriculture

CREAMERY — The Boyertown Sanitary Disposal Company borrowed a new agricultural conservation concept to protect the soil on its Gilbertsville landfill site. Roger Krout, Operations Manager of the landfill site, sought to help of local farmer Ernest Long and the Montgomery County Conservation District to no-till the exposed slopes on the fill.

"Dry weather last fall caused our grass seedings to fail in spots," explained Krout, "leaving us suceptable to erosion on some slopes. We were reluctant to work up the soil again before spring rains." Meanwhile, Gilbertsville farmer Ernest Long had rented the Conservation District's No-Till Grain Drill to plant oats on ground that adjoins the landfill This attracted the attention of the Boyertown Sanitary Disposal Company.

After consulting with Bill Steuteville, No-Till Coordinator for Montgomery County, they decided to try no-tilling grass on their susceptable slopes this spring.

"We generally work with farmers," says Steuteville, "but we were happy to assist in stabilizing the soil on the landfill. This is a critical area because of the steepness of the slopes. The agricultural principles are the same."

Ernest Long used his tractor to do the planting.

Adds Steuteville, "I'm glad Ernie did the driving, I would have been very nervous on those slopes."

The Montgomery County Conservation District has no-till corn planters as well as drills available for farmers and landowners. Anyone interested, should call Bill Steuteville at 489-4506

Bird import regs reviewed

WASHINGTON — A U.S. Department of Agriculture proposal would change federal import regulations to allow the offspring of birds originating in the United States to enter this country without undergoing quarantine if they come from an approved closed breeding facility.

Bert W. Hawkins, administrator of the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said this import rule revision was requested by segments of the commercial bird industry.

Closed breeding facilities are facilities outside the United States where U.S. breeding birds and their offspring are kept isolated under disease-free conditions.

As proposed, potential operators of closed breeding facilities would need to receive prior approval from USDA and bear all costs associated with USDA inspection and approval, and the construction, maintenance and operation of their facilities.

Hawkins said closed breeding facilities would have to be supervised by both a USDA veterinarian and an official of the national veterinary services of the country in which the facility is located. The latter would inspect the facility on a weekly basis to insure that operational procedures comply with prescribed standards

Other provisions of the proposal are as follows: For shipment to approved closed breeding facilities–

- Birds must be accompanied by a health certificate issued by an accredited veterinarian in the U.S. state of origin.

Machinery costs: then and now

Whether a farmer can hire custom work cheaper than he can tool up and do it himself is questionable. Most farmers say they can't stand the inconvenience of waiting for a custom operator even if owning does cost more.

As a result, we have a few million farms in this country–each with a complete line of machinery. This has to be a great economic waste.

In fact, this could be what is driving farmers off the land–the high cost of owning all that equipment that really isn't that busy.

The combine has come to be the classic in any discussion of custom vs. owning. And the question that is asked–can a typical farmer afford to own one? The fixed cost to a farmer who uses it a couple of hundred hours a year could easily be $20 or $30 per hour of use. Operating costs could add at least $5 more.

It's obvious in this cost analysis that many farmers just can't stand the cost of owning their own machines.

Going back more than 40 years to a time when there were very few combines and most small grain went through a threshing machine, it was a different situation. Very few farmers owned threshers. Custom work was the common practice with one machine handling hundreds of acres.

I remember the McCafferty brothers, who did the threshing in our community. They were good farmers who knew their machine and how to get every bushel of grain that was possible. No one else in the neighborhood had the skill and mechanical know-how to operate that machine at peak efficiency and it would have been foolish for a farmer to try on his own.

The McCafferty brothers would usually do their own fields first, then start down the road from one farm to the next threshing oats, barley, wheat and rye. The season ran from early July until September, with the last farm as much as 20 miles from where it all started.

Grain was cut with a binder and shocked, so leaving it in the field an extra month was no problem. A farmer usually had his own binder--or maybe he teamed up with a neighbor so he could get the grain cut when it was right. He also needed a fairly large crew for shocking if there many acres.

Work swapping was more important when threshing machines were used. It took a lot of hands to keep the big machine running at full capacity. It wasn't unusual to see as many as a dozen farmers, plus their hired hands, working together at threshing time.

My first real job, beyond carrying water jugs, was driving a team of Percheron horses pulling a bundle wagon. This rig belonged to a neighbor who could see the wisdom of getting an eight-year-old kid to do for pennies what he would otherwise have to pay a man to do.

We'd work five or six farms before it was his turn and maybe a half-dozen more after his grain was in the bind. There was hardly ever any exchange of money between the farmers. If a man wound up owing at the end of the threshing season, he made it up picking corn.

Those were the days when a man could start farming with a team of horses, an old tractor, plow, cultivator, disc, harrow, and a wagon. If he lacked a grain drill or corn planter, he swapped with a neighbor. It wasn't unusual for a fellow to start farming on no more than a thousand bucks. That was enough for a down payment on some used equipment and seed and fertilizer money.

That was during World War II. By the time the war was over threshing machines were being rapidly replaced by combines. Fellows who had always relied on the McCafferty brothers suddenly felt the need to own and operate combines. I suspect they paid dearly for the privilege.

Times have changed and obviously there is no way to go back to the work swapping, custom threshing days of the early 1940s. But there must be some way to cut down a $200,000 machinery inventory on a 320 acre Delmarva farm and still get the job done.

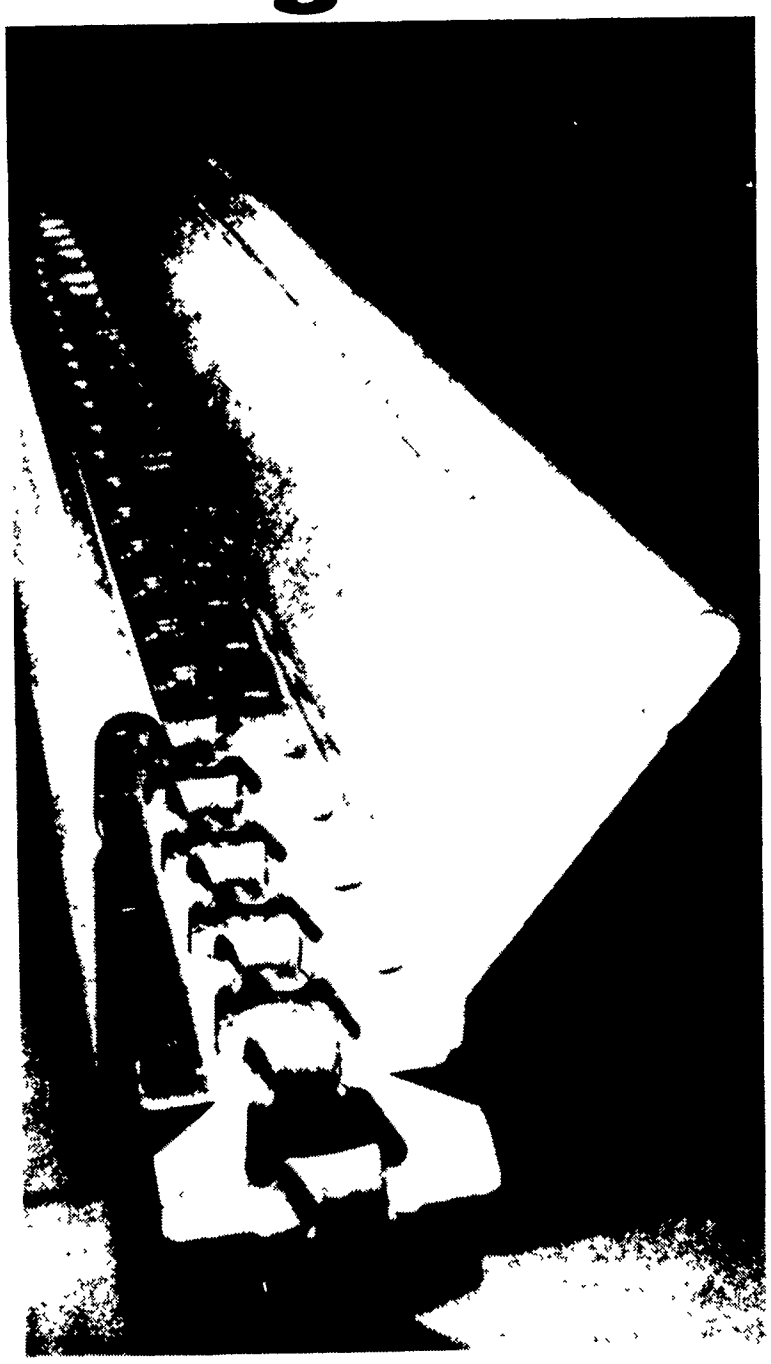
A Cage isn't enough



It takes more than wire to make a cage system. More than anything else it takes a feeder.

Sure, other components are important, but mainly it's the feeder that makes the system. That's why Big Dutchman's Systems are equipped with a SPEED FEED chain feeder that feeds every bird the right amount at the right time, without waste.

When you compare poultry equipment remember that the real test of a cage system is its feeder Big Dutchman is ready for the test.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

The cost of farming

Those of us who write for the farm audience love to give advice. I wonder why it's so easy to tell someone else how to run his business? It must be because that's our business, - to tell others how.

Anyone who has a personal computer has a slight advantage over those who don't. The advantage is in the ease of recording and manipulating figures. So, my message for this week is to begin right now to keep track of your costs of producing everything you produce.

If you don't have a computer or a secretary, you do have a pencil and notebook. It's as simple as writing down a heading like, "Corn, 8 acre strip north of the henhouse". Then tonight, before you get too comfortable in front of the TV, take one minute to record what you did in that field today. Heck, you don't need a computer to do that!

So you spent three hours chiseling the field. How much did that cost? Whether it was your plow or someone else's, it cost you for the fuel, the time, the interest on the equipment, and the overhead of owning the machinery. It could add up to anywhere from $20 an hour to $45, depending on your circumstances. (Here's where a computer might help). Don't kid yourself about what it actually cost you.

When you planted, it should be a little easier to track the cost. If you own a $9000 planter, and use it to plant 150 acres of corn, the planter will cost you over $12,000 in the next five years That comes to about $17.00 an acre. Or, you might have hired a neighbor to plant for $15.00. Whatever the cost, write it down.

The cost of fertilizer is easy. You hired Reading Bone to spread 650 pounds of 10-18-30 over the 150 acres, and it cost $(a lot). Just divide $(a lot) by 150, and you have the cost per acre. No sweat. Write it down.

Now, there was some spraying, right? If you did it, don't forget to count your time, at $(whatever you're worth), the amortized cost of the sprayer per acre, (that might not be too easy), fuel and tractor cost, and the actual cost of the herbicides. That part is real easy if you take the cost per gallon, divide that by eight to get the cost per pint, and multiply that by the pints per acre. The same goes for pounds, if you use wettable powders. Take the time to figure it out, it could be fun, and it might shock you. Then, write it down!

Now that the crop is in the ground, relax for a couple of evenings, before you side dress or spray for escaped weeds. If you do any of these, write it down. Some other substantial costs are down the road aways, when it comes harvest time, so don't give up.

Now that you have taken the time to write down all that vital information, it will become all the more important to remember where you wrote it. And after harvest, when all those costs are written down, all you have to do anymore is find the right page and add up the figures. Your third grader can do it for you.

What good will all this do you? Well, maybe it will tell you something. Whether the crop costs less to grow than to buy. Or vice-versa. I guarantee you that it will be the best exercise in economics you can get. Even if the only teturn for all that labor is a couple of laughs.

And if I could believe for one minute that you will do all that writing down for a crop, just so you can get a handle on the cost of production, I would then boldly ask you to try it with the cost of raising heifers, feeding bull calves, and growing rudabagas. Better yet, you might learn how much it actually costs to produce a hundred pounds of milk, if that's important to you. And it had better be, if you plan to stay in business.

Delaware to participate in USDA plant pest survey

NEWARK, DE – Scientists at the University of Delaware will again participate in a national plant pest survey during the 1985 growing season. The survey is funded in part by a grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS). Approximately 30 corn, soybean, small grain and alfalfa field sites around the state will be involved.

The joint plant pathology/entomolgy/weed science project will be supervised by a new technician to be hired in May, under whose direction field scouts will survey crops for insect, weed and disease pests. Their findings will be reported weekly on the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service crop pest hotline.

The information will also be transmitted to a computer at Fort Collins, Colo., as part of the National Plant Pest Survey and Detection Program. Scientists in Delaware and other participating states will be able to access summary reports of survey findings.

According to extension pest management specialist Joanne Whalen, the survey is intended to detect new crop pests as well as to determine when and where common major pests are active so that they can be more effectively controlled.

By computerizing this information, local entomologists and plant pathologists in Delaware and elsewhere can predict insect and disease outbreaks based on pest activity farther south. At the same time, local findings can warn of potential outbreaks which could affect farmers in states farther north.

Yorkers urged to file receipts

YORK – Farmers are urged to submit receipts and approval forms for conservation practices as soon as they are completed.

Payment can generally be made within a few days if everything is in order. In some instances, however, practices must be spot-checked by county office personnel prior to making payment.

Stop by the York County ASCS office, 120 Pleasant Acres Road. to file for payment.

Ridge planting

NEWARK, DE. – The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service has published an eight-page booklet, "Ridge Planting: A Modification of No-Tillage." The publication was written by University of Delaware research associate Cheryl Stevens, professor emeritus Dr. William H. Mitchell, and extension assistant Bob Uniatowski.

No-tillage has been widely adopted by mid-Atlantic farmers--so widely, in fact, that Delaware and Maryland now rank first and second in the U.S. in percent of no-tillage cropland. There are many advantages to this cropping system. Besides saving time and energy, it helps conserve soil moisture and increases yields, improves soil by adding organic matter, and reduces wind and water erosion.

No-tillage also has its drawbacks, however, It makes soil wetter and colder, sometimes delaying planting under even the best field conditions.

Over a three-year period Mitchell and his colleagues at the University of Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station tested a corn-soybean production system which combines the advantages of no-tillage with those of strip tillage and ridging. When refined, they say it could involve thousands of additional acres of cropland in conservation tillage as well as increase the productivity of land already no-till farmed.,

The booklet tells how tests were conducted and describes the results. Among other things, the scientists concluded that:

* Row placement is important when no-tillage corn follows soybeans.

* On-row planting reduces soil compaction, with or without ridging.

* On-row placement favors uptake of major crop nutrients.

* Ridging helps compensate for the effects of mulch on soil temperature.

* Planter fertilizer is an important part of the ridging system.

* Cover crops are important in protecting ridges from wind and water erosion during winter months.

This research project was designed to determine how ridge planting, a popular cultural practice in other parts of the country, might be adopted by Delaware farmers. It provided valuable information on soil ridging as a modification of no-tillage, corn response to on-row planting, and increased yields from use of planter fertilizer in conjunction with other production practices.

Based on results to date, the authors say ridging does not appear to have much potential for boosting Delmarva no-till corn yields on well-drained to droughty soils. However, it could be effective on soils presently unsuitable for no-tillage due to excessive moisture.

Free copies of the booklet are available to Delaware residents from county extension offices. Out-of-state residents can get a copy for $1 by writing: Mail Room, Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19717-1303. Make checks payable to the University of Delaware.

Fencing Problems
WITH ARC® SOLAR FENCING

NUMBER 1 CHOICE OF NEW FENCING BY AMERICAN FARM & RANCH OWNERS

"The Arc 12 Solar system allows us to safely run our stallions next to the mares eliminating time and labor on try backs
Harold S. Warder Quality Quarter Horses Oskaloosa Iowa

- Eliminates fence sagging
- No staples or wire clips
- Adjustable enclosed spring assembly for each wire
- Optional site rails™
- Optional Arc 110 Volt multi wire unit
- Installed by trained dealers
- Fully guaranteed by warranty

The ARC 12 Fence is a new concept in livestock fencing. Using free energy from the sun, the solar powered solid state unit keeps a powerful 12 volt battery charged for effective shocking. Special non-conductive white plastic posts are attractive and extremely durable, capable of being bent 45° and returning to their original position. Using smooth 12½ gauge high tensile wire eliminates injuries from barbed wire.

If the engine quits, two-way radio could pay for itself today.

Lose just one day during the planting season and it could make all the difference between a good crop and a poor one.

That's why you should be equipped with a Johnson FM two-way radio.

With two-way radio if your engine quits, you can simply call for help. Chances are, a mechanic can get to you and get you going again while there's still some daylight left.

But without two-way radio you'd just have to start walking.

There are a lot of other ways Johnson FM radio can save you time and money. Why not let us show you how you can lease or own a complete two-way system for as little as 75¢ a day.

A new breed of dairy feed...

A convenient method of challenge feeding without a cash outlay for equipment Available in 50 and 500 pound blocks is a 22% protein block formulated specifically as a feeding supplement for dry cows and heifers Available in 50 and 500 lb blocks

...formulated for specific nutritional needs

- A High-Energy Complete Feed
  for increased milk production and persistency. Contains enough nutrients to provide two pounds of milk per pound of consumption.
  Can help reduce weight loss during lactation and improve breeding efficiency. It is 30% higher in energy than former Purina Dairy Sup-R-Block.
- Completely Balanced
  Offers advantages associated with additional balanced ration without additional labor or equipment. Results in better digestion and more efficient use of nutrients.
- Block Form
  Convenient and easy to feed. Compliments any feeding system.
- Weatherproof
  Rain rolls right off it, the sun can't melt it and snow and cold won't cause it to break down. The cows get it all!
- Palatable - with Intake Limiters
  Molasses makes it highly palatable but intake limiters prevents over consumption when fed as recommended.
- Contains Vitamins-Minerals-Selenium and Magnesium
  Meets Vitamin A and D requirements of dairy cows when fed as recommended. Provides Selenium and Magnesium known to aid in reproductive performance and in the control of grass tetany.
- Weatherproof
  Like its companion product, Easy Care Blocks stands up to all kinds of weather, so waste is minimal
- Highly Palatable - with Intake Limiters
  Molasses-based for palatability but contains intake limiters to prevent over consumption when fed as recommended. Dry cows and heifers get what they need — no more, no less
- Balances Forages
  Supplements forages to provide the balanced nutrition important to dry cows and heifers. Easy Care Block is formulated specifically to the nutrient requirements of dairy dry cows and heifers.
- Self Fed
  Saves both time and labor — especially on hard to reach temporary pastures.
- Contains Vitamins-Minerals-Selenium and Magnesium
  Meets Vitamin A and D Requirements when fed as recommended and supplies Selenium and Magnesium lacking in some forages.
